21-Gun Salute Greets Queen On Her Arrival in Virginia

MRS. ROOSEVELT HERE, SAYS U.S. IS COMPLACENT

Important to Learn All We Can About Russia and Its People, She Asserts.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said here today the American people are the "most stupidly complacent" she has ever known in their lack of effort to learn more about Russia and its people.

She made the comment at a press conference before a speech opening the Washington University assembly series, at Graham Memorial Chapel, in which she amplified her ideas.

It is urgently important for people of this country to learn all they can about Russia and "to have confidence in the idea of freedom and go out and sell it," the widow of President Franklin D. Roosevelt said.

"In any contest, you want to know what you really believe, what you are fighting for," she said. "You must know what you are up against.

"Yet, how many people know what Russia is—what the cause from? It's high time we learned."

Urges More Visits.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who returned recently from extensive travels in Russia, suggested some good could be achieved in this direction by encouraging more Americans to visit Russia and permitting more Russians to travel in America.

She said Russians here could be kept under close surveillance such as she experienced in Russia. Russian visitors would hardly be expected to return to Russia and tell the truth about America, she said.

"Nobody is going back and tell the truth—they wouldn't be alive very long if they did—but the information seeps through," she said.

She said she came back from Russia more frightened than I had been—not of the Soviet Union but of our complacency, by our feeling that we do not have to do anything."

To most people, Mrs. Roosevelt said, "the most important freedom is the freedom to eat, and the others come afterwards."

If the United States is to exercise world leadership, she observed, the people will have to make more sacrifices, and exercise more leadership in the United Nations, with emphasis on the care and feeding of the people of the world.

On the subject of the Russian-launched earth satellite, Mrs. Roosevelt said she knew too little to comment except to say she hoped it would be useful.

However, the Sputnik points up the value of research, which is highly regarded in Russia, she said.

"Our people have never been

Monarch Inspects Honor Guard—Band Plays U.S., British Anthems.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Oct. 16 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II arrived in the United States today on a 21-gun salute in Virginia where her British ancestors gained and lost a colonial empire.

The 31-year-old monarch's plane touched down at Patrick Henry airport at 1:27 p.m. after flying on from Canada with her husband, Prince Philip. They were fresh from four days in Ottawa on her first North American visit since her coronation.

Gov. Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia welcomed Elizabeth, who said in response:

"We are particularly happy that our first stop is in the venerable Old Dominion state."

10,000 at Airport.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 stood by at the airport as Elizabeth took the salute and reviewed and inspected an honor guard from all the armed forces.

She wore a mauve blue satin afternoon dress with a matching coat, set off by touches of blue velvet. Her hat was blue with beige pheasant feathers bordered with black velvet.

British and American diplomats and officials greeted the Queen at the windswept airstrip. Cardboard nameplates glued to the landing apron told them just where to stand.

Resplendent in blue dress uniforms, the 50-piece band of the Eighty-second Airborne Division, from Fort Bragg, N.C., swung into the national anthems of the two English-speaking sister nations. In the distance, off the edge of the airstrip, a six-gun battery fired 21 shots at three-second intervals.

In black homburg and suit, Gov. Stanley turned up a half hour ahead of the Queen's arrival hour.

Massing up the honor guard were soldiers from Ft. Bragg, sailors and Marines from Norfolk, Va., and airmen from Langley Field, Va. A cordon of state troopers sealed off the entire reception area.

For the federal government today's welcome came from Wiley Buchanan, chief of protocol, who has ambassadorial rank. Tomorrow in Washington, it will come from President Eisenhower himself.

Over Trip to Jamestown.

The arrival of the royal party was followed by a 25-mile motor trip to historic Jamestown island, to participate in a festival commemorating the 350th anniversary of the first permanent English settlement in the New World.

The route skirted another historic spot—the site of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. That event 176 years ago Saturday, clinched the independence of the 13 colonies.

Hundreds of cars and thousands of spectators began turning out early this morning to watch and wave to the Queen and Prince along the way to Jamestown and Williamsburg, the colonial capital of Virginia.

TV Quiz Contestant to Give Winnings to Lucky Viewers

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (UP)—George E. Dempster, 70 years old, a Knoxville (Tenn.) millionaire, began answering questions on a television quiz last night and said he would give all his winnings to eight viewers from across the country.

Dempster advanced to only the $512 "plateau" on the CBS "The $64,000 Question," but will return next week to answer more questions in the politics category. He could win as much as $250,000 for the lucky viewers.

As he answered each question last night, Dempster drew numbered tags corresponding with numbers on sacks of postal cards sent in by viewers. From these sacks were drawn the names of four "mystery" viewers who will get shares of Dempster's winnings as long as he stays on the program.

The names of four other viewers who may receive shares of Dempster's prize money were read aloud. They are: Mrs. Molly E. Jenkins of Jane Lew, W. Va.; John A. Wallenstein of Superior, Wis.; Mrs. Charlotte V. Kersey of Tacoma Park, Md.; and Carl O. Juhnke of Newton, Kan.

RULES COUNTY MUST GET NEW SIGNATURES FOR FREEHOLDERS

Dalton Holds Complete Set of Names Is Required — Supplementary List Invalid for Setting Up Board.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16—A completely new set of valid signatures must be obtained in St. Louis county in order to secure appointment of a city-county board of freeholders, to study governmental co-ordination, Attorney General John M. Dalton said today.

Dalton said that supplementary petitions to make up a shortage of valid signatures in the initial filing in the county cannot be circulated. In so doing he affirmed a 1952 opinion to that effect by J. E. Taylor, then Attorney General. The county petitions were 2834 short of the required 7760 signatures of registered voters.

Petitions circulated in St. Louis have been found sufficient, and appointment of nine freeholders was about to proceed. Today's opinion threw the city side of the matter in doubt, however. Dalton declined to say whether he thought an entirely new set of signatures also would be needed in the city.

Start Already Made.

A. J. Covantes, Fifteenth ward alderman and co-chairman of the group which circulated the petitions, said today a new start already has been made in St. Louis county, and about half of the necessary signatures have been obtained.

M. Jack on Daniel, a former assistant State Attorney General and the other co-chairman of the sponsoring group, said today that Dalton's opinion would cause only a brief delay in getting the petitions filed.

Previously Daniel had said that if the number of signatures obtained in either the city or county was insufficient, the defect would be fatal to the entire undertaking. Daniel today stated he had changed his opinion on that matter.

With public co-operation, the complete number of new signatures needed in the county can be ready for filing within two weeks, Daniel said.

Dalton told a reporter he had not gone into the St. Louis side of the question because he had not been officially requested to do so.

The Attorney General's opinion was requested by Chairman John J. Cole of the St. Louis County Board of Election Commissioners, who had expressed some doubt about legality of supplemental signatures in view of the 1952 opinion.

Cites Two Opinions.

Dalton cited not only the 1952 opinion but a similar one given in 1948.

He wrote to Cole: "We have made a rather exhaustive study of this matter and reviewed these opinions at length. We do not find that the matter has ever been raised in Missouri courts, and we have examined all of the cases from other jurisdictions. We therefore believe that these opinions issued should continue to be the opinions of the office on this matter."

Cole called a meeting of the board for 4 o'clock this afternoon to decide what action to take on the question of petitions in view of the Dalton letter.

Taylor's 1952 opinion was an interpretation of section 30A, Article VI, of the Missouri Constitution.

A total of 12,340 signatures was obtained in St. Louis county and 22,656 in St. Louis, in a process of circulation that began about two years ago. Those in the city included more than enough valid ones to meet the requirement of 9840. The requirements are based on 3 per cent of the total vote cast at the preceding general election.

HOSTESSES GIVEN WARM RECEPTION IN ICY ANTARCTIC

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand, Oct. 16 (AP)—Two American air hostesses who went on the first commercial plane flight to the Antarctic returned today delighted with their reception by 301 ice-bound men.

Ruth Kelly, formerly of Holyoke, Colo., and Patricia Hepinstall, formerly of Houston, Tex., said they especially impressed 83 men at McMurdo sound who hadn't seen a woman in six to 18 months.

"Everyone was so gentlemanly," Miss Kelly commented. "We each had an escort."

The two hostesses flew from Christchurch to McMurdo yesterday on a Pan American Stratocruiser that took 37 Seabees for duty at American Antarctic bases.

The women told of judging a beard-growing contest, as well as being elected "Queen Bees of the Seabees" in Antarctica.

RUSSIA ASKS U.N. TO STOP ATTACK ON SYRIA; DULLES WARNS SOVIETS OF PERIL

AID TO TURKEY IF ATTACKED NOT TO BE DEFENSIVE ONLY, HE SAYS

Secretary Asserts Russia Will Be No 'Sanctuary'—Sees Parallel to Crisis Before Korean War.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today promised that if Soviet Russia attacks Turkey, the reaction of the United States in going to the aid of the Turks will not be purely defensive and Russia cannot expect to be a "privileged sanctuary."

The Secretary at his first press conference in several weeks took a grave view of the Syria-Turkey crisis, suggesting a close parallel with conditions which prevailed when the Korean war began.

At the end of the conference, however, he somewhat modified his pessimism when asked to appraise the danger of an outbreak in the tense Middle East situation.

"The eyes of the world are focused on that situation," Dulles replied, "and therefore it is unlikely that there will be an outbreak. The United Nations General Assembly is in session and giving its attention to the matter and in that respect we have a great assurance."

Smoke Screen.

Until his last relatively reassuring statement it seemed to reporters that he was warning against an outbreak which might be imminent. When asked about Nikita Khrushchev's attack on him in an interview in which the Communist party head accused him of inciting Turkey to make war on Syria, Dulles pointed out that just before the Korean conflict he had been accused of fomenting trouble there.

"There must be a measure of concern when charges of this nature are leveled against the West," Dulles said. "It seems that it may be a smoke screen for something more serious.

"The parallel with Korea is evident and we must always be on guard against that possibility."

He characterized Khrushchev's letters to the Socialist parties of various western powers asking them to join in pushing for the proposed Soviet arms embargo as part of the smoke screen. Rejecting any idea of a Soviet-United States pact on the Middle East, Dulles said that the Arab powers did not want the two nations to run their affairs. They wanted, he added, to be independent to decide their own destiny.

Won't Speculate on Egypt.

He declined to speculate on the significance of the recent move by Egypt in sending a battalion of troops to Syria.

The Secretary also declined to speculate on his talk last week with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. He said the talk dealt with the pro-

BRITISH SAY THEY ARE ON VERGE OF TAMING H-BOMB

LONDON, Oct. 16 (UP)—British scientists believed today they were close to controlling the power of the hydrogen bomb for peaceful purposes.

At preesnt, this possible key to another major scientific breakthrough still is in the laboratory testing stage at Britain's atomic research center at Harwell.

The results will not be announced officially until experiments have been completed with the test apparatus called "Zeta," which scientists say can fuse the atomic nuclei of "heavy" hydrogen.

"The experiments are still in progress," an authoritative spokesman said. "Their conclusion may be pretty close. The scientists appear confident they have achieved the first laboratory step toward fusion."

Hopes are centered around a gas-filled circular glass tube in which a temperature "beyond a million degrees" has been achieved, according to Atomic Energy Authority sources. Such a heat is necessary to start the fusion process.

The AEA cautiously admits that the scientists could be close to discovery of a way of controlling the energy that gives the H-bomb its colossal blast so that it can be used to fuel homes and industry.

DULLES FEELS U.S. CAN KEEP LEAD IN MISSILES

Asserts Nation Remains Superior to Russia — Believes Satellite Has Unified Americans.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today that despite the Russian launching of the first space satellite he had no doubt whatsoever of the ability of the United States to keep ahead in the field of guided missiles.

The Secretary said the Soviet achievement had had the very desirable effect of creating a unity of purpose and thinking among the Administration, Congress and the people, and that it had dispelled any complacent feeling that this country is automatically ahead of the Soviet Union in every respect.

Dulles added the Administration had not been complacent.

The United States, Dulles said, retains marked military superiority over the Russians, particularly in the field of heavy bombers able to deliver nuclear weapons. He suggested the Soviet satellite would stimulate United States progress in missiles, which might be decisive in five to 10 years.

He conceded the Russians had made some advances over the United States in the field of missiles.

The Secretary's press conference was dominated by two subjects—the danger of war in the Middle East and the significance of the Russian satellite. President Eisenhower's regular Wednesday news conference was canceled. Dulles, who ordinarily sees reporters on Tuesday, changed the time of his conference to today.

Asked whether he thought a "new look" in defense policies was now called for, Dulles replied these policies are constantly getting a new look. The budget is continually being reexamined and security needs balanced with budget requirements, he said. He saw no need for a different kind of "new look" than is called for every year.

In reply to a question as to whether the country might have to support a larger budget

FIVE-DAY FORECAST: CLEAR SKIES TO BRING END TO RAINY SPELL

CLEAR skies for the next five days will bring an end to the rainy spell in the St. Louis area, the Weather Bureau said today in its extended forecast.

The forecast is: Generally fair weather tomorrow through Monday with little or no precipitation for the period. Little day-to-day temperature changes, but with cooler nights Thursday through the weekend. For the period as a whole, temperatures will average near normal for the season. Normal afternoon highs are in the upper 60s; morning lows 45 to 50.

BUYING PANIC REPORTED IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

VIENNA, Oct. 16 (AP)—Arrivals from Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia reported a buying panic broke out there Monday because people feared they were in for a duplication of East Germany's currency change.

An Austrian tourist reported: "The Czech people are rushing to buy anything they can so they won't be caught by a sudden currency changeover."

Czechoslovakia's last currency reform also come suddenly in May 1953 and was accompanied by wage reductions to siphon off purchasing power. The controlled Czech radio and press have so far mentioned nothing about a buying rush. Observers pointed out that rumors to induce such a panic also might be planted in order to remove old stocks from the shops, which are all state owned.

East Germany's Red regime on Sunday suddenly sealed its borders, invalidated all old Eastmarks in favor of a new issue and allowed holders to exchange only 300 old for new at a rate of one to one. The Reds said they would exchange the rest only if the owners could prove they had not obtained them by illegal trading or speculation.

'MOON' ROCKET EASILY SEEN BY U.S. OBSERVERS

Shines Brightly Over Cambridge, Mass.—Sighting of Satellite Reported.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 16 (AP) — Clear weather and a waning moon enabled Sputnik's rocket to put on spectacular 1800-mile sweep across the sky today beginning shortly before 5 a.m. (St. Louis time).

Moonwatchers on the roof of the Harvard observatory saw the rocket rise over the northwest sky right on schedule and it was tracked for nearly six minutes before it disappeared in the southeast.

Only one watcher, Dr. Armand Spitz of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory staff, reported sighting Sputnik itself.

Virtually all observations in recent days have been of the rocket, which is from 50 to 100 times brighter than the radio-equipped Sputnik.

Dr. Spitz said he sighted the Russian moon near the constellation of Orion at 5:16:36 a.m.

U.S. Scientist Says Sputnik May Fall in Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP) —A Government scientist says Russia's Sputnik—which has circled the earth for 12 days—may plunge from its orbit and burst into flames within a week.

That view, expressed by Robert Jastrow of the Naval Research Laboratory here, generally runs counter to other Western predictions that the satellite might remain aloft for several months, possibly a year.

Jastrow, a theoretical consultant at the laboratory, also said last night there were indications Sputnik was losing altitude. On a recent pass over Washington, he added, the satellite's altitude was estimated at 147 miles.

Most previous estimates have had the orbit ranging from 170 miles up to about 560 miles.

"Based on its altitude, the way it looks at the moment the satellite might burn out in a week," he said. "It most probably will disintegrate and burn

Tale of Worry Over President's Going South Is Branded 'Junk'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP) —The White House yesterday labeled as "a lot of junk" a published report that Secret Service agents would be happy if President Eisenhower were to forego his annual fall vacation at Augusta, Ga.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty was asked at a press conference about the report in the New York Herald Tribune which said:

"Passions unloosed in the South over the integration issue, especially over President Eisenhower's dispatch of troops to Little Rock, are not being ignored by the Secret Service, which protects the President's life.

"Agents would be happy if Mr. Eisenhower would cancel his annual Thanksgiving vacation in Augusta, Ga. He won't, of course, so the Secret Service will be more alert than ever."

Hagerty was asked by Albert Riley, Washington correspondent for the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution whether the Secret Service actually does wish the President would not visit Augusta.

Hagerty replied that he had never heard of any such Secret Service concern, and then added: "I think the story is a lot of junk."

REDS OFFER FORCES TO AID IN SUPPRESSING ANY ASSAULT

Gromyko Makes Declaration After Arab Nation Calls for Inquiry on Border Situation.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 16 (AP)—The Soviet Union today called on the United Nations to stop an alleged plot by "ruling circles" in the United States and Turkey to attack Syria late this month. It announced readiness to furnish Soviet forces to help suppress such an attack.

The Soviet declaration was made by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko a few hours after Syria had urged an immediate U.N. investigation of the "intolerably dangerous" situation along the Turkish-Syrian border.

Syria said that the massing of Turkish troops near the frontier "presages an imminent attack."

(In Amman, meanwhile, Jordan declared full support to Syria in the event of an attack.

(Officials announced that King Hussein, in the presence of Prime Minister Hashem and Foreign Minister Rifai, summoned the Turkish, American and British ambassadors and explained Jordan's attitude concerning the possibility of a military attack on Syria.

(Hussein made clear that "any such attack would be considered an attack on all Arab states," the officials said.

(Hussein asked the three diplomats to convey Jordan's opinion concerning this to their governments. Later Hussein received diplomats of Iraq, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Syria, and explained Jordan's attitude similararly.

(Jordan security authorities meanwhile ordered that all persons, Jordanians or foreign, must obtain a police permit in order to leave Jordan. The new measure is aimed at controlling movements of suspected persons.)

A spokesman for the United States delegation quickly asserted that the United States would welcome consideration of the Middle East situation by the Assembly.

"A prompt investigation of the developments should help to ease tensions as well as clarify who it is that threatens peace in the area," he declared.

Britain's Sir Pierson Dixon called the Syrian action "one of a series of moves in the cold war."

Syria's call for urgent action by the U.N. was made by its Foreign Minister, Salah Bitar, who charged that there existed "threats to the security of Syria and to international peace."

Delegates Surprised.

The Syrian move took U.N. delegates by surprise. Turkish Delegate Seyfullah Esin went into a quick huddle with his advisers.

The action here followed a sharp deterioration of the situation in the last few days. In Damascus yesterday, the Syrian Foreign Ministry summoned foreign diplomats and presented a declaration that Turkey intends to "launch a premeditated action against Syria."

Earlier Egyptian reinforcements had arrived in Syria.

Turkey handed a letter to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarksjold yesterday accussing the Syrian Government of echoing Soviet propaganda attacks on the Turkish Government.

Turkish Ambassador Esin denied Syrian charges that troop movements in Turkey were of a threatening nature. Turkish defense measures, he said, "constitute an internal matter and do not call for comments by anyone from the outside."

He said recent developments in Syria demonstrate "that Turkey has valid reasons for feeling concerned."

In today's letter, the Syrian Foreign Minister asked Assembly President Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand to call an urgent meeting of the Assembly's steering committee.

Charges Foreign Meddling.

In an accompanying memorandum, Bitar charged that foreign activities aim at overthrowing the Syrian government. He did not say who was behind these activities. Russia and Syria have accused the United States of fomenting a Turkish attack.

"It is evident," Bitar said, "that the security and independence of Syria are being endangered.

"Serious international frictions have developed. A war

RED SATELLITE DIMS HOPES OF TAX REDUCTION, NIXON DECLARES

Nation's Military Strength Must Take Priority Over Budget, Vice President Asserts.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 (AP)—Vice President Richard Nixon said last night America's reaction to the Russian satellite should be to resolve that military strength takes priority over tax cuts. The satellite launching may serve the cause of freedom, Nixon said, "if only we react strongly and intelligently to its implications."

"Let us resolve once and for all that the absolute necessity of maintaining our superiority in military strength must always take priority over the understandable desire to reduce our taxes," he said.

This word from the No. 2 man in the Eisenhower Administration added strength to the views of many Congress members that prospects for a tax cut in the 1958 session are rapidly dimming in the wake of Sputnik.

"Militarily the Soviet Union is not one bit stronger today than it was before the satellite was launched," the Vice President said in a talk, his first public comment on the satellite.

He said the free world still "remains stronger militarily than the Communist world," and could defeat any potential enemy.

But at the same time, Nixon said, "We could make no greater mistake than to brush off this event as a scientific stunt of more significance to the man in the moon than to men on earth."

Nixon said that with the satellite the Russians have "demonstrated again what we had known before—that they had developed the capacity to fire a missile a great number of miles," as well as great scientific and industrial capacity.

He said the Russians will use their "scientific triumph" in their efforts to communize Asia, Africa and any undeveloped areas elsewhere.

"If it succeeds in extending Communist rule throughout Africa and Asia, the Kremlin will have assured its victory in the battle for the world," Nixon said. Loss of resources from those two continents, he continued, would force the West "to surrender without firing a shot."

His talk was made before the International Industrial Development Conference here. Representatives of 57 nations are attending the session, aimed at boosting trade and finance among free nations of the world.

"No more dramatic incident could have occurred to remind both the Communists and the free world of the increasingly terrifying aspects of modern warfare," Nixon said.

"As that realization increases, the likelihood that any nation will risk national suicide by launching aggressive war is reduced."

At the same time, Nixon said, the Russian satellite will be "a stimulant to the cold war."

Nixon recalled that Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev has declared that the Communists would prefer to gain their objective of world domination through methods other than military conflict. He predicted an all-out Communist economic offensive.

Cites Contrast.

"The contrast between the record prosperity of Western Germany and the dismal poverty of Eastern Germany most eloquently demonstrates the superiority of a free society over the Communist system in producing the material well-being which the Communists have so long claimed as their special province," Nixon said. But he added that Communists are willing to promise anything in their efforts to win the "newly developing countries of Asia and Africa."

"Communist leaders will impose any sacrifice upon their own people in their quest for world power," he said. "And their recent scientific triumph shows, in the short run, they have the skill and resources to do what they consider important."

Nixon proposed at least a five-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, which expires June 30, 1958.

Many lawmakers have voiced increasing concern over foreign competition since the Administration successfully put through a three-year extension bill in 1955.

Nixon did not say anything about a request for additional authority to cut tariffs in the 1958 extension bill, cause of much debate in 1955.

Nixon also urged that Congress approve United States membership in the Organization for Trade Co-operation, an international body set up to promote world trade.

Mr. Eisenhower asked Congress in the 1956 and 1957 sessions to take this step, but no action resulted. Some industries which face serious competition from imports are strongly opposed to it.

The Vice President said that, "when tax revision becomes feasible," Congress also should enact the tax benefit for American companies doing business abroad which the President previously has urged.

This would give such companies a tax cut of 14 percentage points on foreign investment income, making their rate 38 per cent instead of the usual 52 per cent for corporation income taxes.

Three Attempts by U.S. to Fire Rockets to Record Altitude Fail

One Effort to Reach 4000-Mile Mark Made Before Sputnik Launching and Two Afterward.

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — The United States, in the race with the Soviet Union into space, has failed three times in attempts to shoot research rockets to a record-breaking altitude of 4000 miles.

One of the rockets failed before the Soviet Union launched man's first earth satellite Oct. 4. The two other failures have occurred since then as the Air Force put heavy pressure on the rocket project in an attempt to offset the psychological victory scored by the Russians.

The unsuccessful attempts at rocket records became known yesterday. They were part of an Air Force research program into conditions that will be encountered several thousand miles above the earth's surface. The rocket firings, which have been given the military code name Project Farside, are being conducted at Eniwetok Island in the Pacific.

Six rocket firings have been scheduled this fall at Eniwetok. The first three, fired in the last month, fell far short of the planned maximum altitude of 4000 miles.

For the last several days efforts to get the Air Force to comment on the unsuccessful firings had been turned aside, but today the Associated Press quoted the Air Force as saying four attempts have been made to launch research rockets from balloons out to 4000 miles, but adverse weather conditions foiled each effort.

The Air Force said: "The attempts have not been successful primarily due to unfavorable atmospheric conditions. No malfunctions have occurred in the rockets involved.

"In each case the extremely low temperatures encountered at high altitudes have had adverse effects on the ballon, with the result that the rockets have not been properly positioned to achieve the desired results. In two cases the rockets were fired in the hope of obtaining some useful data even though it was known they would not achieve the desired altitudes. In the other two cases the rockets were not fired.

"Under the original program of six rockets, two remain in place at Eniwetok and will be launched when atmospheric conditions become more favorable.")

Project Farside was under way long before the Soviet Union successfully launched its satellite. Since the Soviet Sputnik started circling the earth, the project has picked up impetus and official support.

Nearly perfect weather conditions are necessary. The rockets are carried 100,000 feet into the air by large balloons before being fired. Moisture or adverse winds can upset the firing plans.

The rockets have four stages, with a combination of 10 rocket engines. They are able to attain greater altitude and speed than if fired from the ground through the dense air surrounding the earth.

Predicts Test Firing of Rockets Over U.S. Cities.

WHITE SANDS PROVING GROUND, N. M., Oct. 16 (AP)—The commanding general of White Sands proving ground missile test center has predicted that future testing may call for firing of rockets over United States cities.

Maj. Gen. W. E. Laidlaw told about 200 base visitors and reporters last night that, because of safety measures, there would be no more danger from the rockets than there now is from warplanes.

The visitors, including military and civilian officials, had gathered at this southern New Mexico base yesterday for a ceremony which turned over the Talos Defense Unit to the Army for testing.

The huge unit, first developed as a naval ship-to-air defense weapon, was perfected at White Sands by the Radio Corp. of America and was presented to the Army jointly by R.C.A. and the Navy.

A later field demonstration of the Talos missile fizzled when a booster mechanism failed shortly after the weapon was fired.

The Talos, officials explained before the demonstration, is a completely automatic defense unit. It is capable, electronically, of locating an enemy target—missile or aircraft—in the air 100 or more miles away. On location of the target, the Talos computes the course of the enemy, corrects, loads a missile and fires it.

Yesterday's projected target was a remote-control "drone" B-17 bomber of World War II vintage, flying at an altitude of 20,000 feet and about 25 miles distant from the unit.

As the visitors watched from a distance of about 300 yards, the Talos defense unit zeroed in on the bomber, selected a 30-foot missile, loaded it and fired it.

However, four seconds after the firing pieces of metal were seen spewing from the rocket booster at a height of about 4000 feet. The weapon was put out of operation immediately and the missile crashed on the range.

A second scheduled firing was canceled because of time conditions.

SOCIALISTS SNUB KHRUSHCHEV BID TO BACK SYRIA

Soviet Chief Seeks West European Alliance Against U.S.-Turkish 'Threat.'

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Leaders of western Europe's socialists turned a cold shoulder today to Nikita S. Khrushchev's invitation for an alliance against alleged United States-Turkish threats to attack Syria.

Writing as the Soviet Communist party chief, Khrushchev sent almost identical letters to seven West European Socialist parties. He declared "imperialist western oil companies" created the Syrian crisis and that the United States and Turkey threaten aggression.

Syria would not be left to defend itself alone if it were attacked, Khrushchev said as he called for the Socialists to work with the Communists for Middle East peace.

Socialist leaders in and out of power received the overture cooly.

British Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell hurried to No. 10 Downing street to talk with Conservative Prime Minister Macmillan. Gaitskell then sent Russia a note saying that it should go to the United Nations if it wished to argue its charges.

The London Daily Herald, the Labor party newspaper, described the Khrushchev appeal as insincere and objected to its being made over the heads of governments to opposition parties.

Reactions also were unfavorable in Norway and Denmark, which have Socialist governments.

Danish Socialists withheld full comment until the party's executive committee could meet. A party statement said the Danish Socialists in the past had "unreservedly condemned any aggression—including the attack by North Korea, the Suez action and the Soviet intervention in Hungary."

Norwegian Socialists said they had rejected the Russian bid because the party did not want to conduct foreign policy independently of the government.

Dutch Labor party sources described the Khrushchev appeal as "pure propaganda reflecting the well known Soviet views on the Middle East."

HEALTH SERVICE PLANNING TO MONITOR RADIOACTIVITY

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (UP)—The United States Public Health Service has launched a broad-scale program to monitor radioactivity of surface waters, the air and milk supplies, it was disclosed today.

Because of the rapid development of nuclear power plants and other peace-time atomic installations "interest is growing in routine monitoring for radioactivity," according to a paper presented to the annual convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

The program envisages the setting up of 50 sampling stations in co-operation with state and local agencies to keep a close check on the presence of radioactive waste, the report said.

TEAMSTERS MAY STAY IN AFL-CIO UNDER RECEIVER

Possibility Raised Federation Might Not Suspend Union If Court Names One.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—The possibility was raised today that the Teamsters Union may escape a threatened AFL-CIO suspension if a court-appointed receiver is put in charge of the union.

James R. Hoffa has been elected president of the union, succeeding Dave Beck. But his plans to take over the 1,500,000-member organization right away may have been stopped by a federal court order.

The court order remains in effect pending a hearing Monday before United States District Judge F. Dickinson Letts on the legality of the convention which elected Hoffa. The court has been asked to name a receiver to take charge of the union temporarily.

Beck to Stay On.

Beck announced that because of the court challenge to Hoffa's election, Beck will not step aside now as Teamsters president. The announcement was made through Teamster's headquarters in Washington. Beck was reported back at his West Coast home in Seattle.

Although Beck's term runs until Dec. 1, he had announced he would step out whenever Hoffa wished, so the 44-year-old Hoffa could take over right away.

Sources in the AFL-CIO said it is unlikely to make much difference to the powerful AFL-CIO executive council, when it meets to deal with the Teamsters situation on Oct. 24, whether Beck or Hoffa is nominally the union's boss.

With either man as Teamsters president, the council led by AFL-CIO President George Meany is expected to suspend the Teamsters from AFL-CIO membership and recommend that the AFL-CIO convention next December expel the federation's largest affiliate.

Both Hoffa and Beck have been formally labeled by the AFL-CIO council as corrupt and unfit to remain in organized labor. This decision was based on testimony involving both men developed before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

But the AFL-CIO council might postpone suspension if the court took the union's affairs out of the hands of Beck and Hoffa and put them under direction of a court-named receiver charged with running a clean union.

Judge Letts will consider the receivership request at the hearing next Monday. He is to decide then, after a hearing, whether to convert the present restraining order against Hoffa's taking office into a preliminary injunction.

No Immediate Appeal.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Teamsters attorneys have decided against going to a higher court to try to upset Judge Letts's restraining order.

They are basing their hopes on next's Monday's hearing, hoping the plaintiff New York Teamsters members will be unable to prove their charges that delegates to the Teamsters' convention were hand-picked to assure Hoffa's election. In that case they expect Judge Letts to drop his order against Hoffa.

The Teamsters attorneys were to file their answer in the case in court today.

Should Judge Letts issue an injunction Monday and name a receiver, the Teamsters attorneys then plan an immediate appeal to a higher court.

Hoffa pleaded not guilty in New York yesterday to five counts of perjury before a federal grand jury in connection with wiretap conspiracy charges against him. Trial dates in both the perjury and wiretap cases are to be announced on Oct. 25.

Plea for Trial Delay.

Hoffa's attorney, Sol Gelb, arguing for indefinite postponement of the trials, said Hoffa could not get fair trials at this time. Gelb said the Senate committee "was doing everything in its power to make him (Hoffa) an outlaw, doing what it can to destroy the defendant."

He said the committee was trying to picture Hoffa "as an associate of gangsters and a very evil man who should be driven from the American scene."

The committee has said it will call Hoffa for further questioning, but Paul W. Williams, United States attorney for the Southern district of New York, said he will seek to have any such questioning delayed until the court cases are disposed of.

In reply to Gelb, however, he denied that Hoffa's trial would be clouded by any prejudicial atmosphere.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell predicted, meanwhile, the "eventual destruction of Jimmy Hoffa" in any showdown fight with the AFL-CIO.

Replying to a question after addressing the Union League Club in New York, Mitchell said that would have to be the result "because if legitimate trade unionism is to survive, and it must survive, racketeers and hoodlums have got to be ousted."

In another New York development, Beck has appointed a receiver for six phantom locals of the union dominated by racketeers Johnny Dio and Anthony (Tony Ducks) Corallo. The locals' officers have been stripped of all official duties.

Britain Seeks Closer Ties With U.S. in Scientific Field

Lloyd and Dulles Hold 3-Hour Conference on World Problems, Including Soviet Sputnik.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had a 3-hour, 40-minute conference with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd yesterday on Soviet relations, Middle East tensions, European problems and the problem of the Soviet sputnik.

Lloyd said after the meeting that British policy would assure a "ready response" to any suggestions for closer co-operation with the United States in the scientific field. Britain has long favored greater sharing of information and scientific skills in development of nuclear weapons particularly.

But Lloyd said he made no specific proposal to Dulles for action, and added "the whole matter needs further thought."

Lloyd said Dulles and he talked about the Soviet satellite and its political implication but not "at any great length."

Lloyd called the Soviet launching of the space sphere a "considerable scientific achievement" and said he thought that it makes scientific co-operation among the Western allies more urgent than before, especially when considered in conjunction with Russia's earlier announcement of the successful firing of an intercontinental missile.

But he declared that "the importance of Sputnik could be exaggerated from a military point of view."

Dulles also conferred with President Eisenhower yesterday.

Both Lloyd and Dulles, the latter through a spokesman, said that there was nothing of an emergency nature about their meeting and that it was arranged two weeks ago. Lloyd came to the United States to serve as one of the ministers in attendance to the British Queen during her visit here.

In response to questions about Egypt's sending troops to Syria, Lloyd said:

"I shouldn't think its military significance is very great. It has certain political significance. I shouldn't think it was of a nature to reduce tension in the area. Its importance could be exaggerated."

ANGER IN U.N. OVER RED REBUFF TO PRINCE WAN

U.S. Considers Retaliatory Move to Bar Hungary From World Organization.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 16 (AP)—The refusal of the Moscow and Budapest regimes to see the special United Nations representative on Hungary built up pressure today for sterner measures to back up the General Assembly's demands.

Many delegates voiced indignation over the Red rebuff to Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand, charged by the Assembly to seek compliance with the U.N. call for withdrawal of Soviet troops from Hungary.

The United States was understood to be considering a move to reject the credentials of the Communist Hungarian Government — a move which would block it from the U.N.

Hungarian Foreign Minister Imre Horvath brought the issue to a head this week when he told a reporter his government would not see Prince Wan either as U.N. agent or Thailand's foreign minister.

Prince Wan himself insists the door is still open to talks and says he will keep on trying to set up an interview in either Red capital. The general feeling here is that the Assembly's attempt to back up its resolutions has wound up a dismal failure.

Many felt Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko doomed the project more than a week ago when he told Prince Wan the Kremlin has nothing to discuss on Hungary.

Any move to bar Hungary from the U. N. faces difficulties. Many diplomats who oppose the Communists still object to setting a precedent whereby the U.N. could screen out any delegation that displeased other members.

Even the heat generated by last year's Red suppression of the Hungarian freedom bid failed to unseat the Horvath delegation.

Instead the credentials committee, which acts in such matters, withheld action on Hungary's credentials. It has done the same this year as part of a Western move to keep the Reds on tenterhooks until Prince Wan could complete his mission.

There was considerable doubt in U. N. circles, however, that the United States or any other power could persuade the committee to reject outright any delegation's credentials.

WENZELL SAYS 3 DIXON-YATES TRIPS WERE PAID FOR BY HIS FIRM

Key Figure in Scandal Testifies He Represented Self as Budget Bureau Aid at Contract Talks.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct 16 — Adolphe H. Wenzell, a key figure in the Dixon-Yates scandal, testified today that his New York investment firm paid his travel expenses to three early meetings at which the power contract was discussed, but that he represented himself at the meetings as an employe of the Bureau of the Budget.

Before one of the negotiating sessions, Wenzell related, the then Deputy Director of the Budget Bureau, Rowland R. Hughes, urged him to "use what influence I had" with J. Wesley McAfee, president of Union Electric Co. of St. Louis, and Edgar H. Dixon, president of Middle South Utilities, Inc.

Dixon's firm was one of the partners in the now-discredited scheme to feed private power into the Tennessee Valley Authority system over the bitter objections of TVA and its supporters. McAfee took part in the early negotiations that led to the contract.

Government's Defense.

Wenzell was the first witness as the government began presentation of its defense against a suit in which the Dixon-Yates combine is seeking damages totaling $1,893,586 from the government. The suit was prompted by President Eisenhower's cancellation of the power contract.

Under questioning, Wenzell told Commissioner Wilson Cowen of the United States court of Claims that he attended meetings in Washington on Jan. 18, 19 and 20, 1954, at the invitation of Hughes, who is now dead. Previously, Wenzell had prepared a study of TVA for the Budget Bureau.

His firm, First Boston Corp. of New York, an investment banking house, took a leading part in arranging the debt financing for Mississippi Valley Generating Co., the Dixon-Yates subsidiary set up to build a 600,000-kilowatt steam-generating plant at West Memphis, Ark., across the Mississippi river from Memphis, Tenn.

At the three January meetings, Wenzell considered himself a representative of the Budget Bureau, since he had been employed by the bureau in 1953 to make the TVA study and since Hughes had asked him early in January to do some more work for the bureau, Wenzell testified.

He acknowledged, however, that his expenses in Washington and his travel costs to and from New York were paid by First Boston, of which he was then a vice president and director handling underwriting for private utilities and other First Boston clients.

AEC Visitor's Card.

Questioning by Saul R. Gamer, Department of Justice attorney handling the Government's defense, brought out also that on Jan. 19 and 20, when Wenzell attended meetings at the Atomic Energy Commission, he listed himself as affiliated with First Boston, in filling out AEC entrance cards required of visitors.

Referring to the second meeting at the AEC, when Wenzell had again listed First Boston Corp. as his affiliation, Gamer asked: "Whom did you represent at this meeting?" Wenzell replied: "The Budget Bureau."

Wenzell's alleged conflict of interest in working for the Budget Bureau while continuing in his salaried job at First Boston has been cited by the AEC as its ground for refusing to reimburse Dixon-Yates for money already spent on the project.

Through a complicated "replacement power" arrangement, the power from the Dixon-Yates steam plant ostensibly was to be for the AEC, although it actually would have been used by TVA to supply the city of Memphis. TVA's supporters contended the deal was a device to cut back TVA by making it impossible for the authority to build a new steam plant of its own to meet AEC power requirements.

Request on Influence.

Wenzell, now a financial assistant to the Director of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, testified that Dixon and McAfee were at the meetings at the AEC. He said Hughes, who later became Budget Director, asked him to "use what influence I had" with the two utility executives "to impress upon them that time was of the essence" in formulating the power contract.

When Gamer asked him what "influence" he had, Wenzell, speaking in a low voice, replied: "I may have used the wrong word there." He explained that Hughes and AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss told him they were anxious for the contract to be formulated as quickly as possible.

Union Electric Co. was not a party to the contract. The subsidiary, Mississippi Valley Generating Co., was set up by Dixon's firm and the Southern Co., then headed by Eugene A. Yates.

Strauss, who met with Wenzell on Jan. 18, told Wenzell he was "anxious that the fullest consideration be given to the proposal submitted by the two utility companies," the witness related. He added that Strauss told him he did not want a contract that would take "months" to execute.

In 1953, while he was preparing the TVA study, Joseph M. Dodge, then Budget Director, had informed him that he wanted to delete from the President's budget, then in preparation, the funds for a new TVA steam generating plant and that "to do this we would have to get a new arrangement," Wenzell said.

Much of the morning session was devoted to discussion of exhibits. John T. Cahill, attorney for Mississippi Valley Generating Co., the plaintiff, raised frequent objections to Gamer's questions of Wenzell. Presentation of the Government's case is expected to take about two weeks.

Discussing Plans for Riverfront

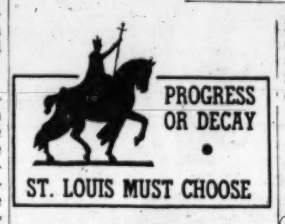
Further Study Will Be Made On Revised Plan for Riverfront

Decision on Track Relocation at Memorial Site Delayed Until Nov. 15— Mayor Cites Progress.



Efforts to reach an agreement on a revised plan for relocation of railroad tracks in front of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial on the Mississippi riverfront were delayed today until Nov. 15, to provide time for additional studies of engineering problems and costs.

Following a 45-minute meeting of representatives of the Terminal Railroad Association, Missouri Pacific Lines, city officials and representatives of the National Park Service, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said the postponement was necessary because there had been a delay in submitting detailed plans to the railroads and the city.

Because of this, he said, additional time will be necessary to make the needed detailed studies of engineering feasibility and costs of the proposed new track relocation proposal.

Working Progress Cited.

"These plans will be carefully studied by the city and the railroads within the next 10 days for the purpose of determining precise engineering requirements and cost estimates," Tucker said.

"After those studies are completed, the National Park Service will consider the analyses of the city and the railroads, and an effort will be made to reach a common agreement on cost and engineering needs.

"All persons concerned with this question feel that real working progress is being made, and that continued cooperative action will be possible."

The revised track relocation plan had been announced Oct. 2 by Eero Saarinen, Detroit architect, whose original plan for the memorial won a nationwide contest for development of the riverfront area east of the Old Courthouse.

Short Tunnels, Open Cuts.

Under the original proposal, which the railroads opposed, the tracks would have been placed in a 3000-foot tunnel at an estimated cost of $14,000,000.

Representatives of the Terminal Railroad Association at today's meeting were Armstrong Chinn, president; George Mueller, general counsel; Elwood Davis, vice president and general manager; Arthur K. Atkinson, president of Wabash Railway and member of the Terminal's executive committee, and U. C. Hanna.

The Missouri Pacific was represented by Russell L. Dearmont, president, and H. M. Johnson and R. P. Hart, vice presidents.

Also attending were George F. Baggley of Omaha, regional chief of operations, National Park Service; Dick Sutton of the Park Service; Julian Spotts, superintendent of the memorial; F. G. Stickel, representing Saarinen; City Counselor James V. Frank and Associate City Counselor Forrest Ferris.

DULLES PICKS NAGEL AS AN ARTS ADVISER

St. Louisan Put on Board to Consider World Cultural Programs.

Charles Nagel, director of the City Art Museum, has been appointed a member of the federal Advisory Committee on the Arts, it was announced by Secretary of State Dulles at Washington today.

The framework of the committee was created by Congress last year to advise President Eisenhower, Secretary Dulles and several government agencies on this country's international cultural programs.

Rufus H. Fitzgerald, chancellor emeritus of the University of Pittsburgh, is chairman of the group.

The other members of the committee are: Actor Robert Montgomery, Mr. Eisenhower's television aid; novelist James Robert Michener, author of the Pulitzer prize-winning "Tales of the South Pacific" and other novels; Gilmore Clark, landscape architect, New York; Sumner McKnight Crosby, Art historian, Yale University; Lamar Dodd, artist, University of Georgia; Thor Johnson, musician and orchestra conductor, Cincinnati; George Murphy, actor, Beverly Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Helen Crocker Russell, civic leader and art patron, San Francisco.

The committee is distinct from the proposed but never established federal Advisory Council on the Arts, which has been advocated for the purpose of supporting artistic activities in this country.

SECOND SCHOOL HERE IS CLOSED BECAUSE OF FLU

High school and primary departments at Sacred Heart Academy, 334 North Taylor avenue, are closed today because about 50 per cent of the pupils have mild influenza.

St. Louis University High School also is closed for the same reason and other schools in the city and St. Louis county reported high absenteeism.

The high school department at Sacred Heart Academy was closed Monday and will reopen tomorrow. Primary school classes were discontinued yesterday, until next Monday. There are several hundred students in each group in the academy.

Wilbur Noltensmeyer Named.

Wilbur Noltensmeyer, an attorney, has been appointed assistant trust officer in the tax division of Mercantile Trust Co.'s trust department, it was announcel today. He is a graduate of St. Louis University. He lives at 5309 Geraldine avenue.

MISSOURI STATE AUDITOR TO CHECK BERKELEY BOOKS

An audit of the books of Berkeley will be made by the office of Missouri State Auditor Haskell Holman as soon as possible, Councilman Herman Bluestone announced yesterday.

Bluestone said the audit would cover a three-year period and would get under way in 30 to 60 days.

The audit was requested in petitions signed by 310 Berkeley residents led by Bluestone after a majority in the city council rejected his contention that current annual audits were not sufficiently detailed.

Bluestone said he was not prompted by any suspicion of fraud but only by the belief that when the city government changed from the mayor-aldermen type to a city manager form last April, there should have been an audit of the books up to that point.

WOMAN, 3-YEAR-OLD BOY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Two persons were injured seriously last night when they were struck by an automobile at Broadway and Sidney street, where the driver reportedly failed to observe a stop sign.

Mrs. Ann Hutchcraft, 420 Sidney street, and her 3-year-old nephew, Stanley Lashley, were taken to City Hospital with head injuries. Stanley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lashley, 2429 South Third street.

Kenneth Swinford, 2860A South Jefferson avenue, the driver, was booked suspected of careless driving and failure to observe the stop. He told police he was unaware a stop was required and did not see the sign.

ST. LOUIS TO USE NALLINE DRUG ADDICTION TEST

Eagleton Announces Plan After It Is Explained by Oakland (Calif.) Officials.

Use of a drug called nalline to combat drug addiction will be inaugurated in St. Louis, Circuit Attorney Thomas F. Eagleton announced today at the conclusion of a visit of officials from Oakland, Calif., who said the test has been used successfully there.

"The Police Board and I were so tremendously impressed we feel we can go ahead and inaugurate the nalline program here," Eagleton told a reporter.

"In their visit, these experts from California appeared before groups of all kinds, including leading criminal defense lawyers in St. Louis.

"Although many interesting and piercing questions were asked, at no time was there any wholesale or deep opposition to the nalline program.

Eagleton said the first step toward beginning use of the drug here will be to send two physicians to spend a week to 10 days with Dr. James Terry, medical director of Alameda county, Calif., to obtain first-hand information on how the test is administered.

Dr. Terry was one of five West Coast officials who came here at the invitation of Eagleton and H. Sam Priest, Police Board president, for a series of conferences with representatives of all agencies interested in the narcotics problem.

The two physicians to be sent to California to study the nalline program will include a man whose specialty is internal medicine and a psychiatrist, Eagleton said.

After their return, a supply of nalline, a drug officially known as N-Allylnormorphine, will be obtained and the tests begun, the circuit attorney stated.

The testing will be conducted at Police Headquarters or in the Municipal Courts building, Eagleton said. At the start, some assistance may be given by Washington University's ophthalmology department at McMillan Hospital, since an examination of eyes is an essential part of the test, he explained.

Before returning to California today, Dr. Terry visited the ophthalmology department and inspected equipment there. At the same time, he explained to physicians how examination of a suspect's eyes permits a positive finding of drug addiction.

The nalline test is reported to disclose some symptoms of narcotics addiction within 10 minutes, depending upon the condition of the suspect at the time the test is administered.

If the person tested has not taken drugs, the pupils of the eyes will shrink. If there is addiction, an immediate dilation of the pupils will result.

Eagleton said he is convinced that results of the nalline test are legally admissible as evidence in criminal cases provided the defendant voluntarily consents to the test. Under a new Missouri law, drug addiction is punishable as a felony.

Consent to Be Asked.

Before a suspect is given the test, he will be asked to sign a consent form, in which the phraseology will be somewhat different from that used by California authorities, the circuit attorney stated.

Two policemen will be required to sign their names as witnesses to the suspect's signature and, as an added precaution to protect the defendant's rights, the physician who administers the test will also attest to the consent form, Eagleton observed.

The West Coast officials, who arrived here Monday, explained all aspects of the nalline program last night at a dinner at Hotel Chase attended by judges, lawyers, physicians and parole authorities.

Questions asked the visitors were similar to inquiries received in their earlier appearances before lawyer groups, the circuit court grand jury, city officials, the Police Board and ranking police department officers.

Those who came here, in addition to Dr. Terry, were Police Chief Wyman Vernon of Oakland, Sgt. Ted Hilliard of the Oakland Police Department, Assistant District Attorney Al Hederman of Alameda county and Fred L. Braumoeller, a special agent for the California Department of Narcotic Control.

research-minded," she said. It was only recently, she added, that this government was persuaded to put a few million dollars into cancer research. In Russia, on the other hand, there are at least 12 research institutes in operation in the field of forestry alone, she said.

After her assembly talk Mrs. Roosevelt spoke to a group of students in the Women's Building on the campus. She said she had received a strong impression that the Russians were attempting to stamp out the Jewish religion and culture.

Asked whether she thought Americans would ever embrace socialism, she pointed to the Post Office as a form of socialism and suggested there would be some modifications of the capitalist system in the next 50 years "but no revolution so long as our people have the opportunity and the hopes they now have," she added.

NEW INTERSTATE ROAD WOULD USE OZARK ROUTE

Highway to Memphis Would Branch From Expressway in County.

A tentative location for about 15.4 miles of the proposed new Interstate Route 55, extending from about Twelfth street and Gravois avenue to the Meramec river at a point just west of the present crossing of Lemay Ferry road, was announced today by the Missouri State Highway Commission. Estimated cost is $47,000,000.

For a large part of its route from Twelfth and Gravois, the new segment of the national highway network coincides with the proposed route of the Ozark Expressway as it is now designated by the Highway Commission.

However, at a point near Green Park and Union roads in southern St. Louis county, the two routes diverge. The Ozark route turns west at this point for an ultimate junction with U.S. Highway 66 at Sylvan Beach on the Meramec river.

Interstate Route 55 continues in a southwest direction across the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks and Lindbergh boulevard, crossing St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad tracks and extending southwest to the Meramec, generally parallel to but west of Lemay Ferry road.

"Approval of the tentative location for this segment of the Interstate System route has been given by the commission at this time both as an economy measure and as an aid to local area residents," the Highway Commission said.

"By planning the road and acquiring the rights of way at an early date it will be easier for the residential and commercial developments to be fitted into the highway pattern. The move will be more economical for the commission since rights of way can be required before any land needed is further developed."

No date for start of construction was given. Route 55 will connect St. Louis with Memphis, Tenn.

Queen in U.S.

ginia, where a reception and dinner were scheduled.

The Queen's last full day in Canada was a busy one, climaxed last night by a reception for more than 1300 persons and a formal dinner party for 20 given by Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker.

Handshaking Workout.

The Queen's right hand and arm got a vigorous workout at yesterday's reception. The announced guest list had 1342 names but reporters guessed nearer 2000 persons showed up. That made the most hands the Queen has clasped at one affair since a reception in Washington in 1951 when she was a princess.

Wearing a cocktail dress in beige and gold brocade with a full, circular skirt, Elizabeth shook hands for more than 80 minutes. It was good preparation for a scheduled reception in Washington for the press corps, to which about 2400 have been invited.

As the guests came in, aids cautioned them in a whisper: "Easy on the handshaking—the Queen is a bit tired—don't shake hands too hard."

Among Cabinet ministers, military leaders and other officials, the guests included nine Indian chiefs. They represented each of Canada's 10 provinces except Prince Edward Island, whose chief was sick. They turned up in business suits.

Makes Smiling Exit.

After she had finished welcoming the guests, Elizabeth walked slowly through the crowd, smiled and made her exit.

She changed into an evening gown of white tulle embroidered in cascades of silver and gold, for the family style dinner party at the Prime Minister's residence. With it she wore the V-shaped necklace of diamonds and rubies and matching earrings her parents gave her for a wedding gift.

In his toast at the end of dinner, Diefenbaker presented the royal couple with a gift from the government, an oil painting of the Parliament buildings by Robert Pilot of Montreal.

For the flight today, Elizabeth chose still another new costume— a tailored, slate gray wool suit by Norman Hartnell with a full matching jacket lined and collared with beaver and a close-fitting feather hat of pink-mauve.

up, depending on its design and altitude."

The naval consultant said in an interview that electromagnetic forces might possibly explain variations in Sputnik's orbit which have baffled some scientists.

Sputnik apparently still was maintaining its speed of about 18,000 miles an hour as it circled the earth, accompanied by a section of its carrier rocket and a protective nose cone.

Khrushchev Hints at No Warning for Second 'Moon.'

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (AP) — Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev indicated last night the Soviets might launch their second satellite without giving the Western world any advance warning.

Asked by a reporter when his country would put another sphere into space, the Red official replied:

"That's a decision for the government to make, and I'm not the government. You will be able to write about it when it's launched."

Asked at a reception in the Afghan Embassy what he thought of Sputnik, Khrushchev replied:

"It's a good thing if you look at it from the right point of view—from the point of view of progress and the development of science."

Khrushchev said he could not guess how long Sputnik would stay aloft.

Spy Case

his defection to the free world last May, a prelude to Abel's arrest and indictment last Aug. 7.

Hayhanen said Abel returned from a visit to Moscow in July 1956, and expressed dissatisfaction because Hayhanen had not followed a suggestion that he set up a photographic shop in Newark, N.J., as a cover for his operations.

Abel, he said, told him he might as well go to Moscow for a vacation. Hayhanen said he left the United States last April, went to Paris, walked into the American embassy last May 4 or May 6, and "explained I am Russian espionage officer with rank of lieutenant colonel."

"I have some information I like to give American officials," Hayhanen quoted himself as adding.

He said he was flown here last May 11 to tell his story to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Hayhanen's second day of testimony also dealt with contacts he claimed he and Abel maintained with other Red agents in this country.

The witness identified one of these as Roy Rhodes, whose code name, he said, was "Quebec."

Hayhanen said he took a trip to Salida, Colo., at Abel's direction, failed to locate Rhodes, but found he had a mail address in Tucson, Ariz.

The list of government witnesses filed with the clerk of the court includes a Sgt. Roy A. Rhodes, whose service address is given as Fort Myer, Va., and his home address as Eatontown, N.J.

Placed in exhibit before the jury was a short wave radio that Hayhanen said Abel gave him. Another exhibit was a hollowed-out German coin which the witness said was a type used by Abel to hide microfilm.

posed embargo of arms to Middle East countries and he would not go further than the communique issued at the conclusion of the talk.

At some length Dulles responded to a question on a possible "agreement" with the Soviets and why it was so difficult to reach any agreement. He said Moscow's objective since the end of World War II had been for a direct United States-Soviet deal for an "overlordship" of the world and the United States had consistently rejected that kind of agreement.

No Meeting of the Minds.

"An agreement," Dulles said, "means a meeting of minds. And we have seen that it is not possible to have a meeting of minds with the Soviets. Take the summit conference as an example.

"There the four powers agreed to a unification of Germany by free elections. But the Soviets almost immediately repudiated this. There was no meeting of minds.

"We do not believe in interfering in the internal affairs of other governments. So we ask them whether what they did in Hungary was an interference with internal affairs of that country and they say no, of course, it was not. There is no meeting of minds."

Asked if the recent Soviet warning to Turkey might be a pretext to cover impending action against Russia's neighbor, Dulles replied in the affirmative. He said that this was the techniques used in Korea when the North Koreans accused the South Koreans of preparing an attack.

Repeated Attacks.

Repeatedly, Dulles said, the Soviet Union has attacked Turkey. This began immediately after the war with a demand to share responsibility for control of the Dardanelles through which Russia has access to the Mediterranean, and the attacks were stepped up when Turkey joined the North Atlantic Treaty alliance.

"There has been a constant effort to dominate Turkey," Dulles said. "At times, however, they have alternated the stick with the carrot."

The Secretary said he was accustomed to being a target of Soviet attack, pointing out that when he went to Moscow for a Big Four conference in 1947 one of the Soviet propaganda organs had just concluded a hostile series of articles on him. He spoke of critical cartoons in the Communist humorous magazine Krokodil, adding with a smile that these things did not bother him.

Party Actions Disclaimed.

He pointed to the difficulties of dealing with the Russians when Khrushchev stated as he did the other day that he was not the head of the government but the head of the Communist party. The power behind the Soviet government is, Dulles added, the Communist party, but the government can disclaim the actions of the party.

This is what happened, according to Dulles, when Maxim Litvinov, the then Foreign Minister, came to Washington in 1933 to negotiate the resumption of relations with Russia for the first time since 1917. The agreement signed with President Roosevelt stipulated no interference in the eternal affairs of either country but this did not cover the Communist party, Dulles pointed out.

Toward the end of the conference Dulles was asked if we were "at the brink" again. This was a reference to the magazine article in which he claimed that his skill was in taking America to the brink of war and then pulling back. The question brought laughter in which the Secretary joined.

"There have always been wars in the world," he said, smiling although his face reddened in embarrassment, "I believe it is correct that there have been on the average three wars every five years. If we are conscious of the danger, then I believe we shall have a greater possibility of avoiding it."

Dulles-'Moon'

and to forego a possible tax cut, Dulles said he was not competent to comment. He noted the security budget, including foreign aid as well as military spending at home, amounts to more than forty billion dollars a year, which he termed quite a sum.

But if that is not enough, Dulles said, then we must have more; security has to come first.

In giving general views on the significance of the Sputnik and on Russia's announcement that it had fired an intercontinental ballistic missile successfully, Dulles noted the Soviet Union started to work intensively on guided missiles in 1945 after capturing German scientists at the Nazi establishments in Peenemunde.

He observed that when he was in Moscow in 1947 he saw the intensity of effort the Russians were making on missiles. The Russians have good minds, the Secretary said, pointing to traditional Russian expertness in artillery and chess. A nation of the size of the Soviet Union, governed by despotism and funneling its best brains into scientific pursuits cannot help but achieve results, he said.

Dulles recalled that two or three years ago there was a discussion in the Cabinet about whether the United States should not try to concentrate more effort on science. He said those present agreed that the United States could not become lopsided and could achieve a balanced society and still keep ahead in science.

Replying to another question, the Secretary said he favors closer co-operation with Allied governments on the exchange of scientific information, and suggested that Congress take a fresh look at a 1948 law restricting the kind of information that can be exchanged. That law was passed, he noted, when the United States had a monopoly on atomic weapons, and may be obsolete today.

The Secretary's remarks were made in answer to a request for comment on pleas for greater co-operation made recently by British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and British Defense Minister Duncan Sandys.

Variation in Comments.

Administration statements on the significance of the Sputnik have shown considerable variation. At his press conference last week President Eisenhower separated the Russian scientific achievement from its possible military significance. So far as the satellite itself is concerned, he said, "the Russian launching does not raise my apprehension one iota."

On Monday in San Francisco the assistant to the President, Sherman Adams, said there had been "wild exaggerations" about the meaning of the satellite and that the Administration was more interested in serving science than in "a high score in an outer space basketball game."

Tuesday, Vice President Richard M. Nixon said, also in San Francisco, that the launching of the satellite was "a stimulent to the cold war" and that the United States must not overlook "the tremendous military threat posed by Russian power."

While Adams laid heavy stress on the importance of a balanced budget, Nixon emphasized the importance of adequate security measures.

SAUD REPORTED ANGRY AT EGYPT

© New York Times News Service

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Oct. 16— King Saud is angry and perturbed at Egypt's unannounced dispatch of troops to Syria, according to reliable sources. This puts a new strain on relations among the Arab states.

A responsible Middle East diplomat said yesterday the Egyptian move was widely regarded in Arab circles as an effort by President Gamal Abdel Nasser to get the spotlight for himself without considering the true interests of the Arabs.

He said that from the general Arab viewpoint the Egyptian action was "outright sabotage" and "provocation to Turkey."

(The Associated Press, however, quoted King Saud's adviser, Jamal Husseini, as saying the monarch approved in advance the Egyptian troop move.

("Those reports," Husseini said, "are just nonsense, and they are being circulated by irresponsible people for the obvious purpose of stirring up trouble where no trouble exists.")

Saud ended his official visit here Monday night and went to the mountain resort of Aley for a four-day rest.

By the Associated Press.

Lebanese Foreign Minister Charles Malik called a news conference at U.N. headquarters to assure the United States his government "ranges itself unreservedly on the side of the free world." Malik denounced reports that Lebanon was considering withdrawing its support from the Eisenhower doctrine but repeated an earlier statement that Lebanon would aid Syria if the latter were attacked.

U.S. POPULATION ON SEPT. 1 ESTIMATED AT 171,790,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP) — The Census Bureau estimated the population of the United States on Sept. 1 at about 171,790,000, including the armed forces overseas.

The figure represents a rise of 20,657,000, or 13.7 per cent, since the 1950 census and a gain of 3,053,000, or 1.8 per cent, over the estimated population on Sept. 1 last year.

DR. GRANVILLE T. WALKER HEADS DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16 (AP) —A Fort Worth, (Tex.) minister and former faculty member of Texas Christian University, Dr. Granville T. Walker, today was elected president of the International Convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

Dr. Walker, minister of University Christian Church at Fort Worth, succeeds John Rogers, a Tulsa, (Okla.) layman, as head of the 2,000,000 member Protestant assembly.

Dr. Walker, 45 years old, became minister of the University Christian Church in 1943. Prior to that he was head of the department of undergraduate religion at T.C.U.

A native of Beaumont, Tex., he attended high school and Lamar college there and later attended T.C.U., University of Chicago, and Yale, where he received his doctor of philosophy degree in 1941.

DOGS SHOT TO ALTITUDE OF 142 MILES, REDS CLAIM

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (UP)— The official Soviet newspaper Red Fleet today announced the successful launching of dogs in a rocket to a height of 142 miles.

The dogs, who were sealed in globes along with instruments and cameras to record their reactions, were reported to have been in good physical condition after parachuting to earth.

The Russians have been carrying on these animal experiments for several years. The record altitude before this flight was 68 miles.

TROOPS LEAVING LITTLE ROCK, 500 MORE TO GO IN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 16 (AP)—The first planeloads of paratroopers, members of the 101st Airborne Division, who have enforced court-ordered school integration in Little Rock for the last three weeks, left today for their home base, Fort Campbell, Ky.

It is expected that about half of the 1100-man contingent will have been moved out by the end of today.

(The United Press said it is expected the rest of the contingent now on duty will leave Friday and will be replaced by 500 men from the first battle group of the 502nd Infantry, also a unit of the 101st Airborne Division).

Meantime Little Rock waited for a possible break in the six-week-old integration crisis.

Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker ordered the troop reduction Monday. He said also 8500 Arkansas National Guardsmen will be de-federalized and about 1800 will remain on duty. No guardsmen have been released from active duty yet.

The paratroopers were sent to Little Rock last month and the Guard was federalized after rioting erupted outside Central High when nine Negro students first entered.

No Recent Incidents.

For the last few weeks the six Negro girls and three boys have been escorted into the school by troops without incident.

(A youth panel discussion by both Negro and white students of Central high will be carried from 9:05 to 9:30 o'clock tonight over KSD, the Post-Dispatch radio station.)

Gov. Orval E. Faubus said yesterday the reduction in troops "doesn't change a thing. We're still occupied."

The Governor had a private conference on the integration crisis yesterday with six Little Rock business men. Both Gov. Faubus and Walter C. Guy, chairman of the group, said the talks were merely exploratory.

The business men were appointed by a committee of 25 men who recently signed a resolution condemning violence and repeating their support of law and order.

Guy said his group will report to a full committee today, but declined to say where or at what time.

Gov. Faubus and Guy were reluctant to disclose details of the meeting. Guy declined to say who else besides financier Raymond Rebsamen attended. Gov. Faubus said he could not even remember who was there.

New Law Invoked.

A new city law aimed at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was invoked by Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann against three pro-segregationist groups yesterday.

Mann has been one of the most outspoken critics of Gov. Faubus.

Monday night the city council passed an ordinance to require that certain organizations submit detailed information on contributions and expenditures, membership and other matters.

The organizations were not named, but it was generally accepted that the ordinance was directed at the N.A.A.C.P.

Yesterday Mann ordered the N.A.A.C.P., the Capital Citizens Council, the Freedom Fund and the League of Central High Mothers—the latter three segregationist groups—to submit the data required by the ordinance. The law specifies that the information must be filed within 15 days after notice.

Mann issued a statement saying: "It is to the best interest of all the people that such a law be enforced immediately. With this in mind, I am addressing the president of each of the organizations which undoubtedly represent extreme positions on both sides. The administration expects the organizations named to respectfully comply with this law."

The city council of North Little Rock, a separate municipality across the Arkansas river from Little Rock, passed an identical ordinance Monday night.

Daniel Says Texas Forces Can Handle Racial Trouble.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 16 (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel of Texas said yesterday that he had enough Texas Rangers and state police to top any racial trouble in Texas.

Meanwhile, in Houston, United States District Judge Ben C. Connally ordered Houston public schools to integrate "with all deliberate speed," but did not set a deadline.

Harriman Says Faubus 'Isn't Fit to be Governor.'

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 16 (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman told an inter-racial audience last night that Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas "isn't fit to be Governor of any state."

Harriman, commenting on the school integration disputes declared, "The South must begin to realize that it is part of this nation."

The Governor addressed about 600 persons attending the dedication of a $175,000 community center built by the Albany Inter-Racial Council.

HUBCAPS STOLEN, THEN CAR, NOW HUBCAPS GONE AGAIN

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 16 (AP)—Municipal court police prosecutor Earl Stephenson is known as a genial man. Thieves have also gotten the notion he's a soft touch and he wants an end to it.

First they stole all the hubcaps off his car then they stole the car itself. Stephenson had to go out and buy a new one. The thieves must have been watching—all the hubcaps are gone again.

ROOMING HOUSE LAW REVISION TV PANEL TOPIC

A study by St. Louisans of proposals to weaken drastically the city's rooming house regulations would result in the voters urging the aldermen to defeat the measures, William Coibion, planning director of the City Plan Commission, said in a television program last night.

"If the people acquainted themselves with the provisions of the bill, I have confidence they would quickly inform their elective representatives what their desires are," Coibion said during a panel discussion over KETC, Channel 9, the city's educational station.

Response to Question.

The program concerned property and building problems, and Coibion's remarks were in response to a question by the Rosedale-Skinker Neighborhood Improvement Association as to how attacks on the present rooming house ordinance could best be met. The bill to scuttle many of the regulations was draftsd by Howard W. Frick, an attorney who has represented rooming house owners, and was introduced by Alderman DeWitte T. Lawson (Dem.) of the Nineteenth Ward.

Proposals in the measure include those to exempt from licensing and inspection all establishments in which three or fewer rooms are rented, and to place no limit on the number of persons living in them.

Coibion said that if he correctly interpreted the proposed revisions, "such a house could have eight, 12 or 16 roomers in one or two rooms, and not be subject to the Department of Public Safety or to periodic inspections."

Other panelists on the program, "Operation Greater St. Louis," were O. O. McCracken, director of development for the city's Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority; Ralph D'Oench, real estate man, and Phillip Waring, director of community organization for the Urban League.

Answer Phone Questions.

The panel answered questions telephoned by persons at "viewing posts" in St. Louis and St. Louis county, where neighborhood groups had gathered to watch the program. The question period was preceded by a documentary program designed to stimulate inquiries.

McCracken said dilapidation of buildings is not the sole test of a declining neighborhood. Other signs, he said, included the incompatibility of rooming houses intermingled with single family dwellings, encroachment of industrial uses on a residential area, and insufficient playground areas.

St. Louis and Washington Universities are sponsoring the television series, "Operation Greater St. Louis," as a part of the urban renewal program.

SAYS MANAGEMENT SILENCE HURTS EMPLOYE RELATIONS

Management's silence on controversial issues which are most important from the employes' standpoint is the weakness of employe relations, C. J. Dover, consultant on employe communication and group relations for General Electric Co., said here today.

He spoke at the opening session of the fourth annual Midwest industrial relations conference in Graham Chapel on the Washington University campus. The two-day meeting is sponsored by the university's School of Business and Public Administration and the Industrial Relations Club.

Although business spends $500,000,000 annually on employe communication, it often lacks the courage to state its honest views, Dover stated. Instead of being forthright on controversial issues, business men too often hide behind inadequate alibis, he said. Recent experience, he declared, strongly suggests that the honest views of respected business men will get a fair hearing from employes.

$1,300,000 NORMANDY SCHOOL BOND ISSUE OK'D

A $1,300,000 bond issue for improvements at Normandy High School and four elementary schools was approved by Normandy School District voters yesterday by a vote of 2267 to 344.

The money is to be spent as follows: $700,000 for a second floor with 11 high school classrooms over the school bus garage, remodeling of present rooms, additional educational facilities for girls and enlargement of home economics facilities; $500,000 for gymnasium-auditoriums at Garfield, Lincoln, Harrison and McKinley schools, and $100,000 for additional playground space at Garfield and McKinley.

Enlargement of the high school will permit the transfer of all ninth-grade students there from the junior high school, which is crowded. The tax rate is to be increased 10 to 11 cents from $2.80 to $2.91 or $2.92 for each $100 assessed property valuation.

GARMENT UNION OFFERS FREE ASIAN FLU SHOTS

Free Asian influenza vaccinations will be given to workers in the women's garment industry here from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays at the Garment Industry Medical Center, 4646 Lindell boulevard.

Frederick Siems, regional director of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, said an estimated 1500 workers will take advantage of the offer. The center also provided polio inoculations.

The Medical Center, established by a union-management contract and financed by the employers, provides extensive medical service to garment workers in the St. Louis area.

PROPOSAL TO LET POLICE OFFICERS PUNISH OWN MEN

A recommendation that police district commanders and division heads be given authority to punish policemen for infractions of departmental rules is under consideration by top officers of the St. Louis Police Department, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

O. W. Wilson, a California criminologist who has been advising the police board, suggested that disciplinary action be decentralized from the board and some disciplinary authority be given to the district captains and other department heads.

Under the present system, district commanders and lesser supervisors can only reprimand erring officers. All serious breaches of the police manual are referred to the board for action.

Authority Provided.

Under the Wilson plan, district commanders and department heads would have authority to impose punishment not to exceed loss of two recreation days, or one day's suspension without pay, for rule infractions. The man punished could appeal first to the Chief of Police, and then to a trial board of three captains, if he believed the punishment was not justified.

The Chief of Police would have power to increase the punishment to 30 days' suspension without pay. At present the chief may only suspend an officer pending investigation by the inspector's office and a hearing by the police board.

Special records would be maintained in the chief's office of all disciplinary action. The records would serve as efficiency rating of both the officer disciplined and his superior. One purpose of the plan is to increase the alertness of sergeants and lieutenants in detecting, and reporting, improper conduct by subordinates.

Changes in Manual.

Adoption of the Wilson suggestions would necessitate changes in the police manual. Punishable offenses now cited in the manual, which are subject to board action, include intoxication on duty, use of narcotics, insubordination, failure to obey rules and regulations, oppressive conduct, immorality, conduct detrimental to public peace and welfare, absence from duty, general incapacity, neglect to pay debts, failure to detect crime, failure to patrol a beat, sleeping or loafing on duty and others. Certain of these infractions would be subjects for punishment by district commanders.

Wilson, a former police chief, is dean of the school of criminology at the University of California.

MAN CHARGED WITH $10,475 LARCENY IN FAKE DROWNING

BOSTON, Oct. 16 (AP) — Alvin G. Plackter, a business man, today was charged with larceny of $10,475 in connection with what police described as his fake drowning in Boston harbor.

Two brothers, Louis and Walter Swank, who had reported seeing Plackter drown last August, were charged with being accessories after the fact of larceny.

Plackter, 37 years old, was arrested in Houston, Tex., and was returned to Boston yesterday. He was presumed to have drowned until his wife innocently applied for more than $100,000 in insurance he had taken out shortly before the drowning. The investigation disclosed that Plackter had obtained $10,475 from the Pilgrim Trust Co. on what police said were fake securities which he claimed were worth $21,000.

TREASURY WINS PRAISE FOR ANTI-SECRECY ACTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP) —The Treasury Department won a pat on the back from a congressional committee yesterday for trying to remove secrecy barriers surrounding United States imports.

Representative John E. Moss (Dem.), California, chairman of a House committee studying government policies with respect to information, said Treasury officials "are to be commended for their recognition of the people's right to know facts available from their government."

The department action which Moss commended was an Oct. 4 ruling making available all information except the name of the importer regarding goods shipped into the United States. The importers' name would be withheld only on request on the importer himself.

DERAMUS, HEAD OF KATY, CALLED 'ROAD WRECKER'

By a Post-Dispatch Jefferson City Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16 —United States Representative Morgan M. Moulder (Dem.), Camdenton, Mo., told the Missouri Public Service Commission today that William N. Deramus III, president of Missouri-Kansas-Texas (Katy) Railroad, was a "road wrecker." He also charged that the Katy was being mismanaged.

Moulder, speaking at a commission hearing on the Katy's request to discontinue two Katy Flyer passenger trains between St. Louis and the Kansas line near Parsons, referred to the presidency of Deramus with the Chicago, Great Western Railroad before he became head of the Katy line last January.

Proof of the mismanagement of the Katy against the public interest was the Katy's overnight transfer of its accounting and purchasing departments from St. Louis to Denison, Tex., last March 23 without notifying the employes in advance, Moulder said.

Accounting Methods.

He read a letter which he said he received from the Interstate Commerce Commission, describing the Katy's accounting methods as a violation of ICC accounting rules. The letter also pointed out there was no evidence the accounting procedures were willful violations, however.

Attorneys for the railroad protested repeatedly against Moulder's remarks, arguing that they were not based on personal knowledge and had no bearing in the present proceedings, but William Barton, commissioner presiding at the hearing, said the Congressman's observations would be given only the attention they might deserve.

Moulder charged that the discontinuance of Train No. 5, westbound from St. Louis and Train No. 6, eastbound from Parsons, would cause substantial loss in local taxes, as well as great loss in passenger and mail service along the line.

"The Katy wants to haul the freight at a big profit but does not want to haul the people who provide the freight," Moulder stated.

The Public Service Commission gave him permission to voice his objections against the Katy's petition and then leave immediately for Washington, where a subcommittee of which he is a member has a hearing scheduled for tomorrow.

Towns Represented.

Haysler A. Peague of Clinton, one of several lawyers representing towns objecting to discontinuance of the passenger service, said Katy's passenger revenue has fallen off principally because the railroad has let its service deteriorate.

He said the road took off its Pullman service in 1951. In recent months, the air-conditioning systems on the trains either have failed or have been taken out of cars, and the trains are constantly running behind schedule, he stated.

The petition, which has aroused considerable opposition in the cities and towns along the route affected, said the Katy had lost $123,350 operating the two trains in the 12-month period ended last April 30, without considering taxes or costs attributed to track maintenance.

Revenue from the two trains in the period totaled $439,944 and out-of-pocket expenses $563,294, it was said.

Increased travel by automobiles in the territory served "has resulted in the practical abandonment of use of the applicant's trains," the petition stated. To continue operation in the face of heavy losses, would be contrary to the public interest and a burden on interstate commerce, it was said.

The two trains, which formerly carried a heavy passenger volume, average about five cars each at present, including a chair and mail car and express and baggage cars, but no diner or sleeping cars.

The Katy also has pending an application to abandon a mixed freight and passenger train between New Franklin and Moberly and substitute an irregular schedule to run when sufficient revenue tonnage is available, and an application Commission to abandon its Holden subdivision, between Bryson, Mo., and Paola, Kan.

BISHOP SHEEN TO QUIT TV PROGRAMS FOR YEAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)— Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, after 31 successive years of preaching on radio and television, is not going to be on the air this season—at least not with any new sermons.

His office said today that Bishop Sheen is going to take a year off from live broadcasting, but that some of his former television programs will be carried on film by numerous local stations.

The bishop, national director of the Roman Catholic Society for the Propagation of the Faith, concluded his fifth season of TV sermons on the American Broadcasting System last April, but the network program will not be resumed this fall.

NICKEL PLATE NET INCOME OFF $900,000 THIS YEAR

Net income of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad (Nickel Plate) for the first nine months of the year was $10,659,019 or $900,000 lower than in the corresponding period last year, C. B. Bennett, assistant to the president of the railroad, said here yesterday.

Speaking at a banquet of officers and directors of the company and guests at Hotel Statler, Bennett reported that gross income for the period was about $1,500,000 above the 1956 figure. He said the railroad had spent about $3,000,000 ni the last three years to improve its East St. Louis yards, build new connections with the Alton and Southern Railroad and "dieselize" the road.

Lynne L. White, board chairman, said the purpose of the St. Louis meeting was to acquaint Nickel Plate executives with the firm's property and operations in this area. The officers arrived here yesterday by special train and left Stt Louis at midnight.

30 HURT AS TORNADO HITS 5 LOUISIANA COMMUNITIES

OPELOUSAS, La., Oct. 16 (AP)—A tornado hit five communities last night, leaving wrecked homes and 30 injured.

The twister struck Cypress Grove, Leonville, Mix, all just west of the Mississippi river bridge near Baton Rouge, and at Walker in Livingston parish (county).

Heavy rains and winds up to 30 miles an hour in gusts lashed the New Orleans area early today. More than an inch of rain fell between midnight and 6 a.m.

Twenty-five were injured near Cypress Grove. They were brought to a hospital in Opelousas. Most of the injuries were deep cuts and bruises.

The other injured were in the Leonville area eight miles southeast of Opelousas.

NO NEED TO HIKE DEFENSE FUNDS, 2 IN HOUSE SAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP) — The two highest-ranking members of the House Appropriations Committee said today that Russia's launching of a satellite doesn't necessarily require increased United States defense spending.

What it does mean, said chairman Clarence Cannon (Dem.) of Missouri and Representative John Taber (Rep.) of New York, senior Republican member of the committee, is that the United States must cease being complacent, stop underrating Soviet progress and concentrate on missile programs.

The two men, who probably have more to say about appropriations than any two other members of Congress, expressed their views in telephone interviews from Elsberry, Mo., and Auburn, N.Y., respectively. They agreed that the success of Russia's homemade moon had boosted Soviet prestige throughout the world and made it imperative that this country bolster its own defenses and the defenses of its foreign friends.

Emphasis on Missiles.

"I don't think it means that we must appropriate more money for defense, but rather that we must allocate our defense spending better," Cannon said. "The emphasis must be on the missile programs, for which we have appropriated liberally."

Taber agreed, saying, "There should not be too much difference, between next year's defense budget and this year's."

"The Soviet satellite is not something to get too excited about," Tabor added, "but it should wake us up that Russia is not as backward as some people seem to think."

President Eisenhower conferred with Budget Director Percival Brundage today in what was reported to be a continuing reappraisal of the missile program.

The comments from Cannon and Taber differed from those of a number of Democrats who, without specifically calling for increased defense spending, have criticized the Administration's economy efforts in that area.

Defense With a Budget.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem.) of Wyoming said the Administration's defense plans appear to be based on "meeting the enemy at the seacoast with a balanced budget," and he added in an interview:

"The Administration has let fiscal considerations determine our defense, when it should be just the other way around."

O'Mahoney blamed former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey for what he said was the priority given budget considerations in defense planning.

The new Defense Secretary, Neil H. McElroy, and the new Treasury head, Robert B. Anderson, "will get the co-operation of Congress if they put the nation's security ahead of the budget," O'Mahoney asserted.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.) of Minnesota told a news conference yesterday that the United States should initiate at once an emergency program to overhaul the Soviets in the missiles and satellite fields. He spoke out 24 hours after Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.) of Missouri had expressed similar views.

Urges New Agency.

Humphrey said he favored creation of a powerful new agency to pull together the various segments of the civilian and military programs dealing with satellites, long-range missiles and space rockets.

"I charge there has been wanton waste in the administration of our rockets program," Humphrey said.

He announced that at his request the Senate Government Operations committee has ordered its staff to explore the need for a new agency and to draft recommendations for legislation.

Humphrey said that meanwhile "President Eisenhower owes it to the country to tell us the truth about the development of missiles and rockets—just what missiles we have today, their capabilities and limitations."

Proposes Missile Czar.

Meanwhile, Representative Overton Brooks (Dem.) of Louisiana urged appointment of a missile program czar.

"In my opinion," Brooks said in a statement, "much of our difficulty has arisen from service bickering, waste, overlapping of authority and inefficient management."

Cannon did not mention the question of cutting taxes in saying no more money should be needed. He commented:

"Some programs can be financed with less money while others may need more as a result of recent developments. But the over-all defense budget should not be changed substantially."

The fact that Russia was first to get its satellite into the skies, Cannon said, "in itself does not mean that our defense program is endangered. It does emphasize that we have underestimated Soviet progress. We have got to get on our toes."

Cannon said he believed foreign aid appropriations next year should not be much higher or much lower than they are this year.

"We must keep our friends strong," he said. "I believe we can do this by keeping spending at about the same level it will be this year."

Taber said the Defense Department has about 6½ billion dollars in all its programs for research and development "of one kind or another," and added, "This is more than they can possibly use."

Taber said he did not believe foreign aid spending for military assistance "can be cut much, if at all, next year."

Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald Quarles said in New York that because of its powerful air-atomic "deterrent force" the United States should find no cause for alarm in Russia's long-range missile claim and earth satellite achievement.

"We can discount much of the Soviet propaganda," Quarles said.

Issues Warning.

However, in an address to the American Institute of Consulting Engineers, Quarles warned of what he called the "start reality" of the current Russian aircraft-atomic threat to the United States.

He said it is increasingly clear the Russians "after a relatively backward start, are making impressive progress in many fields related to advanced weaponry."

The United States, he said, has become exposed "to direct and destructive attack by aircraft now and no doubt by missiles in the years ahead." Furthermore, Quarles said, the Soviets make it clear that they consider the United States the principal obstacle to world domination.

"We must be concerned," he said, "that this nation may not recognize and properly evaluate the magnitude of this threat or that it may be unwilling to make the personal and financial sacrifices which are inescapable if we are to maintain positive, effective and convincing deterrent forces. . . ."

Budget Troubles.

MONTPELIER, Vt., (UP) — Vermont was unable to hire a state budget director due to budget difficulties. The $5000 appropriated by the legislature for the office was termed "inadequate" to obtain the services of a capable officer.

NEW 85,000-TON AIRCRAFT CARRIER TO BE A-POWERED

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—A high naval officer disclosed yesterday that the Navy's newest aircraft carrier will be an 85,000-tonner powered by nuclear energy.

It will be 35,000 tons heavier than the giant Forrestal and Saratoga, which have conventional power plants using oil for fuel.

Rear Adm. Martin W. Kehart, director of the Atlantic division of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, also said the Navy's big Seamaster-class attack seaplane would go into "operational development for evaluation purposes" in the near future. It is so large that it needs extra-deep water for landings and take-offs.

He spoke to a convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

English Woman Lawyer Dies.

LONDON, Oct. 16, (AP)—The death of Mrs. Helena Normanton, the first woman to practice law in England, was announced today. She was 74 years old. She became a member of the bar in 1922.

KNOWLAND CALLS FOR CURB OF VETO BY RUSSIA IN U.N.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—Senator William F. Knowland (Rep.), California, declared last night that the United Nations would be better off without the Soviet Union as a member.

Knowland suggested that the Security Council adopt an infrequently used charter provision to curb Russia's use of the veto, even if it might cause the Soviet Union to leave the U.N.

He said that under the charter a Soviet veto could be avoided by invoking a provision stating that a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting on it.

Strongly criticizing Russia's use of the veto 81 times in the Security Council, the Senate minority leader declared:

"The United Nations will have a better chance of survival without the Soviet Union than with it, if the action of the U.S.S.R. during the Korean and Hungarian conflicts are examples of what me must contemplate for the future."

7 FACE GAMBLING CHARGES AFTER RAID IN ST. CHARLES

Seven men are scheduled to appear in police court at St. Charles tomorrow on gambling charges, following a police raid on a dice game Monday night.

Released on bond for the police court appearance were men who identified themselves as Philip Abbacchi and Roy E. Shaffer, both of the 5400 block of Hodiamont avenue, Jennings, and George Pearson, Ben Stuckey, John Perkins, Wallace Knerr and Raymond House, all of St. Charles county.

Police reported making the arrest after observing the game in progress in a garage in the 2100 block of North Main street.

AUSTRALIA SEEKS TO PUT RED CHINA IN ARMS TALKS

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 16—Australia today demanded that Communist China be included in any disarmament agreement negotiated through the United Nations. The Australian delegate, Dr. E. Ronald Walker, did not indicate how this was to be accomplished.

Communist China is not a member of the United Nations. Its membership has been opposed consistently by the United States.

As a result, Communist China has not been a party to disarmament negotiations and would not be bound by any results which might issue unless further action was taken to include China. How this could be done without recognition of the Mao Tse-tung government by other powers, including the United States, or seating of Red China in the U.N. has never been worked out.

"Australia," Dr. Walker said, "is a country situated on the very edge of Asia, a part of the world where many countries' problems of national security are aggravated by Communist and alien-inspired subversion and overshadowed by the disproportionate weight of Communist Chinese manpower."

Dr. Walker declared that Australia is therefore convinced that "a disarmament agreement that did not impose suitable obligations upon Communist China would not be of much use in our part of the world and this is one of the problems that lies ahead."

The Australian delegate spoke in the disarmament debate in the U.N. Political Committee. Australia is one of the co-sponsors of the American disarmament resolution and Dr. Walker spoke in support of that resolution.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the choice before us is a simple one. Do members of this committee desire to see a disarmament agreement consisting of a series of declarations and promises in the field of nuclear and conventional armaments, with no effective machinery to insure that promises are carried out and that the security of all is protected against the infidelity of any one? Or does the committee wish to see a disarmament agreement that does not merely rest on confidence, but because of the protection it offers against bad faith would build confidence and promote security?"

Russia in general has opposed disarmament control mechanisms the West considers adequate to promote security with disarmament.

Colombia, another of the co-sponsors of the American resolution, also spoke in support of it today. Antonio Rocha, the Colombian delegate, said the issue was "between the Christian world and the world of Communism."

131 DOGS SNARLED IN RED TAPE, AID OFFERS POUR IN

GENOA, Italy, Oct. 16 (AP)—Offers to take care of 131 hungry racing dogs were pouring into Genoa port offices today by the hundreds.

Seven of 138 pure-blooded greyhounds that arrived here a week ago from Alexandria, Egypt, died of starvation. A dog-breeding firm in Milan had ordered them, but it went out of business before they arrived.

Officers of the firm could not be located, and port authorities refused to let the dogs out of a shack until someone could supply proper documents and $4000 in customs duties.

When the plight of the animals became known, offers to take charge of the dogs or to help feed them started pouring into port offices.

Private citizens donated 100 quarts of milk, dozens of pounds of meat, hundreds of cans of dog food.

The Genoa Society for the Protection of Animals filed a protest with customs authorities.

NEW TINPLATE PROCESSING OPERATION IS BEGUN HERE

The first complete lines in the Midwest for processing tinplate from coils were placed in operation today at the St. Louis plant of the American Can Co., 3200 South Kingshighway. The lines automatically inspect, cut and sort sheets of tinplate and steelplate from coils weighing up to 15,000 pounds at speeds reaching 600 feet per minute.

F. B. Newcomb of Chicago, a vice president of American Can Co., said that the St. Louis coil plant is the third of a number of similar installations Canco plans to open this year in various parts of the country.

The newly-installed process will mean an addition of 65 employes and an addition of $300,000 to the plant's annual payroll and benefits.

SAYS U.S. IS LOSING OUT, CALLS ON DULLES TO QUIT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16 (UP) — Senator Joseph S. Clark (Dem.), Pennsylvania, attacked United States diplomacy last night and called for the resignation of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Speaking before the Philadelphia chapter of the World Affairs Council, Clark said this nation has lost friends all over the globe.

"The neutral nations distrust us and our allies have lost some of their respect for us," he said. He sharply criticized the Administration for "allowing the Budget Bureau to put an artificial ceiling on the Defense Department's needs," and said that "for the past five years our pre-occupation with fiscal affairs has imperiled our national safety."

EX-NAZI FIELD MARSHAL SENTENCED FOR WAR CRIME

MUNICH, Germany, Oct. 16 (UP)—A state court sentenced former Nazi Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner yesterday to four-and-a-half years in prison. He had faced the court on one charge of manslaughter and two of attempted manslaughter of Nazi soldiers in the final days of World War II.

Schoerner was accused of having a German army corporal shot after he was found sleeping at the wheel of his truck. The truck was allegedly blocking the way for Schoerner's command car.

He was charged also with ordering the commander of the East German town of Neisse shot without trial when the town fell into the hands of advancing Russian troops.

CONTRACT OK'D FOR NEW MALINE SEWER SECTION

A $411,000 contract for construction of Section C of the Maline Creek sewer by the G. L. Tarlton Contracting Co. was approved yesterday by the board of trustees of the Metropolitan Sewer District.

Section C will extend for two miles between Halls Ferry road and the Ferguson sewage treatment plant. Diameters of the sewers will be 42 and 48 inches.

William Q. Kehr, executive director of the district, said the contract provides for completion of the project in 300 days. He added that all easements have been approved and "no great construction difficulties, such as rock or sand, are anticipated."

The Section C project will connect with Section B which ties into the existing sewer at Bellefontaine Neighbors.

A contract was approved by the board with Pitzman's Company of Surveyors and Engineers for an engineering study of a proposed storm water subdistrict in South Overland. In recommending approval of the contract, Kehr said, "This area is badly in need of storm water relief. Considerable damage was done by the heavy spring rains."

He added that there were inadequate culverts to drain the storm waters in the area last spring, causing water to pour into basements. Some basement walls collapsed from the overflow, Kehr said.

The executive director was asked by Harry C. Brockhoff, vice chairman of the board, if he felt the South Overland storm water project was more important than some of the sanitary sewer projects the trustees are considering.

"This is an urgent problem," Kehr replied. "The same thing, the flooded and damaged basements, happened in that area in 1955, and it could happen again."

An ordinance was introduced which would permit the executive director in emergencies to approve contracts up to $15,000 in those instances in which districts personnel are not available for emergency work. The proposed ordinance would permit also approval of contracts up to $15,000, in emergencies, without advertising for bids.

In support of the proposal, Kehr said that in the floods here last spring, heavy sewer damage was caused in Affton and 15 other districts that required immediate correction but that the Sewer District was unable to move promptly under the existing ordinance. Board members decided to give the proposal further study before voting on it.

Board Member J. Edward Gragg said he was "not entirely satisfied" with progress being made to strengthen a section of bank along River Des Peres east of the Missouri Pacific Bridge near the Mississippi river.

The section in question, near the Titanium Division of National Lead Co., was repaired by the city in 1951 but the bank began to slide again in 1954. Since then, Kehr said, the failure has become "progressively worse."

"Before we went into repairing this section again, we called in a soils expert to see what we would have to do," Kehr said. "He is now making his study, and this information is necessary if we are to do the job intelligently."

"A big flood could cause tremendous damage there and result in law suits" against the Sewer District, Gragg, an attorney, commented.

PRICE SAYS RUSSIA IS WORKING ON ATOMIC AIRCRAFT

© New York Times News Service

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 16 — Soviet scientists claim that Russia will have an atomic-powered aircraft "in a couple of years," according to Representative Melvin Price (Dem.), Illinois, chairman of the Joint Subcommittee on Atomic Research and Development.

With Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, Price ended yesterday a two-day inspection of Swedish atomic installations.

Price and his group spent five days in the Soviet Union before arriving here.

In Russia they were taken on an inspection tour of the atomic research center at Dubno on the Volga river—well known for its 680,000,000 electron volt bevatron. The group was shown the 10-billion electron volt synchrofasotrone, the largest atom smasher in the world, according to Price.

Price said of what he saw that "It would be a grave mistake to suppose that the Russians do not have the scientific knowledge and engineering know-how to do whatever they set out to do in the field of atomic or nuclear research. As to Soviet experiments looking to an atomic-powered aircraft, Price said "I would not be at all surprised if they beat us to it."

WIFE'S DENTAL PLATE OFFERED IN SCOTT'S TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16 (AP) —A dental plate found near an incinerator at L. Ewing Scott's home was identified yesterday as one worn by his wife three days before she disappeared.

A Pasadena dentist, Dr. Reginald Coldwell, said he made the denture in 1943 and last saw it on May 13, 1955, when Mrs. Scott kept a dental appointment.

Mrs. Scott, 63 years old, disappeared May 16, 1955. Scott, a former St. Louisan, is on trial on a charge of murdering her.

The denture, a removable upper bridge with five teeth on it, was found nearly a year after Mrs. Scott's disappearance during a police search of the Scott premises. The police did not enter the case until March 1956, when the wealthy woman's disappearance first became known to the public.

Dr. Coldwell's testimony was preceded by that of another dentist who said work he did on Mrs. Scott's teeth required her to remove the bridge at night. He said to the best of his knowledge this was the only time she took the bridge out of her mouth.

Another prosecution witness testified that the day Mrs. Scott disappeared she was making plans for an extended European tour.

Auto Salesman Testifies.

Ulrich Quast, an automobile salesman testifying for the prosecution, said he called on the Scotts on May 16, 1955, to demonstrate a foreign car they were considering purchasing for delivery in Europe.

Three days later when he telephoned to follow up the transaction, Quast said, Scott told him his wife had become ill suddenly and gone east for treatment.

No trace of Mrs. Scott has been reported since May 16, 1955.

Scott, now 61, was arrested earlier this year at the Canadian border near Detroit after an international manhunt. He had jumped bail and fled after being charged with mishandling his wife's estate. He was later charged with her murder.

When Mrs. Scott's disappearance became known to police in 1956, Scott said she sent him out on an errand shortly after Quast left on May 16, 1955, and had disappeared when he returned. He never reported her missing, he said, because he thought she would came back.

Quast's testimony was interrupted repeatedly by Scott's three attorneys, who fired objections to almost every new line of questioning in support of their contention that no testimony concerning Scott's words or actions should be admitted into the court record until the fact of Mrs. Scott's death is established.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Superior Judge Clement D. Nye ruled against the defense consistently, holding that the prosecution is within legal bounds in seeking to show through circumstantial evidence that Mrs. Scott was murdered.

Two investment counselors followed Quast to the witness stand, one testifying that Mrs. Scott, then married to a Norris Mumper of Pasadena, followed the firm's advice completely in investing her securities totaling approximately $200,000.

The other, John Connell, said that after the death of Mumper in September 1948 and Mrs. Scott's marriage to Scott a year later, frequent disagreements arose between Scott and the firm.

The firm finally canceled the Scott account in 1951 at his suggestion, Connell said.

In outlining the prosecution case at the opening of the trial, Deputy District Attorney J. Miller Leavy said he intended to show that Scott carried out a carefully conceived plot to murder Mrs. Scott and take over her estate. In addition to securities, the estate includes extensive cash deposits and part ownership of an apartment building in Milwaukee. Its total value has been estimated at $600,000.

ROMANIAN GRAFT FIRINGS

VIENNA, Oct. 16 (UP)—A number of high state officials in Communist Romania have been fired from their posts for "serious misuse" of public money, the Bucharest radio said today.

The broadcast heard here said several officials of the ministry of heavy industry and a number of foremen at Romania's biggest power station were dismissed.

INCOME, OUTPUT SHOW DECLINE FOR SEPTEMBER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—The steady rise in the personal income of Americans was interrupted last month as industrial production slowed down, official reports disclosed yesterday.

Personal income dipped to a rate of 346½ billion dollars annually in September, the Commerce Department announced. This was $300,000,000 below the record rate achieved in August.

Simultaneously the Federal Reserve Board reported that the physical output of the country's mines, factories and refineries slipped down a notch in September because of the automobile model changeover and reduced production schedules in the metals-using industries.

Other Points in Report.

In its monthly National Summary of Business Conditions, the Reserve Board said:

"Industrial and construction activity continued to show little change in September. Manufacturing employment declined slightly further, but employment in non-manufacturing industries remained at record levels.

"Retail sales declined moderately from record levels . . . common stock declined sharply further."

A slight decline in the total wages and salaries received by Americans was attributed chiefly to the automobile shutdowns, although wages declined in September in the durable goods industries generally. They were stable in the soft goods lines such as textiles, shoes, petroleum and chemicals.

The annual rate of personal income in the July-September quarter as a whole was the same as in September—346½ billion dollars. This was about four billion dollars higher than in the spring quarter and 18 billion dollars, or 5½ per cent, above the figure for the third quarter of 1956.

With consumer prices averaging 3½ per cent higher so far in 1957 than in 1956 the rise in personal income "reflected in part a gain in real purchasing power," the Commerce Department said.

Receipts of Farmers.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department reported farmers received 20½ billion dollars for their commodities in the first nine months of this year.

The income from their sales was about the same as in the corresponding period last year.

The agency said farm prices averaged 3 per cent above those a year ago, but that the volume of marketings was a little smaller.

Receipts from livestock and livestock products were reported at 12½ billion dollars or 5 per cent more than a year ago, because of higher average prices.

Receipts from crops were estimated at eight billion dollars, down 7 per cent from last year.

Total cash receipts in September were reported at $2,900,000,000 or 5 per cent below those of last year.

BARELY MISSES BAY BRIDGE IN CALIFORNIA JET CRASH

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 (AP)—A Navy Banshee jet—its starboard engine in flames—missed the heavily-traveled San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge by inches yesterday and crashed landed in the bay.

Its pilot, Navy Lt. Thad H. Harden, formerly of El Paso, Tex., was credited with lifting the stricken plane over the tops of passing automobiles. Navy authorities said he averted a disastrous crash by sticking with the jet.

After setting the twin-engine fighter down on the water, Harden got into a life raft and was picked up.

Slow Learners' Parents Asked To Support Special Classes

Parents of pupils who are slow learners must accept the fact that their children should be placed in special classes if they are to profit from their education, Hubert Wheeler, state commissioner of education, said here today.

Addressing a general session of the Missouri Congress of Parents and Teachers at Hotel Sheraton - Jefferson, Wheeler said "unknowing parents" sometimes interfere with school officials who are setting up special programs because they resent the fact that their children are not classified as normal learners.

Such interference can prevent a child from learning to the fullest of his limited capabilities, the speaker said. He urged convention delegates to promote co - operation with school administrators when special classes for slow learners are set up in their districts.

Slow with Programs.

On the subject of gifted pupils, Wheeler said many districts in Missouri have been slow to set up special programs. He noted that the selection of teachers for such students must be made carefully if the programs are to succeed. Providing special instruction for gifted children is important because it is from this group that the country will eventually draw its leaders, he asserted.

Comparing the school situation in Missouri with that of 10 years ago, the speaker said Missouri now has a much higher percentage of college-trained teachers than in formerly had. In trying to solve the teacher shortage, proper training should not be subordinated to filling of vacancies, he declared.

Wheeler noted that the state is providing $72,000,000 to districts this year under the school foundation program authorized by the Legislature three years ago. In 1950, he said, state allotments to school districts totaled $38,000,000. Despite the large increase in state aid, school districts still must pay two-thirds of the cost of education, he said.

Juvenile Courts.

At a panel discussion yesterday on juvenile courts at Christ Church Cathedral, Kenneth Foresman, executive secretary of the Metropolitan Youth Commission, said many juvenile courts in Missouri have made no progress in their field because judges have refused to accept the help of the community.

One of the things citizens can do is to see that proper detention facilities are provided for juveniles, he said, pointing out that in rural Missouri 70 per cent of the youngsters arrested are placed in jails or police holdovers with adult criminals.

Against Long Detentions.

Circuit Judge Michael J. Scott of the St. Louis juvenile court warned against the dangers of unnecessarily long detentions. Additional juvenile problems can be created by holding a child too long, he said. Judge Scott noted that St. Louis is now adopting a policy of detaining a juvenile no more than 16 hours after his arrest, rather than 24, as was previously the practice.

Work done by the intake department, where an investigation and social study of a child's problem is made, is the most important aspect of juvenile court procedure, Circuit Judge Douglas L. C. Jones, juvenile judge in St. Louis county, said.

From the investigation the judge can learn what course of action would best help the child rehabilitate himself, Judge Jones said, adding that "we are trying to administer personalized justice. We are a court of equity, not a criminal court."

Two Other Panelists.

Other panelists were former Circuit Judge Fred Hoffmeister and Circuit Judge William R. Collinson, judge of the juvenile court at Springfield.

At a session last night at the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel, Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn., said that "schools today offer a curriculum more extensive than ever before. It is one designed to meet individual differences."

The speaker said the cost of public education is small when compared with what it buys.

TITO ACCEPTS MOSCOW BID

BELGRADE, Oct. 16 (UP)—President Josip (Tito) Broz has decided to go to Moscow next month for the celebration of the Russian Communist revolution, according to informed sources.

The sources said at a reception given by Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov last night that the Yugoslav leader has accepted an invitation to be in Russia for the Nov. 7 observance. They said Zhukov had brought the invitation here with him.

U.S. to Launch Vocational Training Plan for Indians Here

St. Louis has been selected as one of three major cities in which the Federal Bureau of Indian Affairs will provide vocational training for Indians from reservations and agencies, it was announced today.

Purpose of the pilot program is to train qualified Indians for jobs in the modern, industrial economy of the United States Charles Coffee, director of the St. Louis relocation office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, explained.

The training will be given at the new O'Fallon Technical High School and the David Ranken Jr. School of Mechanical Trades, in the following subjects: Comptometry, cosmetology and practical nursing, for women, and machine shop practice, automobile mechanics, welding (both arc and gas) and body and fender work, for men.

125 Trainees Expected Here.

It is anticipated that by the end of the current fiscal year, about 400 trainees will be enrolled throughout the nation, with about 125 of these coming to St. Louis. Maximum length of the course is two years, with the trainee receiving subsistence for himself and his family, if married, for the entire period. A married man will receive $42 a week, to which $12 will be added for each child.

A list of courses available at St. Louis, Chicago and Oakland, Calif., will be sent to the various Indian agencies throughout the country. Applicants for the training, after careful screening as to their intelligence, aptitude and adaptability, will then be sent to the city offering the course desired.

"When an application has been approved at the agency level, the application is sent to us, if the course desired is one that is offered in St. Louis," Coffee said. "We then check the availability of classroom space, housing and the level of our own work load in the general relocation program.

"If these factors are favorable to the application, it is approved and we notify the agency when to send the trainee. Since classes in many of these subjects begin every six weeks, we expect a fairly steady flow of arrivals rather than a large group at any one time.

"The trainee will arrive about a week or 10 days ahead of classes so that we can get him established in suitable housing, see that any children are placed in school and find suitable clothes for the family, which probably will have come from a primitive, agrarian economy."

Coffee emphasized the new program is limited to Indians now living on reservations or agencies, and is not intended for those who already have been relocated and are working at jobs. The latter group can attend night classes, but the Government's maximum allowance for tuition and books or tools is $50 for each student.

First trainees under the new program are expected to start arriving in about four weeks, Coffee said.

Job Placement Assistance.

"If the trainee has an offer of a suitable job on completing the course, we will assist him in reaching that job, if it is outside this area, but we hope that St. Louis industry will be able to use these people," Coffee said.

Norman Loomis, who was transferred from the Denver relocation office, will be the training officer in immediate charge of the program here.

The statute under which the program was established calls for apprenticeship and in-plant training as well as the institutional vocational training. However, neither the apprenticeship nor in-plant phase is being attempted this year because only $1,500,000 was appropriated for the current fiscal year and it was felt the money could be spent more wisely on vocational training.

JAMES E. M'KEE JR. HEADS ADULT EDUCATION COUNCIL

James E. McKee Jr., assistant manager of public relations for Monsanto Chemical Co., was elected president of the Adult Education Council of Greater St. Louis yesterday, succeeding Henry F. Chadeayne, who became treasurer.

Chosen vice presidents of the Council, a United Fund agency, were Wendell L. French, personnel relations director at Mallinckrodt Chemical Co.; Malcolm W. Martin, an attorney, and Henry V. Putzel.

Nef members of the board of directors are Eugene R. Kropp, a vice president of Union Electric Co.; Olin O. Stansbury, a vice president of Stix, Baer & Fuller, and Mrs. Harry G. Carlson, former president of the League of Women Voters. Martin, Oscar A. Ehrhardt and Frank M. Mayfield were re-elected to the board.

R. A. HARDY JR. SWORN IN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP) — Royce A. Hardy Jr. was sworn in yesterday as assistant Secretary of the Interior for mineral resources.

Hardy who had been general manager of Manganese Inc., since February 1956 succeeds Felix E. Wormser, who resigned June 15 to return to private business. Hardy is from Henderson, Nev.

FRENCH GAS, ELECTRIC STRIKE HALTS INDUSTRY

PARIS, Oct. 16 (AP)—Electricity and gas workers brought industry to a virtual halt throughout France today with a 24-hour strike for higher wages.

Radio and television went off the air, telephones went dead, subways, trains and elevators stopped running. Newspaper presses halted and late morning editions failed to appear.

Hundreds of thousands of the 5,000,000 people of Paris groped in predawn darkness to get to work after a cold breakfast. The gas was low or out, and there were no street lights.

Bicycles, scooters and automobiles poured into the streets in a record traffic jam. Many workers failed to get to their jobs.

Railroads Hard Hit.

The French railroad system, which is 60 per cent electrified, was hard hit. Some passenger trains stopped between stations and steam locomotives had to be sent to bring them in. Most trains to the south and southwest of Paris were canceled.

Office workers puffed up long flights of stairs to unlighted offices.

Long queues formed at stores selling candles or kerosene lamps.

Rouen, Brest, Bordeaux, Toulouse, Marseille, Lyon, St. Etienne, Calais and the Lille-Roubaix-Tourcoing area, as well as Paris, were seriously affected. Strasbourg received only intermittent current.

The huge St. Nazaire shipyards, hit by rotating strikes for three weeks, shut down because of lack of power.

At the port of Le Havre dock workers, metal workers and even hospital employes joined the gas and electric workers in walking out. Some hospitals at Nice and Marseille were without light.

The strike, described as about 90 per cent effective, began at midnight and will end tonight.

Political Crisis.

It came as France fought to overcome one of its worst political crises, and on the eve of nation-wide demonstrations being whipped up by the Communist Party.

After 16 days of crisis, rightist Antoine Pinay was still trying to form a government.

The Interior Ministry, which controls the police, was increasingly concerned by plans of the Communists to bring thousands into the streets tomorrow to demonstrate for peace in Algeria. The Reds stuck up thousands of pink posters throughout Paris urging youth to turn out in mass tomorrow "against tortures and colonial repression" in Algeria.

The labor unions in today's strike are generally opposed to Pinay. The walkout was believed partly aimed at him, but some sources thought it might actually help boost him to power to deal with the mushrooming labor unrest.

The cause of today's strike was the workers' complaint that the government had not met their demands for increased pay. The caretaker regime of Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury had no power to do so. Bourges-Maunoury resigned when his Algerian policies were defeated in the National Assembly 16 days ago, and he has remained in office only until a successor can be chosen.

STANLEY WHITWORTH DIES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16 (AP)—Stanley Whitworth, who designed the Stutz Bearcat automobile, died yesterday at his home in suburban Montebello. He was 76 years old.

Born in England, he entered the United States automobile industry in 1904. He became vice president of the Bendix Brake Corp. in 1926 and vice president of the Studebaker Corp. in 1933. He retired in 1947.

STUART BUTLER FUNERAL FRIDAY; EX-ST. LOUISAN

Funeral services for Stuart M. Butler, member of an old St. Louis family and former partner in the old Myers-Wendling Insurance Agency here, will be at 10:00 a.m. tomorrow in Jacksonville, Fla. Burial will be there.

Mr. Butler, 61 years old, died of a cerebral hemorrhage last night in Jacksonville. He moved to Florida seven years ago when he retired. He served as a lieutenant in the Air Corps in World War I. Mr. Butler was the son of the late Henry S. Butler, a founder of the old Peters Shoe Co., which now is part of International Shoe Co.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Frances Harris Butler; a daughter, Mrs. T. K. Walker of Washington, D.C.; two sons, Stuart M. Jr., St. Louis, and Dr. John T. Butler, Appleton, Wis.; a brother, Henry J. Butler, St. Louis and two sisters, Mrs. R. F. Bixby, St. Louis, and Mrs. A. L. Glidden, New Canaan, Conn.

SENTENCED TO 4 YEARS FOR 2 ROBBERY ATTEMPTS

James H. Carpenter, an ex-convict, yesterday was sentenced to serve four years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson after pleading guilty to two charges of assault with intent to rob.

Carpenter was arrested last June 24 shortly after he had tried to rob a cash register at the F. W. Woolworth store at 724 Olive street, by holding one hand inside his shirt as though he had a weapon. He fled when a woman clerk refused to give him anything, and was captured nearby.

A few minutes earlier he had used a similar procedure in attempting to hold up the Friedman-Klinge Liquor Store, 701 Pine street, but fled without money when a clerk hit him with a club. Carpenter has served five previous prison terms, the most recent less than a month before his arrest.

One Dead in Bazooka Blast.

Russia Now Talks of Telescope In Satellite to Observe Planets

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Moscow indicated last night the next Soviet step in the conquest of space may be a telescope planted among the stars.

Professor Yury Pobedonostsev told Soviet listeners on Moscow Radio:

"It has become clear that an artificial satellite must above all be regarded as a point from which very valuable scientific observations of the cosmos and of many planets can be taken.

"For instance, the placing of a telescope in inter-stellar space will make it possible to make most interesting observations and to see what previously has been hidden from us."

Pobedonostsev claimed a space telescope would determine whether canals exist on Mars.

He pointed out that astronomical observations made through telescopes on the earth were at present impeded by obstacles (dust) rising through the atmosphere, which cause the stars to twinkle and blur the images.

"Beyond the boundary of the atmosphere using a magnification of 10,000 times, we could observe from a satellite objects on the moon only 12 meters (39.27 feet) in diameter," the professor claimed.

"On Mars, we could observe details of its surface of a size of about 1½ kilometers" (up to nearly a mile).

The Soviet scientist said that earth-based observers had noted that huge storms appeared on the surface of the sun when solar radiation increased.

"There is hardly any doubt that by means of observations taken from an artificial satellite, astronomers would not only be able to explain these solar storms, but would also learn to predict their appearance," he contended.

Predicting space telescopes would also revolutionize present methods of weather forecasting, he said.

"If one were to make use of an artificial satellite, one could, for instance, photograph all the clouds around the earth several times a day. There is no doubt that the setting up of a meteorological station outside the earth's atmosphere will result in radical alterations in the theory and practice of forecasting weather."

Pobedonostsev disclosed that Russia had sent mice into space aboard rocket ships. He said these experiments had shown that the mice lost their sense of direction.

He said also space scientists would have to take into account the state of weightlessness experienced by space travelers and its effect on human behavior.

"An artificial satellite can supply us with valuable information on the movement of animals beyond the influence of gravity," he declared.

Dangerous Dentures.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Mrs. Ruby Lee Beaszly bit her husband during a quarrel and police were called to arrest her. She was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

TIGHT MONEY STOPS WORK ON ASTOR BUILDING

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—Excavation has been halted for a 46-story office building until its sponsor, Vincent Astor, can raise more money.

Astor and his family have realty holdings estimated at more than $40,000,000 but the money is tied up and cannot be used to finance the new building.

A spokesman for Astor confirmed yesterday that the block-square excavation between Park and Lexington avenues, and fifty-third and fifty-fourth streets, has been halted because of difficulty in obtaining mortgage financing.

He said the sponsors of the project were willing to pay the highest interest rate, 5½ per cent, suggested by any prospective lender, but that no lender had offered the capital.

The general shortage of credit, sometimes called the tight money market, was cited. The spokesman said Astor intends to complete the project, to be called Astor Plaza, as soon as he can arrange the financing.

Interservice Rivalry, Red Tape Hold Up Missile Development In U.S., Trevor Gardner Asserts

Ex-Head of Air Force Research Calls for an Over-All Management to Eliminate Interference — Believes Russia Soon Will Have Operational I.C.B.M.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.

INTERSERVICE RIVALRY and red tape held up the development by the United States of guided missiles, Trevor Gardner, former assistant Secretary of the Air Force in charge of research and development, said in an exclusive interview yesterday.

Following are some of the answers Gardner gave to questions submitted by the New York Herald Tribune:

Q.—Who made the decision to divorce the earth satellite program from the military missile program?

A.—I am not aware that such a decision was consciously made when the program was started. It appears to have happened by accident.

Q.—What was the history of that development? What is your recollection?

A.—The decision to participate in the International Geophysical Year was made outside the Defense Department, but Secretary Donald R. Quarles participated. He informed the research and development policy committee that the decision had been made shortly before the public announcement of July 30, 1955. This was after a budget and tentative development plan had been agreed upon by the Secretary.

Russian Response.

The Russians responded by announcing that they had formed an interplanetary commission with their top scientist, Dr. Peter Kapitsa.

The original budget was estimated by Assistant Secretary of Defense Quarles at $20,000,000 with the full awareness of the fact that we were gambling our nation's technological reputation throughout the world.

The reaction within the Pentagon to the satellite decision was: (1) The funds estimated by Quarles were totally inadequate; (2) the priority for the program was inconsistent with the international gamble on our technological reputation; 3) that loudly announcing our planned intentions in this highly complex area could result in a vast amount of discredit being brought upon us in the eyes of the world if we failed either completely during the International Geophysical year, or if the Russians beat us to a satellite launching.

Got All They Asked For.

Q. President Eisenhower said that he had given the scientists all they had asked for on the Vanguard Project. Is this true? If it is true, why didn't they ask for more?

A. Yes, it is true. However, budget limitations control the amount of money the Defense Department was permitted to ask for and this is why they didn't ask for more.

Q. Why didn't the Administration let the Redstone project propel the satellite?

A. A decision to use the Vanguard missile was made by the Office of the Secretary of Defense after they had reviewed the technical progress of the Vanguard program as opposed to the progress made on the Redstone project.

Q.—Did we know from the beginning of the project that the Russians were likely to beat us to the launching?

A.—An analysis of the public record of Russian announcements made shortly after our July 30, 1955, announcement of the initiation of the project, coupled with the knowledge that the Russians generally understate the facts concerning their technical progress, could have led one to the conclusion that the Russians were very likely to beat us to the launching, particularly since our program was on a low priority, low cost, no overtime basis.

Evidence Not Conclusive.

I don't believe the evidence available in the latter half of 1955 could be described as conclusive knowledge. That we would be beaten to the launching was not realized by many people within the Government until just recently.

Q. Is it a fact that some of the blame for the United States's lag goes back as far as the Truman Administration?

A. No. Had this been true, the Administration would quickly have remedied the difficulty by initiating a program early in 1953 instead of waiting till 1955 to do it.

Red Tape Snarl-up.

Q. Administration and Pentagon spokesmen say our missile programs are "soundly based" and moving ahead as rapidly as possible. Against your governmental experience, what does this mean?

A.—Shortly after my resignation, and approximately 20 months ago, I wrote an article for a national publication titled, "Our Guided Missiles Crisis." This pointed out the red tape snarl-up and delays caused by interservice competition, along with their probable effects. Nothing has occured since writing this article which would change the conclusion arrived at 20 months ago—that the ballistic missiles programs are essentially snarled in red tape, even if scientifically "soundly based."

Q.—We are also told that the Russians may be ahead in some missile developments, but that we are ahead in others. Do you

Tilt in Power Balance Stirs War Threat

West in Pre-Korea Position and Khrushchev Is Gambler.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

PARIS.

"THERE'S a smell in the air that reminds me much too much of the months before the Korean war."

The speaker was wise, highly placed and qualified by long experience to judge the international atmosphere. As he hastened to explain, he did not mean that a shooting war was immediately likely. He meant, rather, that the Kremlin was once more reacting in its customary way to a favorable tilt in the world balance of power.

Such a tilt in the power balance was both the prelude and the chief cause of the Korean war. The feckless Truman-Lewis Johnson disarmament program of 1949-50 gravely weakened the West. It thus constituted an open invitation to aggression. Even the always cautious Stalin found the invitation irresistible. So he ordered the attack in Korea.

Balance Neglected.

Today the absolute power of each of the great world systems has grown incalculably, but the all-important balance between them has again been complacently neglected for five years. In general, the Western alliance has deteriorated shockingly in this period. More specifically, the progress of American national defense has been hamstrung by the Eisenhower-Charles E. Wilson disarmament program and we are now beginning to see the results.

Not long ago a French newspaper ironically published in parallel columns the news of the second successful Soviet test of an intercontinental ballistic missile, the news of the latest unsuccessful American missile test, and the news of Secretary Wilson's final order to sacrifice another combat division in the interests of the budget. Since then, the contrast has been rammed home by the famous Sputnik.

Forgotten Lessons.

If the American leaders are not guilty of flagrant public untruth, they must believe that this kind of contrast does not have much effect on the Kremlin. If this is their belief, they have forgotten the lessons of Korea, the war brought on in the name of budgetary "economy." And they have also failed to notice the numerous signs that the new masters of the Kremlin are again being emboldened by the West's weakness.

To be sure, the increase of destructiveness of the absolute weapons has made everyone much more reluctant to risk a shooting war. This reluctance is an important plus factor in the situation which did not exist before. But there are also wholly new minus factors.

For one thing, the man who

Satellite Giving Russia Data For Firing I.C.B.M. Accurately

Radio Signals Providing Information on True Shape of Earth and Factors That Affect Missile Flights.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)

Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.

THE SHOCKED SURPRISE with which the American public learned of the Soviet earth satellite was unnecessary. Sputnik had been discussed in Soviet scientific magazines for a year and a few months before it was launched a Soviet radio magazine alerted "ham" radio operators to the frequencies to be used and how to interpret the signals.

In Soviet scientific circles it was called an "automatic cosmic laboratory." In August 1955 the Soviet astronautic scientist, Professor Leonid Sedov, told the International Astronautic Congress at Copenhagen that "in 18 months, before the 'Eisenhower moon' will appear in the skies, a Soviet earth satellite will have conquered space."

Here was a clear warning that the effort to put a satellite into the sky was regarded as a race in Moscow. The Russians did not launch their moon in 18 months, but they did launch it before an American satellite could be put into the sky.

Ballistic Missile Used.

Even more important, according to the Moscow radio, the 184-pound Soviet satellite (as compared with the proposed 20-pound American) was launched by ballistic missile rockets that were in series (or quantity) production. Furthermore, it was successfully launched on the first attempt.

In the latter part of September, the Soviet review, Technica Molodeji, was received in Paris and the United States. It contained an article, "The Door to the Cosmos," that started off by saying: "By the time this article will have appeared, an artificial satellite created by the will of man will have left the limits of the atmosphere and will have demonstrated the force of the human mind in the kingdom of the desert of the cosmos."

Prior to this, the Soviet review Radio in the issue for June 1957 for the benefit of "ham" radio operators in the Soviet Union, gave full information of the radio transmission from the satellite.

Sputnik has two radio transmitters of frequencies of 20.005 and 40.002 megacycles. The code in which the transmitters send has been assumed to be secret in the United States. There is nothing secret about it.

Each of the two transmitters is affected cyclically by two measurement devices. The number of impulses sent each second is proportional to the measurements made by these devices.

The messages being sent report:

1. The surface temperature of the satellite;

2. The intensity of cosmic rays;

3. The number of meteorites striking the satellite. These are indicated by a simple microphone that transmits the noise of the impact of the meteorites;

4. The intensity of ultraviolet rays from the sun.

This is far from being a "piece of iron," such as Adm. Rawson Bennett, Navy chief of the Vanguard (United States satellite project), said anyone could throw into the air.

Other Information.

This is by no means all the information that can be obtained from the satellite. By the use of two frequencies, one double that of the other, the speed and trajectory of the satellite can be calculated.

With the same elements a large computer can calculate with more precision than ever

Red Institute Rears Babies As Experiment

Has Them Going Through Series of Exercises at 18 Months.

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

IN Leningrad I visited a school of medicine which emphasizes pediatrics. The institute has 2200 students, 40 professors and 250 teachers, and there is a clinic with 170 doctors and a hospital with 1000 beds and 500 nurses. The director of the institute also is director of the clinic and the chief doctor.

Leningrad has eight more clinics—three for surgery, three for therapy, one for diseases of the nervous system and one polyclinic for preventive medicine.

In an interesting experiment in the institute, 32 children without homes were taken from the lying-in hospital at birth. The institute was attempting to find out if it could rear these children in such a way as to have them as advanced and as normal as they would have been in a home with parents. When the children were 3 years old, they would be adopted.

Treatment of these children seemed to me to be based on the theories of Ivan Pavlov, famous Russian physiologist. A baby six months old already seemed to understand what was expected of him when given his exercises, which began at the age of two months. And at the age of 18 months the children went through their exercises without any direction and did them well.

Meaning Not Clear.

Just what this conditioning of the children may mean in the future I am not quite sure, for it looked to me as though it might not encourage initiative and independence of thought.

Institutes for research of all kinds are everywhere in the Soviet Union, for this is a government that understands the value of research.

I think I have given you an idea of the extensiveness of health work in the Soviet Union. What particularly impressed me was the preventive medical work done with moth-

U.S. Indicates Next Disarmament Move Is Up to the Russians

Americans in U.N. Believe Soviets Will Change Attitude When They Recover From Elation Over Sputnik.

By DONALD GRANT

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, Oct. 16.

THE UNITED STATES in effect responded to mounting pressure to exhibit more flexibility in its disarmament proposals by allowing it to become known today that America considers the next move is up to the Russians.

American diplomats, it was said, are constantly re-examining their position on disarmament. But it was pointed out that since President Eisenhower last Aug. 21 announced that the West was willing, under certain conditions, to extend a trial suspension of nuclear tests from 10 months to two years, Russia has made no counter offers.

Instead, the Soviets have launched their sputnik earth satellite, demonstrating their possession of a powerful rocket, presumably capable of carrying a nuclear warhead from Russia to targets in the United States.

As a part of this same American view considerable optimism is expressed as to future Russian moves in the chess game now being played with the subject of disarmament in the United Nations. It is recalled that Russia at one time had said that monitoring posts inside the Soviet Union to detect nuclear explosions would never be accepted as a part of an agreement to stop nuclear weapons tests. Subsequently Russia did agree to the establishment of such monitoring posts.

In Atoms-For-Peace Plan.

Similarly, Russia said it never would accept President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace proposal, but later reversed itself and the new international atomic energy organization now exists with Russian participation.

In a like manner, it is added, countless numbers of fruitless negotiating sessions were held in an effort to achieve an Austrian peace treaty—and one finally was achieved.

It is, therefore, by this view, unjustified to read into the "tough" speech by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko before the United Nations Political Committee last week a refusal for all time to negotiate on the basis of the present Western position. The Soviet Union, it is said, readily enough changes it policies—when such a change coincides with Russian self-interest.

It is added, finally, that Russia will in time come to see that at least some portions of the present Western offers toward disarmament are indeed in the self-interest of the Soviet Union.

This view assumes that Russia has not attained a decisive war-technological advantage in it development of an intercontinental ballistic missile. It is implied that Russia possesses very few of these indeed, and furthermore that the United States is still capable of nuclear retaliation from its bases around the periphery of the Soviet Union. Russia, when it gets over its current mood of elation over the launching of the sputnik is expected to return to a realization that war would be catastrophic for all.

Indeed, it was reported today in a dispatch from the U.N. sent by the news service Press Trust India to major newspapers in India that a movement of unspecified origin was under way to adjourn the whole disarmament discussion for a "cooling off period" of some three months. At that time, by this unverified report, a special assembly session would be called to consider the whole issue afresh.

If and when genuine Russian concessions are forthcoming, however, what concessions would follow from the Americans—and what are the irreducible American terms that will not be conceded?

The United States has insisted that future disarmament discussions take place within the same disarmament commission subcommittee, composed of the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Canada, which became deadlocked last month. It may be significant that the American view now is that the United States simply has opposed efforts to enlarge the circle of discussion "thus far."

'Third Force' Nations

A number of suggestions for enlarging the discussion have been made, notably by India, which wants "third force" na-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Real Heroes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

George H. Hall's article of Oct. 13 about the anti-intellectual attitude generally prevailing in the United States as against that of scientist-researcher admiration in the U.S.S.R. aroused me to jubilant agreement.

There are very few places on this earth where wealth is not desired and envied by most. If the Soviet Union in the well-recognized dire need for more and younger and better scientists is heaping upon them as a group all the honors and material advantages which a state-controlled society can bestow, in order to attract them to these endeavors, then maybe we should re-examine our situation. Surely our need is dire indeed. Surely we should make a scientist's reward more attractive from a money point of view.

But something else is needed. This vital something I refer to is a change in our attitude toward people in purely academic, purely intellectual endeavors. They will never be rich. Even if we pay them lots more than is now common, they will never be rich. But if we can assure them that their families will live comfortably, not plushly, will they not be able to devote more of their energy and ability to science rather than worry about their children's college education?

If we can substitute social recognition for the tolerant smile which so often nowadays acknowledges an introduction to a none-too-affluent intellectual worker, will we not then give him a moral boost which will do far more to urge him on than a meager advance in salary?

After all, the scale of values which we apply to academic workers does not have to stop with physicists and ballistics experts. Dr. Salk received a great deal of recognition and it was certainly well deserved. But not everybody can perfect a polio vaccine. Science is teamwork. Do you remember the names of any of the people who collaborated with him? I don't. My 9-year-old boy doesn't. But he knows the first and last names, the home towns and the salaries of all the big-league ball players.

Surely I have nothing against ball players. But aren't our values just a little twisted?

If our 9-year-olds were fed a little more of the glamour and the trials and ordeals of the men of science, if the parents of these same 9-year-olds spoke highly and with a certain degree of reverence of these men, or should I say, heroes of the war against the unknown, if they were to catch some of the boundless enthusiasm and need for hero worship of our teen-agers—would we not then have lots of bright and eager young men and women to staff our laboratories and school rooms and all the other many places where the mind—the free minds of free people—wrestles with the unknown and creates progress?

Regulation at Lincoln U.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A regulation requiring that all faculty communications to the Board of Curators must pass through the hands of the president of Lincoln has been in force for some time at Lincoln University. The regulation stipulates that the president cannot withhold or delay the communications. Should they be nevertheless withheld or delayed, to whom might one complain? If free access of faculty personnel to the Board of Curators is denied, how can the Board fulfill its obligation to see that the university is properly administered?

The Movie Goer Writes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Omar Khayyam, come sit with me tonight,
Let us review the passing time in flight;
Your little bird has flown for many a year,
While still we ponder what is wrong or right.

I saw your picture at the Fox
today,
As though to pass an idle hour away;
'Twas wooden holly at its worst and best,
And over-dressed and over-talked, but gay.

But ever and anon a famous line
Between the caravans of girls and wine
You spoke, and from the depths of memory
Recalled your loaf, your jug, your loves, your vine.

Your movie only teased this short review,
Lighting a little lonely hour or

Good night, dear Omar, and a good, good night—
'Twas not the picture, Omar, it was you.

Suffering Senator!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Can it be that injunction-wise Father of the Year, John McClellan of Arkansas, has never heard the Biblical injunction, "Suffer little children," or does he perhaps interpret this as "Suffer, little colored children"?

A Highway Dream Shrinks

The United States Bureau of Public Roads has issued a progress report on the nation's dream of great new national superhighways. There also are harsh economic indications that the dream may be cut short.

Progress is shown in the commitment of more than one billion dollars for 2227 miles of the planned 41,000-mile federal interstate system. Only 15 months have gone by since passage of the Highway Act of 1956 which authorized this program.

And now for the other side of the picture. In only 15 months, the cost of concrete has risen. So has the cost of steel, and the cost of labor. Congress estimated that 27½ billions would pay for the interstate program. Now it appears that the program will cost an additional three billions, if not more.

Further, the interstate system is to be built from a federal trust fund raised through road-use taxes on gasoline, tires, etc. Trust fund income for fiscal year 1956 fell 60 millions under the expected sum of a billion and a half dollars.

In short, the nation is not going to be able to build all the planned superhighways in the 13 years allotted to the program on the basis of present revenues. What should be done? Congressional committees will review the question in the next session, and there are four possible answers:

1. Raise the use taxes.
2. Appropriate more money from general revenue.
3. Reduce the planned road mileage.
4. Lengthen the construction program.

Congress will be under considerable pressure to keep the building program on schedule, even if it costs more or means more taxes. The states have sought to add to the mileage and few will be in favor of giving up any roads. Nevertheless, the soundest answer to the highway problem is to stretch out the program if necessary.

Government costs are already high. If they are to go higher, there are many projects other than highways which require serious attention: defense and schools, to name only two. An inflationary period of rising costs is never the best time to rush such public works projects as highway building.

Some federal officials think the interstate building program might be lengthened from 13 to 16 years. Even more time may be needed. In any case, the country would not lose any of its desired highways. It would get them as it could afford to pay for them. And if a period of deflation set in, then road work could be speeded up to give impetus to the whole economy.

The American people already are prepared to wait 13 years for modern national highways. Presumably they would be willing to wait a few years longer if patience would reduce the cost and leave a backlog of work for an economic rainy day.

As Order Is Restored

President Eisenhower has agreed to meet with five Republican Congressmen from the South sometime soon to discuss removal of federal troops from Little Rock, Ark. By the time the meeting is held, a good many of the troops will already be gone. The Government has ordered withdrawal of 500 of the 1000 paratroopers at Central High School, and is releasing 8500 of the 10,000 National Guardsmen from federal service.

These moves indicate that the troops will be taken out of Little Rock in direct ratio to the expectation that local authorities will keep the peace and uphold the law. So far the federal forces have kept the peace well. The high school is integrated and the mobs have disintegrated.

But the President has never left any question as to the primary responsibility for keeping law and order. That responsibility belongs to the Governor of Arkansas and the authorities of Little Rock. The withdrawal of federal troops is a test of intentions as well as a test of civic duty.

A Pilot Puts His Life in Hostage

Jump or fly it down? That was the question and there were only seconds to answer it. A propeller blade had slashed into the fuselage of an Air Force tanker plane. Smoke trailed from the big KC-97 and dangerous high octane fumes filled the cockpit. The pilot, Lt. Donald Wittevrongel, ordered his seven crewmen to bail out into the black night.

Eighteen thousand feet below was populous Southern California. Lt. Wittevrongel, knowing the vapors might ignite and explode the tanker like a bomb, and without the three assistants normally required for a landing, radioed March Air Force Base for permission to try a landing. He got it.

It is one thing to fight against an attack by man or the elements and another to sit and wonder if at any second you will be blasted into eternity by something that you cannot come to grips with as it rides along with you. The pilot made his landing safely.

For skilled airmanship and for a courageous act in protecting the lives of his crewmen and those of persons on the ground, Lt. Wittevrongel deserves the same commendation that many a flyer won for bravery in action against the enemy.

Withholding First

When Dr. John W. Schwada peers into Missouri's future, he sees new state taxes. Dr. Schwada is Gov. Blair's assistant budget director. He told the State Chamber of Commerce convention recently that despite the heavy pruning his office expects to do on budget requests from various state departments, the combination of "unlimited needs and limited resources" can only mean new taxes eventually.

If there is logic in this, there is also logic in the statement of Milton Carpenter, Department of Revenue director, that the state seeks to increase its income through tighter collection of existing taxes before it asks for new levies.

But just what constitutes a tight collection system? Mr. Carpenter told the Chamber that a study of 150,000 income tax cases disclosed that 25,000 Missourians had failed to file state returns. Upon being notified, 3600 of the delinquents paid. That still leaves more than 21,000 cases that are being certified to the attorney general for collection. Even if this threat of legal action succeeds, the state will have gone to a lot of trouble to extract from citizens income taxes they should be paying voluntarily, as so many others do.

Isn't the simple and sensible course on this matter clear? Missouri ought to have a withholding law, under which employers deduct state income taxes just as they deduct federal income taxes from pay checks. This would not catch all of the evaders, to be sure. Self-employed tax dodgers can be caught only by a consistent policy of comparing state and federal tax returns. But withholding would plug what we suspect is the biggest leak in the state treasury. As a matter of equity as well as expediency, our state government will be making a serious mistake if it asks the people for more taxes without first requiring all alike to pay the taxes they already owe.

Sputnik vs. Free Enterprise

Henry R. Luce, on the eve of his economic conference advocating extension of private enterprise, was himself somewhat less than a convincing advocate of private enterprise in his appearance on "Meet the Press." The head of Time, Life and Fortune was asked how this economic system could be defended against the challenge of the Soviet earth satellite. He responded by citing over-all United States production volumes. This would seem to beg the question. Our leadership in production generally is an unquestioned fact, but so is the Soviets' priority in the conquest of space, which they are making the most of as an argument that Communism is superior to capitalism.

Mr. Luce might soundly have pointed out that sailing earth satellites is not a proper sphere of activity for private enterprise. It is too costly, and offers no hope of monetary profit. It is a field for which public enterprise alone is equipped, whether in a Communist country or in a capitalist. In this respect it is like the atomic bomb. Private enterprise can assist with brains, equipment and industrial plant, but only Government can supply the money, the planning, and, above all, the leadership.

The Manhattan Project for atomic fission demonstrated to all the world what could be done by a country with a popular government and a free capitalist economy. But it would never have been accomplished without the indomitable motive force and money of the United States Government behind it. The forfeit of leadership in launching an earth satellite is not a failure of private enterprise, but a failure of public enterprise to provide the same unconquerable resources of will and means that produced the atomic bomb.

Private enterprise has its faults, and in abundance, but it is still the most effective production system yet devised on the globe which Sputnik I is now circling. Soviet production is confronting it with its most severe challenge, and in that challenge the Russian beat on the satellite is the most damaging incident in the eyes of the world at large. It is not fair and in the present state of affairs it is not smart to blame private enterprise for falling short of what it was never intended to do.

Queen High

Queen Elizabeth's visit to Canada and the United States seems to have been widely taken in some quarters as a signal to administer a sound drubbing to the lady in particular, her courtiers at large, and the monarchy in general. This represents a reaction to travel which could hardly have been foreseen, since the usual reaction to a pending visit is to dust off the welcome mat, put it out, and let it speak for itself. We can only trust that Cook's, the American Express, and other agencies with a vested interest in travel have their best operatives working in shifts round the clock to undo this baffling phenomenon.

Her Majesty has been charged with a wide range of offenses against the peace and dignity of her subjects, including dowdiness, banality, a liking for horse races, and a willful determination to wear in North America some dresses she has already worn in England, instead of buying all new ones. To the non-legalistic eye it is hard to see how she is going to put up a defense against all that.

Fortunately, as far as we are concerned, she doesn't have to. It has been our observation that Elizabeth is looking quite lovely; we would rather see a woman in an old dress that becomes her than in a new one that doesn't, any time; and horse-racing is still quite a few furlongs indeed from being an un-American activity. Henceforward we are going to concentrate on hoping our guest will enjoy her visit as much as the two host countries are obviously enjoying it; maybe some others should too.

Counsel From California

Senator Knowland of California says that Congress will cut federal taxes next year. He says that the size of the cut will depend on conditions and that it will be possible because of the Eisenhower Administration's balancing of the budget.

This says more eloquently than his official announcement that Senator Knowland is running for Governor of California next year with his eye on the White House after that. The minority leader knows that defense may well cost more next year than this.

And so the Senator says the budget will be cut which becomes a quick equivalent, in the eyes of those who read hastily, of saying it ought to be cut. It would be less political to say that federal taxes ought to be kept as they are and for good reason—less political and more statesmanlike.

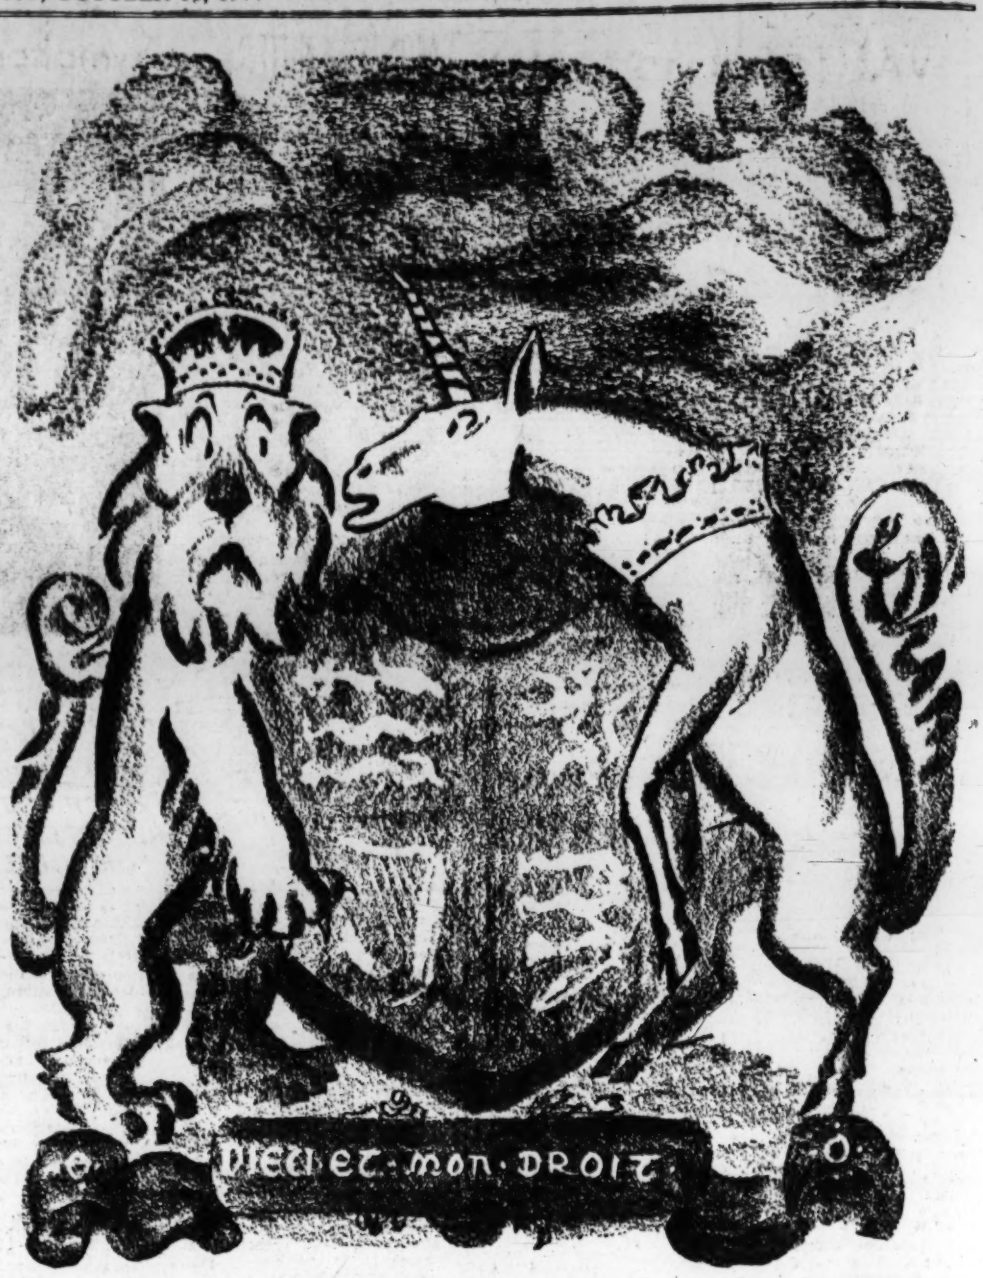
Our Legitimate Theater

Manager Louis J. Gualdoni of Kiel Auditorium has our sympathy in his efforts to adapt the Opera House to the uses of legitimate theater. The latest road show to be housed there, "My Fair Lady," evoked many protests from patrons who could not hear. Earlier, "South Pacific," "The King and I" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" had played there in the last several years, with varying satisfaction.

In the most recent instance, the "My Fair Lady" company insisted on using its own portable public address system instead of the auditorium's $50,000 R.C.A. system installed in 1954. Mr. Gualdoni proposes to take "steps to prevent repetition of this error." There are, however, two sides to it, and we doubt that this is the solution. The auditorium system would have had to be operated by a technician unfamiliar with the show, with results that could hardly have been satisfactory, either.

The inescapable fact seems to be that while the Opera House is fine for pageantry and spectacle it is not really suitable to legitimate theater or to most musical theater. It is too big—3500 seats, compared with 1600 at the American. The blame should not be laid at the door of Mr. Gualdoni for not doing the impossible, or of the Auditorium for not being what it is not. The blame attaches to those producers with hits on their hands who insist on playing hit-and-run engagements to as many customers as they can crowd into any one place.

In the long run, we do not believe this policy will benefit the legitimate theater in St. Louis, and it should become possible in the light of experience so far to persuade hit-happy producers that they will do themselves no harm by staying around long enough to be seen and heard.



"NO, I DON'T THINK SHE PLAYS GOLF"

Turkey as a Prop of NATO

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Ten years of American aid to nation now butt of Russian threats has yielded good military results, correspondent writes, but has not cured economic ills; inflation a major domestic problem; but Turkish army is hardy, unworried by Syrian crisis.

William Henry Chamberlin in The Wall Street Journal

ANKARA.

Ten years have passed since President Truman picked up the burden which Britain was dropping and projected the United States into the Eastern Mediterranean with his program of military and economic aid for Greece and Turkey. Here in Turkey—the current butt of Soviet threats—it is perhaps worth noting that the military results so far look better than the economic.

During that decade over two billion dollars worth of United States aid—about one third economic, the rest military — has flowed into Turkey. One of the largest American military missions, headed by three generals and an admiral and studded with other officers, is working hard to help Turkey's army, air force and small navy master weapons and tactics.

Harry S. Truman

In addition, a vigorous United States Information Service program tries to "tell the American story" in news releases and pictures and helps to sustain Turkish newsreel films. It has taken the initiative in starting Turkish-American societies, with libraries and reading rooms, in six of the largest cities. It also sponsors visits by American orchestras, ballets and scholars.

Over-Ambitious Economy

The economic aid mission works in close connection with the United States Embassy. There is also an agricultural mission, which co-operates with the Turkish Ministry of Agriculture in "teaching teachers" — Turks who will give instruction in modern methods of irrigation, forestry, livestock care and other subjects to Turkish farmers throughout the country.

Whatever help it may be providing, though, American economic aid has not prevented Turkey from getting into serious financial difficulties characterized by inflation and heavy foreign debt in recent years. That is the price the present Government—new elections will be held late this month—is paying for over-ambitious investment.

While dispensing military and economic aid is far and away the biggest United States enterprise here, a number of American business firms are also active. They include General Electric, Squibb, Minneapolis-Moline, American Tobacco and some of the larger oil companies. Turkey must import almost all its oil; a dozen foreign oil companies are prospecting. A big oil strike could make all the difference to Turkey's distressed foreign exchange position—but it hasn't happened yet.

Half of NATO'S Troops

Against this dim economic background the military picture seems brighter. Take, for example, the beautifully located Turkish port of Izmir, with hills in the background and two long arms of land embracing the Aegean and forming a fine natural harbor. This is NATO's easternmost frontier, where American Lt. Gen. Paul Donal Harkins, a veteran of the Korean War, heads an international command set-up.

American, Turkish and Greek officers are most numerous in the Izmir staff headquarters. There is also a sprinkling of British, French and Italian officers. This NATO base is one of the few places where Turks and Greeks work together harmoniously as members of the same military team, and with never a cross word about Cyprus, the island over which the Turkish and Greek governments have been at sword's-point for years. The military co-operation at Izmir is a diplomatic achievement.

Turkey and Greece together contribute more than half of the soldiers under arms in NATO. Their geographical significance as roadblocks to Soviet expansion to the Mediterranean and the troubled Middle East is obvious from a look at the map.

This is especially true as regards Turkey, a country with an oblong shape, a thousand miles from east to west, 300 or 400 miles from north to south, set squarely athwart the Soviet route to Syria and Egypt. Geographically and also militarily and politically Turkey suggests a lid clamped firmly on the fermenting pot in some of the Arab countries to the south.

On the Syrian Frontier

Gen. Harkins in his conversation was enthusiastic over the spirit and desire to assimilate the use of modern weapons among the Turkish and Greek units he had visited, despite technical backwardness in some cases. He had recently returned from a visit to districts of Turkey adjacent to the Syrian border and quoted the Turkish corps commander in the area as discounting the likelihood of any serious outbreak of fighting—a border skirmish took place just the other day—on the ground that it would take the Syrians years to master the new Soviet weapons they are receiving.

The Turk, with a warrior tradition stretching back for centuries, is an old-fashioned American officer's dream soldier, hardy, uncomplaining, well-disciplined, capable of great physical endurance.

Brig. Gen. Erik Svensson, in charge of the branch of the mission which is attached to the Turkish ground forces, summed up the general results of 10 years of United States military aid.

From Horses to Tanks

"The Turkish army has advanced from horse cavalry to tanks, from piston-driven aircraft to jet planes, from a big unwieldy army with little conception of modern warfare (Turkey was not in World War II) to a smaller, but much better organized force, where every division knows what it has to do. Their General Staff is now organized pretty much along American lines. Co-operation has been excellent; I have never known a case when a Turkish officer would not be willing to apply a new military idea, if he had the trained men and money to implement it."

The principal Turkish forces, the First and Third Armies, are maintained on the two flanks of the country, the former in the vicinity of Istanbul, the latter on the mountainous frontier with the Soviet Union. There has been some strengthening of Turkish forces on the Syrian frontier, but nothing that would point to an alarming crisis, Syrian and Soviet propaganda notwithstanding.

United States diplomats here must walk a tight-rope, expressing full appreciation of Turkey's political and military loyalty and value as an ally while regretting the failure of the Turkish Government to give effect to the economic recommendations of the International Monetary Fund for a less headlong pace of investment. It remains to be seen how much Turkey's financial woes will undermine its military progress.

Man's Carving of Himself

SURGEONS ALL, by Harvey Graham. (Philosophical Library, 459 pgs., $10.)

The story of the progress of surgery starts with the men who drew pictures on the walls of their cave homes and practiced an operation known as trepanning. This was a method of reducing a small portion of the skull to paper thinness by scraping with a flint edge and being careful, at the same time, not to injure the very thin gray membrane located just under the skull bone. The purpose of the operation was to release the demons inside a man's head that caused the dreaded "falling sickness."

From the magic and superstition of the ancients through the civilizations of Egypt, then Greece, then Rome, the progress of surgery was labored and slow but forward. Galen of Pergamos was born in 131 A.D. and in him surgery and medicine found an authority which was to be maintained with ecclesiastical support until the 1600s.

Surgery and all the sciences suffered in the Middle Ages in Europe because of the conformity demanded by the early religious leaders and the lead in surgical progress was taken by the Arabic world.

The Arabs contributed medicinal knowledge and translated the Greek and Roman writings into the language of the Koran. Eventually, the Arabic translations were re-translated into European languages as Europe again assumed the lead in surgery.

Dr. Graham has sketched this progression of surgery in the first fourth of his book. From here the focus is on Europe and the last half of the book is the story of the advance of surgery in the British Isles.

Especially well done are the parts dealing with conquering pain and infection. The career of Joseph Lister as he applied the researches of Louis Pasteur to minimizing the blight of infection is quite comprehensive.

The book was originally published in 1939 when war claimed everyone's attention. A postcript in the current publication brings the progress of surgery from 1939 through 1956.

Aside from the fact that the last half of the book is primarily of British surgical progress from 1600 forward, enough is included to claim the attention of any reader interested in a survey of surgery's progress from the dawn of man to now. The writing is not technical or dull, is not concerned with philosophies or discipline controversies within the realm of medicine, but is intent on setting down the record of man's carving on himself with one of his most dramatic tools—the knife.

Indian's Last Stand

THE SEMINOLES, by Edwin C. McReynolds. (University of Oklahoma Press, 397 pgs., $5.75.)

A SIOUX CHRONICLE, by George E. Hyde. (University of Oklahoma Press, 334 pgs., $5.)

These volumes are the latest in the University of Oklahoma Press's excellent Civilization of the American Indian Series.

"The Seminoles" is probably the most extensive history of that remarkable nation yet written. Mr. McReynolds has set down in engaging fashion the complete story of the only Indian tribe that never officially made peace with the United States. He is an Oklahoma U. history professor whose special interest is the Five Civilized Tribes.

"A Sioux Chronicle" is the story of the cold war that existed between the Sioux nation and the United States from 1878 to 1890. Confined to reservations in the Dakota Territory, the Sioux made a last stand against the overwhelming cultural and economic forces that were closing in on them. This book takes up where Mr. Hyde's earlier study of the Sioux, "Red Cloud's Folk," left off.

Bitter Truths

WASHINGTON.

A FEW DAYS after Sputnik was launched, Mr. Dulles left Washington for a long weekend at his island retreat. This was a sensible thing to do if it meant that, instead of making statements, he was taking time out to think whether and how what Sputnik signifies has affected this country's position in the world.

He will not, we must suppose, have comforted himself, as did the President at his press conference, with the notion that Sputnik is a "scientific" achievement which has no serious "military importance." He cannot entertain the crude idea that there are two separate compartments—one for science and one for the military—that there is some vast difference between launching a missile and launching a satellite. Mr. Dulles cannot have any doubt that a nation which can launch Sputnik is very far advanced in science, in engineering, and in industrial capacity. Nor can he doubt that if this advance continues, or, as it might, if it is compounded and becomes cumulative, there will be a radical alteration in the world balance of power.

Lippmann

Future at a Discount.

In this connection, we must remember that in world politics men commonly discount what they believe is the future, treating what they think will happen as if it had already happened. Thus in the few years after 1945 when this country had a monopoly of the atomic bomb, the world regarded us as more powerful than in fact we were.

Now, as a result of the successful test of the ballistic missile and the launching of Sputnik, Russia looks enormously powerful. Almost certainly the truth is that she is not now decisively superior but that if present trends continue in Russia and in the United States, she will achieve decisive superiority.

The discounting of this expectation by the rest of the world is having a profound effect on the American position. Mr. Dulles, in his island retreat, can hardly have failed to ponder deeply the consequences. For what he and his country are faced with is the disparity between our actual power and the positions to which we are committed, the objectives we have declared for, in our foreign policy.

Ignoring the Facts.

These are days when our people, who have been hearing much bad news, are becoming of a mind to listen to some hard truths. One of them is that the Eisenhower - Dulles foreign policy is on many critical issues based on a wishful estimate of our own power and a self-deluding notion that because our intentions are righteous, our hopes are destined to be fulfilled.

Again and again, the Eisenhower-Dulles policy is a refusal to recognize the facts of life. A policy which is not grounded in the realities will have objectives that are unattainable and will produce consequences that are unforeseen.

Thus there is our China policy which is based on the notion that if we ostracize the Peiping government, it will eventually collapse, be overthrown, or surrender. While we wait for one of these happy endings, we subsidize a Chinese government in Formosa which can never be the government of China, and is manifestly deteriorating.

Intentions Not a Policy.

Because of this fundamentally false estimate of the realities of power in Eastern Asia, our prestige has been declining since long before the launching of Sputnik. For our aims are no doubt righteous. But in the hard and sour realities of world politics, good intentions are not a policy.

Our German policy, which has been largely dominated by Dr. Adenauer, is based on the curious notion that Russia can be induced to surrender, to allow Eastern Germany to be swallowed by Western Germany, and to let a reunified Germany be incorporated as the strongest European military power in NATO.

If there is a single responsible and informed man who, when he is off the record, believes in this fairy tale, I have never met him. Most of those who say they believe in it really believe that it is just as well if Germany is not reunified.

Mid-East Fallacy.

A German policy which is so unrealistic and so ambiguous must in the nature of things crack up. Yet we have no other German policy.

Our Middle Eastern policy is based on the extraordinary notion that Russia, the greatest power bordering on the Middle East, can, like Czarist Russia in the days of the supremacy of Britain, be excluded. Because of this underlying fallacy, no policy we undertake in the Middle East can really succeed. For Russia cannot be excluded, and what is more, the Arab states, who want to work both sides of the street, object to excluding her.

The common characteristic of the China, the German and the Middle Eastern policy is the crucial assumption that our power and influence are so great that our adversaries — Russia and China—will have to surrender. Since they show no signs of surrendering, since they show many signs that they are growing in power, we do not have negotiable policies. As a result, when an event like the launching of Sputnik discloses that we are far from being all-powerful, our prestige and influence are profoundly shaken.

MONTEUX NOTES U.S. MUSICAL GROWTH

Guest Conductor to Direct St. Louis Orchestra in Season Opener.

Pierre Monteux, who will conduct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its opening concert this season tomorrow night, said today the nation's zest for good music had grown mightily in 40 years.

When Monteux made his only previous appearance here with Diaghileff's Ballet Russe in 1916, he recalled, the United States had only 14 symphony orchestras. Today, he said, such orchestras are everywhere in the land.

Born in Paris in 1875, Monteux has conducted 87 orchestras in this country and abroad in his 60-year career. He took the St. Louis orchestra through rehearsal yesterday and wound up in high spirits, ready for a good lunch. He said it ought to be a fine concert.

Monteux mentioned that the second movement of Jan Sibelius's Second Symphony was being inserted in the program as a tribute to the great Finnish composer who died last month, two months before reaching his ninety-second birthday.

Also to be played in concerts at Kiel Auditorium Thursday at 8:40 p.m. and Friday at 2 p.m. are the "Fingal's Cave" Overture by Mendelssohn, the Suite from "Der Rosenkavalier" by Richard Strauss, Brahms's Symphony No. 3 in F Major, and the Symphony No. 2 by Paul Creston, an American composer.

Monteux, a man of rotund proportions, has great good humor. He is a natty dresser and wears his handle-bar moustache with a jaunty air. Anything but touchy about his age, he views cheerfully the onslaught af advancing years and seems delighted that in his case they have taken so little toll.

Asked about his two years in the trenches as a French infantryman in World War I, Monteux said he was an "old man" even then. He saw action at Verdun, Soissons and in the Argonne forest, but said he did not regard himself as a very effective fighting man.

"We went into the trenches and had some rats coming between our legs," he recalled. He thought the modern soldier, particularly the paratrooper, has a tougher time. He said he could not imagine himself making a parachute descent.

In 1956 Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra during a tour of Russia. He said the Russians were "crazy about music." Travel in Russia was difficult, he said, but he managed in excellent fashion.

"Of course," he said, "I was only 80 then." He remarked that he was the only living former conductor of the Boston Symphony, which he directed from 1919 to 1924. "They couldn't kill me," he added, "so every year they ask me to come back and make some appearances."

Monteux, joking with a reporter, said that at 82 he felt he had a right to be helped on with his overcoat although two years ago he would have declined the service. He pointed to his curly hair and said: "You can say you have seen my hair, and it is not dyed."

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will have 17 new members when it opens its seventy-eighth season tomorrow. The new members are:

First violins, William Hanley, Robert Menga, Ilaro Pitaro; second violins, Beverly Anne Beasley, Lois Carkeek, Louis Eghian, Stephen Karam; viola, Vincent Liota; violoncellists, Peter Stolarchyk, Olga Zilboorg; double bass, Joseph Uray; flute, Janet Sillars; horns, James Schmitt, George Nadaf; trumpet, Fred Stacy; trombone, George Sloan; tuba, James Emde.

FRENCH NOVELIST REPORTED CHOICE FOR NOBEL PRIZE

© New York Times News Service

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 16 — Albert Camus of France has been selected by the Swedish academy as winner of the 1958 prize in literature, informed sources said last night.

The prize in literature will be announced officially tomorrow. Camus is best known in the Nordic countries for his "La Peste" ("The Plague"), a historical novel which deals with the military occupation of France in World War II.

The French novelist and poet-philosopher would be the youngest Nobel award winner in the fifty-odd years in which this annual selection has been made.

Camus, now in his middle forties, first attracted attention by his novel, "The Stranger," a story of a Frenchman who killed an Arab in a moment of jealousy. It was this novel, told in the Hemingway manner, that won him his start in the literary world, although Camus had written poetically and about existential philosophy.

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Braun, 3025 Elliot avenue, observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary yesterday at a mass at the Church of the Sacred Heart, 2840 Twenty-fifth street. Both are 80 years old.

Three of Braun's sisters also have observed fiftieth wedding anniversaries in the last 12 years.

Tomorrow's Events

Meeting: American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Institute of Radio Engineers; Donald Heitert, speaker; "Physical Aspects of Electronic Equipment"; 103 Rueppel Hall, 3621 Olive street; 7:30 p.m.

Meeting: Young Adult Creative Writers; young adult department of Central Public Library, 1301 Olive street; 7:45 p.m.

Family Affair Program: Miss Alice Curd, speaker; "See America First"; St. Louis County Library auditorium, 6814 Natural Bridge road, Normandy.

COUNTRY DAY FUND AT $350,000 MARK

Commitments, Contingent Pledges Announced in $700,000 Drive.

Commitments and contingent pledges in a drive to raise $700,000 for completion of the new Country Day School in Ladue total $350,000, it was announced last night.

The progress report was given at a meeting attended by about 500 parents of pupils, alumni and friends of the school, in Danforth Chapel at 425 North Warson road, Ladue.

James S. McDonnell, president of McDonnell Aircraft Corp. and honorary chairman of the Country Day board of trustees, pledged $200,000 on the condition that the other $500,000 is raised by the end of this year. His company previously has given $300,000 for the new school.

A similarly contingent gift of $70,000 was provided by Morton J. May, chairman of the board of May Department Stores Co.; Morton D. May, president of that company and an alumnus of Country Day, and the Louis D. Beaumont Foundation.

Additional contingent pledges totaling $30,000 were announced by Thomas G. Rutledge, chairman of the completion campaign.

Buildings completed on the 56-acre campus are the upper school, Mathews Hall and Danforth Chapel. Still to be finished are McDonnell gymnasium, a dining hall and playing fields.

Chapin S. Newhard, president of the school's board of trustees, said the contractors have estimated that $50,000 can be saved if the work is completed speedily.

HERBERT H. AID FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

SAMUEL THURMAN HALL DEDICATION

Abram L. Sachar to Speak Friday at United Hebrew Temple.

Abram L. Sachar, president of Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass., will give the principal address at the dedication of the newly completed Samuel Thurman educational hall at United Hebrew Temple, 225 South Skinker boulevard, at 8 p.m. Friday.

The new building is named in honor of Rabbi Samuel Thurman, who has been rabbi of the Reform congregation since 1914.

Sabbath services will be conducted by Rabbi Jerome Grollman, past president of the St. Louis Rabbinical Association and assistant rabbi of United Hebrew Temple. Mrs. Samuel Thurman will conduct the blessing over the Sabbath lights while Samuel J. Bronstein, congregation president, will give an address of welcome.

Service of dedication for the religious school will begin at 11:15 a.m. Saturday with a Sabbath festival service conducted by Rabbis Thurman and Grollman with the participation of Ben R. Schneider, chairman of the religious school committee.

A banquet concluding the weekend ceremonies will be held Sunday at 6:30 o'clock at Hotel Chase. Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson will be toastmaster. Guests will include Rabbi Bernard Lipnick, president of the Rabbinical Association; Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter; Gov. James T. Blair Jr.; Donald Gunn, president of the Board of Aldermen; Frank P. Briggs, Grand Master of Missouri Masons; Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley of Washington University and the Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of St. Louis University.

The Rev. Dr. O. Walter Wagner, executive director of the Metropolitan Church Federation, will deliver the dedicatory address, with a response by Rabbi Thurman and benediction by Rabbi Grollman.

An inspection tour of the religious school will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday, with cornerstone dedication ceremonies at 5 p.m.

The new educational hall adjoining the temple on the south contains eight modern classrooms and a chapel which can be converted into a lounge. Architects were Hellmuth, Obata and Kassabaum and the general contractor was Sol P. Shakofsky Construction Co.

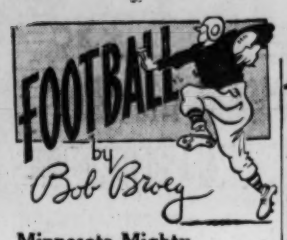
DeWitt Among Likely Candidates to Succeed Greenberg

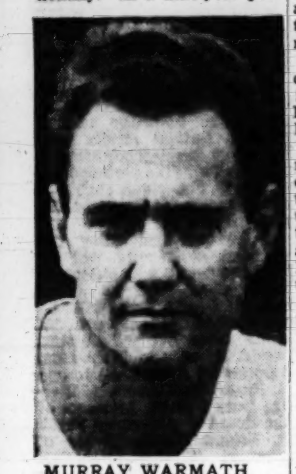


Minnesota Mighty Again on Gridiron.

PAUL BUNYAN is back. The sleeping giant of the North has aroused from his several-season slumber. Minnesota, one of the great names in football, again is a colossus of the college gridiron.

The Gophers, once more golden, will be on exhibition Saturday at Champaign, where the Maroon and Gold hasn't won since Minnesota colors last were hoisted above the Big Ten. They'll bring with them an impressive record of three victories in which they've scored 108 points to 31 for the opposition.

Back in the two decades Dr. Henry L. Williams coached 'em at the beginning of the century, and particularly in the '30s under Bernie Bierman, the Gophers ranked at or near the top nationally. In a nine-year period under Bierman through 1941, playing topflight league and non-conference schedules, they lost only nine of 72 games.



MURRAY WARMATH

From the time they won their thirteenth Big Ten title in '41, however, the oak-legged sons of the north country went into a decline that lasted until the arrival of a Johnny Reb as coach. Up around the Twin Cities they call Murray Warmath "Bierman with a smile."

A Tennessee graduate in 1935, Warmath, former Mississippi State and West Point assistant, then headmaster at State, replaced Wes Fesler in 1954. And year by year the Gophers have been getting stronger.

Last fall Minnesota won six, tied two and lost only once. That setback, 7 to 0, was a heart-breaker. It came against Iowa and cost the Gophers the Western Conference crown and their first trip to the Rose Bowl.

Some Good Things Come in Big Packages.

WITH 26 returning lettermen, Minnesota has resembled a championship team so far this season, rolling over the University of Washington, 46 to 7, outscoring Purdue, 21 to 17, and overwhelming Northwestern, 41 to 7.

Except that the drawling Warmath favors the split-T offense over the single wing, the team is as typically Minnesota as it was during that 1933-41 stretch which produced six Big Ten titles, five unbeaten seasons and five national championships.

The Gophers are, in other words, big and strong, stressing awesome brawn where some modern-day coaches emphasize streamlined speed. The fact is, though once again getting the best of the high school crop in its territory, Minnesota grows 'em wide - shouldered, broad-beamed and thick-thighed.

The line averages 215 pounds from end to end. The ends are noted more for blocking and tackling than pass-catching. And as Dick Gordon, Minneapolis sports writer, reported in The Sporting News this week:

"If the tackles, 246-pound Frank Youso and 231-pound Norman Sixta, aren't quite the equal of such Gopher All-America immortals as Ed Widseth and Dick Wildung, they display a typically punishing charge on offense and those same immovable tendencies on defense."

To emulate Pug Lund and Bruce Smith, All-America candidate Bobby Cox and Dick Larson pitch and run at quarterback, and at fullback, still the position of bread-and-butter plunging it was in the day of Herb Joesting, Sheldon Beise, Stan Kostka and Bill Daley, Warmath has three human tanks —Bob Blakely, Dick Borstad and Rhody Tuszka.

Kick, Run, Not Pass.

BORSTAD, by the way, kicked a 14-yard field goal with less than four minutes to play, enabling Minnesota to nip Illinois last year at Minneapolis, 16 to 13.

That was the game which established Cox, the kid from Walla Walla, as a Big Ten star. Second-string quarterback at the time, he replaced Larson early in the game and directed the Gophers to both their touchdowns, leading them in rushing with 86 yards and passing for 54 more.

Warmath, despite Cox's aerial accuracy, shares Bierman's faith in football infantry tactics as well as old Bernie's head-butting practice-field formula. "On almost three-quarters of our so-called pass plays, we wind up running with the ball," says Warmath. "We just like to make the other fella think "we're going to throw."

Whether the Gophers will be able to grind their way past the Illini and overcome their Champaign hex is one worth the football fan's personal examination. Minnesota, once again mighty, could be en route to that long-awaited trip to Pasadena, but as Coach Warmath said in a considerable mouthful of logic:

"Ours (the Big Ten) is a cannibalistic league."

Cleveland Press Says Hank Will Go Today

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16 (AP)—Sports writers for this city's three daily newspapers think it likely that Hank Greenberg will be fired today as general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

If not, wrote one, the Indians will vanish—to Minneapolis in 1959.

The club's 13 directors vote today on whether to retain the one-time home run king, who has bossed the Indians for eight years—some fat, some lean.

The leanest was the season just completed. The Indians lost games, fans and money amid rising rumors and denials that the franchise would be moved.

(The more prominent candidates to succeed Greenberg include Bill Veeck and Bill DeWitt, the United Press speculates.

(Veeck, who was general manager of the team in 1948, commented: "I don't know anything about anything."" It is understood that he still wants to buy a team but not to work as "an employe." And the Indians are not for sale at this time.

(De Witt was president of the now defunct St. Louis Browns and later an aid to George Weiss of the Yankees.

(In St. Louis, DeWitt said he never has been contracted by an official of the Cleveland club. "I undrestand that's the speculation, though," he said when informed his name was listed among the candidates for Greenberg's job. "Two newsmen from Cleveland called me, but I haven't heard anything from the baseball club."

(Asked if he would take the job, if it were offered him, DeWitt asid, "It's a little embarrassing to be offered or even discuss a job a guy's got. Seriously, I'd have to know something definite about it. I'm very happy in my present position, but a fellow's always willing to improve himself."

(DeWitt currently is co-ordinator of baseball's fund for the assistance, financial and advisory, of minor league clubs.)

(Another prominent contender is Paul Richards, both general manager and field pilot of the Baltimore Orioles, who is known to have an interest in the Cleveland manager's job.)

A majority vote of the 13 directors—not a stock majority —will settle the issue.

Greenberg is a director himself. He owns a fifth of the stock, but has only one vote in 13 on his own job. He says he intends to fight to keep it.

"Why should the general manager with the third best record in baseball resign?" he asked.

But the experts believe Greenberg must go—for much the same reason that Greenberg fired field manager Kerby Farrell at the end of the 1957 disaster. Somebody must be the goat.

"Stated in the simplest possible terms," wrote Gordon Cobbledick, sports editor of the Plain Dealer, "it has come to this:

"If Greenberg is reappointed, it will mean that the owners do indeed intend to seek greener pastures elsewhere. If he is fired, or persuaded to resign, it will mean that they hope to continue to do business in Cleveland."

Hurt By Fans' Antagonism.

Cobbledick said that the directors who will vote against Greenberg "are convinced that public opinion is so strongly anti-Greenberg as to make it impossible for them to win back the vanishing fans so long as he remains."

Greenberg is "aware of, and puzzled and hurt by" the fans' antagonism, wrote Cobbledick. "He believes he has been the victim of a hostile press, and in a measure that is true, but he is unable to see that he created the hostility."

Hal Lebovitz of the News wrote that the odds against Greenberg appear large.

Frank Gibbons of the Press said that Greenberg's dismissal was " believed a certainty."

Ed McAuley wrote in the News that he didn't envy the directors in their task.

"What if the directors throw out Greenberg," he wrote, "and then discover that many other circumstances, ranging from the movement to the suburbs to the popularity of the horse tracks were major factors in the collapse of the box office?"

Finished Second Five Times.

The Uited Press quoted Greenberg: "I don't know what'll happen when I go in there. We'll just have to wait and see. I don't know any more about my future than anyone else."

Greenberg was plagued with growing discontent in this city which in 1948 set an all-time attendance record of 2,600,000 but which has seen a steady decline at the turnstiles ever since.

"I want to remain in Cleveland," Greenberg said. I think we have done very well. We won a pennant once and we just missed several other times."

Greenberg had another year to go on his latest contract, estimated at about $60,000 annually. It was said that the Indians would be forced to pay Greenberg his remaining year's salary if he is fired.

Hazle's Three-Quarter Ration Only Surprise in Series Split

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (UP)—Don McMahon had a full share of World Series money today to compensate for the fact that he didn't get half his share of praise in the Milwaukee Braves' march to the National League pennant.

The Brooklyn-born fast ball pitcher had only a 2-3 record after joining the Braves on June 28 but was voted a full $8924.36 share compared to the three-quarter share ($6693.27) awarded Bob (Hurricane) Hazle, Milwaukee's late-season slugging sensation. Hazle joined the club July 28, hit .526 for almost a month and finished with a .403 mark for 41 games.

That was the only real surprise in the distribution of the Series melon, revealed yesterday by Commissioner Ford Frick, but Hazle wasn't inclined to make an issue of it.

"I would like to have gotten a full share," said Hazle at his Columbia, S.C., home. "But it isn't for me to say what I should have. What the players voted is okay with me."

McMahon was en route to San Juan, P.R., where he will play winter ball, but his brother, Bill, said Don knew of the vote and was "very happy."

Anxious Waiting.

"Don really sweated it out," said his brother. "He deeply appreciated it and, if anything, was surprised Hazle didn't get a full share too."

McMahon, a red-faced, 215-pound right-hander, had one of the most deceptive records in baseball this year. Braves' Manager Fred Haney repeatedly called him "my club reliever" and pointed to a 1.53 earned run average as the true measure of his ability. McMahon pitched 47 innings of relief without once throwing a home run ball—another indication of his ability.

The Braves voted 30 full shares, including one to the regular center fielder, Bill Bruton, who was on the disabled list after July 11. They gave Nippy Jones, purchased late in the season from the P.C.L., a three-quarter slice; awarded $60,000-bonus boy John DeMerit, who played in 33 games, a one-third share of $2974.78, and handed $118,000-bonus kid Bob Taylor, who appeared in only seven games, a flat $1000.

The American League champion New York Yankees exhibited their traditional generosity when they voted 33 full shares, including one to Coach Bill Dickey, who was sick all year, and another to Pete Sheehy, who put in his thirtieth year as the team's clubhouse boy. They also voted a full share to traveling secretary Bill McCorry.

The Braves' full-share value was exceeded only by the $11,147.90 which went to each New York Giant in 1954 and the $9768.21 which went to each Brooklyn Dodger in 1955. The Yankees' full share of $5606.06 was the fourth-highest for losers.

Charley Segar, baseball's secretary, revealed that Sal Maglie had been voted shares by both the Dodgers, with whom he started the campaign, and the Yankees, with whom he finished it. Frick ruled that Maglie should have the share of the club he finished with—a one-half Yankee share of $2803.08 compared to the Dodgers' full third-place share of $1057.18.

The second-place St. Louis Cardinals voted 30 full shares worth $1636.22 each and the runnerup Chicago White Sox awarded 32 full shares worth $1521.39 each.

The Braves allotted three ope-third shares and $7500 to be split among bat boys, groundkeepers and part-season players.

The Yankees also passed out two half shares, two one-quarter shares and $3250 to batboys and groundkeepers. A man who didn't share the series money was Infielder Billy Martin who was traded away from New York to Kansas City June 15. It was the first time in his major league career which started in 1951 Martin didn't share in a series.

Cardinals Make Generous Cuts

THE Cardinals decided upon 31 full-share portions worth $1636.22 each in the division of their second-place portion of World Series money, and distributed full shares to five who had played less than complete seasons. Full shares went to Tom Alston and Murry Dickson, both of whom were on the disabled list for lengthy periods; to Bill Muffett, the relief pitcher who arrived in August and did almost a season's worth of work thereafter, and to Hoyt Wilhelm, hurler, and Eddie Miksis, handyman, who were sold to American League clubs late in the season. Bonus pitcher Von McDaniel wasn't active quite the entire season. But he got a full share, and who could argue against that?

Other full shares awarded by the Cardinals were to Trainer Bob Bauman, Don Blasingame, Ken Boyer, Walker Cooper, Joe Cunningham, Al Dark, Del Ennis, Coach Stan Hack, Coach Al Hollingsworth, Manager Fred Hutchinson, Larry Jackson, Sam Jones, Eddie Kasko, Hobie Landrith, Lindy McDaniel, Lloyd Merritt, Wilmer Mizell, Wally Moon, Coach Terry Moore, Stan Musial, Willard Schmidt, Dick Schofield, Bobby Gene Smith, Hal Smith and Herm Wehmeier.

Half-shares ($818.10) went to Bob Miller, bonus pitcher, and clubhouse man Butch Yatkeman. Quarter shares ($409.05) were awarded Jim King and Irv Noren. Noren joined the team in September. King was with the Cardinals in the spring and fall, but spent the bulk of the season at Omaha.

The Cardinal traveling secretary, Leo Ward, receives a full share from the club itself. This is a provision made by the National League regulations.

worth the football fan's personal examination. Minnesota, once again mighty, could be en route to that long-awaited trip to Pasadena, but as Coach Warmath said in a considerable mouthful of logic:

"Ours (the Big Ten) is a cannibalistic league."

Mizzou's McKinney Sidelined With Flu; Cyclone Star Hurt

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 16—Flu struck the Missouri Tigers for the first time this season as Bill McKinney, starting left end, missed regular practice yesterday.

Whether he will be in playing condition for the Iowa State game as Ames Saturday is problematical. Coach Frank Broyles found some consolation however in the return of Larry Plumb, veteran Chillicothe end, after a three-week layoff with an elbow injury. Plumb may become the first replacement at left or right end for the probable starters, Benny Alburtis and George Boucher.

Fullback Hank Kuhlmann was unable to work out because of a leg injury.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 16 (AP)—Terry Ingram, who turned in an outstanding job at fullback for Iowa State Saturday in the Cyclones' upset of Kansas, was sidelined today with a bad ankle injury.

Coach Jim Myers said it looks doubtful whether Ingram will be available next Saturday when Iowa State meets its next Big Eight Conference opponent, Missouri.

In the Kansas game, Ingram, a versatile firststring backfield man, shifted to fullback in place of the injured Bob Harden. If Ingram fails to get in shape, Myers will have only Ron Pohl and Chuck Latting for the job.

The Cyclones spent much of Tuesday's drill on their kicking, a department in which they must improve, Myers said.

Joe Cronin's Brother Found Dead at Home

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 (AP)—James F. Cronin, 61, brother of Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, was found dead at his home yesterday.

A deputy coroner said Cronin, a teamsters union business agent who lived alone, apparently died in his sleep of natural causes several days ago. The body was found by business associates puzzled by his absence from work.

Beecham Unanimous Winner Over Lane

MIAMI BEACH, Oct. 16 (UP)—Jimmy Beecham of Miami survived a hard pounding in the third round last night to win a unanimous 10-round decision over Bobby Lane of Kannapolis, N.C., at the Miami Beach Auditorium.

Beecham was in command all the way except for the brief but furious flurry in the third.

Lane staggered the Miami fighter with a right hand, then rushed in with rights and lefts, but he could not floor Beecham.

There were no knockdowns. Beecham weighed 136 pounds to 160¾ for Lane.

In the Ozarks

With Stokely

By Z. Lee Stokely
Ozark Sportsman and Outdoors Writer.

A subdued light shimmered far upstream and then disappeared. At intervals it reappeared on the watercourse and at each appearance the rays became more brilliant. The turns in the river blotted out the light momentarily but, as the boat rounded the last bend before the long, straight chute, both banks were illuminated as if a giant beacon had suddenly been lighted. The gigging season was in full swing on the Ozark streams.

Gigging of rough or non-game fish opened Oct. 1 in all waters of Missouri except in state parks, in trout waters, and the 75-yard zone below dams of some major impoundments. The hours are between noon and midnight and the season lasts until Dec. 31. During the same period spears and bows and arrows may be used. Underwater lights are illegal and wading is prohibited while using a gig, spear, or bow and arrow. Grabbing or snaring of carp, carp-sucker redhorse, sucker, buffalo and spoonbill also is legal until Dec. 31.

Gigging is confined principally to the clear streams of the Ozark country in Missouri. Back in early pioneer days it was the most popular of all fishing methods. The rivers were the highways and most of the early settlements were on the banks of the major streams. A stout gig was used to "pole" the boat on its journey and it did double duty in harvesting a "mess" of fish for the family table. A gun and a gig were as essential as the hoe and spinning wheel. No self-respecting hill man would make a journey without one or both.

Game Fish Once Taken.

In the early days all fish were fair game to the giggers. Only size was considered. Jack salmon (walleye) was the favored fish of the winter months. This writer recalls the report of a native nearly a half-century ago. It was in mid-January when these fishes had sought out the deep, still pools in the rivers and were in a semi-dormant stage. "They are stacked up like cordwood at Granite Bend," he said. "I'm to have my boat hauled to Mill Spring by the local train and float down to Williamsville."

No doubt, it was a long, cold trip. But in those days a fire basket was used instead of the modern-day gasoline torches or even electric lights run from a portable generating plant. Pine knots were used for illumination and, doubtless, helped to warm the boat occupants as they floated the stream in near-freezing weather. The fire basket was constructed of strips of steel and a half-inch or so of water was poured in the boat so it would not catch fire from the blazing fagots. A board with a hole in the center was nailed amidship of the boat and the steel standard, supporting the fire basket, was inserted through the hole and held the basket upright. We also recall that 25 huge jack salmon were displayed the next morning by the proud giggers after their successful trip on the Black river.

Only a few blacksmiths knew the secret of tempering a gig so that it would withstand the hardships of being violently cast into the rocks and gravel time after time without losing its original shape. Gigs would become dull and they were taken to the local smithy for sharpening. The blacksmith would thrust the gig in the forge and bring the steel to a cherry red heat. Then it would be placed on the anvil and, with the touch of an artist, he would deftly draw the tines of the gig to a needle point and, at the proper interval, plunge it in the half-barrel of water to temper the steel. Rivermen often would journey many miles to reach their favorite blacksmith to have new gigs made or old ones sharpened.

Then Came the Bait Casters.

In later years, bait casting and fly fishing gained favor and the giggers became the minority group of fishermen. Grudgingly they gave ground and grumbled that the "dude" fishermen were ruining their sport. In turn, the bait and fly fishermen asserted that the giggers were throwing their spears at any fish they saw and were taking boatloads of fish from the streams regardless of species.

One person, high in conservation circles, declared "the gig is as lethal as dynamite." A group of giggers invited him on a trip to prove or disprove his assertion. He accepted, and, although many years have elapsed since then, they are still chuckling at his clumsy efforts to gig a fish as it sped upstream in the fast-flowing waters. His efforts were unfruitful but he readily admitted that it took skill and dexterity to cast the spear successfully.

The fly and bait casting enthusiasts argue that the taking of the plug or fly is optional with the fish, but when an expert gigger throws the spear that there is no choice. The giggers' reply is that only the most skilled are able to impale the majority of the fish they attempt to spear. The "sport" fishermen say the giggers play havoc with the game as well as the non-game fish population. The spearmen admit that some giggers do violate the game code. They cite the arrests of some fly and bait anglers for taking stringers of bass in excess of the daily limit. "Even a pancake has two sides," said one of the gigging devotees.

Strict law observance and good sportsmanship on both sides would do much to settle this long-standing problem.

One-Year Probation Unjust, West Virginia President Says

Indiana Receives Similar Penalty

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 16 (UP) — Indiana and West Virginia, the latest schools to run afoul of new "get-tough" National Collegiate Athletic Association policies, today made clear they consider their one-year probations a major slap.

Indiana Athletic Director Frank E. Allen reacted to the N.C.A.A. penalty by comparing his team to a stricken fighter, "floored twice," but "still with a chance to win." Allen said other schools have come back "to win" and "this Indiana will do."

The Hoosiers' first blow was the suspension of its new football coach, Phil Dickens, last July. The former Tennessee grid star transferred from Wyoming in January. Dickens' suspension followed the revelation of illegal offers of vacation transportation money and "incidental expense" allowances of $50 a month to about a dozen prospective athletes. The suspension, effected by the university, was the result of Big Ten pressure.

'Unjust,' Says School Head.

At Morgantown, W. Va., University President Irvin Stewart said he felt the probation, imposed following findings of the N.C.A.A.'s infractions committee, was "unjust."

Stewart said the violation, involving a fabled Kentucky prep basketball player, did not comprise an infraction in his opinion since "a person not connected with the university did certain things without the knowledge of the university." He said further that West Virginia declined to accept the prospective athlete, identified as Kelly Coleman. The youth would now have been a second-year student.

Coleman, who shattered virtually all Kentucky high school scoring records, was not accepted because of low scholastic marks.

The N.C.A.A., in announcing the probations at the conclusion of a two-day executive council meeting here, said Indiana's violation was considered "far greater."

Committee's Charge.

The body, however, charged that a West Virginia "friend and booster" offered and gave aid to the athlete "with the knowledge" of a university representative in contradiction to Stewart's comment.

The N.C.A.A. said the aid was in the form of the use of an automobile and gasoline credit card during the spring and summer of 1956 and periodic other gifts, including cash.

The probation does not rule the schools out of any events, but serves as a warning.

N.C.A.A. Executive Director Walter Byers, in revealing the probations, said the action meant both schools' athletic programs will be under "close scrutiny." The N.C.A.A. will review the probations prior to the expiration date of Oct. 15, 1958. Byers said unless Indiana and West Virginia operate under complete accordance with N.C.A.A. regulations, the council would recommend expulsion."

Bears' Ailing List Reaches 6

Six members of the Washington University football team, five of them varsity regulars, today were reported ill with flu. Three were reported ill this morning, in addition to three who were on the sick list yesterday.

The ailing Bears are Mort Ebeling, tailback; Scott Scholle, blocking back, and Linemen Bud Trenholm, Dave Ladd, Bob Krelick and Dave Taylor. Taylor is a reserve tackle. Ebeling, Trenholm and Ladd are the newcomers to the list.

Also reported ill, but not diagnosed definitely as a virus case, was Fullback Don Polkinghorne.

The Bears are scheduled to leave tomorrow evening for Kalamazoo, Mich., where they are to play Western Michigan Saturday afternoon. A spokesman for the athletic department said that in view of the quick-hitting, quick-departure nature of the virus, it is not likely that all of the ailing players will be unable to make the trip. "It might have hit early enough that they can make the trip," he said.

Hagan Injured As Hawks Win

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 16—The training period continues to be a physically-trying time to the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association. They probably will have to do without Cliff Hagan tonight, when they play an exhibition game here.

Hagan, the Hawks leading scorer, injured his left knee early in the first period of a 107-105 Hawks victory over the Detroit Pistons last night at Flint, Michigan. Coach Alex Hannum said examinations indicated nothing more than a bruise, but the coach added that he might have Hagan sit out tonight's game anyway.

Taking care of the injured, or the aching, is getting to be an integral part of Hannum's job. Last night, for the first time in four days, Hannum was able to play Bob Pettit and Jack McMahon, who had been ailing. Slater Martin made his first appearance in five nights. Earlier, Easy Ed Macauley had suffered a wrist injury.

Pettit was healthy against the Pistons. He led all scorers with 27 points, and took 14 rebounds. Chuck Share continued to score well, and had 15 points.

Rockne Teammate Dies.

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 16 (AP)—Funeral services were to be held today for Francis Michael Carmody, 64-year-old independent oil operator who played for Notre Dame and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Carmody was an infielder on the Notre Dame baseball team and played end on the football teams of 1910-11 with Knute Rockne. He later played professional baseball with Shreveport and San Antonio of the Texas League and with the Pirates as an infielder. He died Monday night after a heart attack.

Sub Driver Is Cahokia Victor

A switch in drivers, often interpreted by race bettors as a bad omen, worked to the benefit of a starter in the second race at Cahokia track last night. Max Lynch replaced the scheduled rider, Joe Lane, in handling the reins of the mare Fidelis Agile. Lynch proved such a good replacement that Fidelis Agile became the surprise winner. She paid a $24.60 mutuel and contributed to a fancy $392.20 daily double. Winner of the first race, earlier part of the double, was Rebel Song, with Jim Maupin driving.

The second night of the Egyptian Trotting Association's harness meeting attracted 1500 fans and there was $33,590 in the total handle.

With 28 entries for tonight's featured attraction, Racing Secretary Ed Keller split the field into two groups. The six-furlongs test will be run as two separate races, sixth and seventh on the program.

Post time is 8:15.

Flu Causes Cancellation.

TROY, N.Y., Oct. 16 (UP)—Rensselaer has canceled its football game with Union College Saturday because of an outbreak of flu.

Blocker Bowls 710.

Joe Tranchilla of Alpha rolled a 265 high single and Herman Blocker of Sports Bowl tallied 710 total to pace the St. Louis Classic Scratch League bowlers last night at Floriss Lanes. Sports Bowl had top team scores of 1107 and 3089. Team results: Sports Bowl 2, Moll Bros. 1; Alpha 3, Floriss 0; Zimmermans 2, Val-U 1; Coca-Cola 3, Embassy 0.

Double Dribble: Two John Moores Released

BOSTON, Oct. 16 (UP)—The Boston Celtics yesterday dropped two players, both named John Moore.

John Moore of Chicago, a former U.C.L.A. captain, was the Celtics' No. 2 draft choice three years ago. He recently completed military service.

John (Jack) Moore of Philadelphia played with the Warriors last year.

The cuts brought the Boston National Basketball Association team roster down to 12. Coach Red Auerbach must cut his team down to 11 by Oct. 22.

'Shoe Shine' Jones Leads Parade to Minors

Baseball Gets Busy Shifting Players

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (UP)—It was "moving" day in the major leagues today, with several former big leaguers returning for another chance and others beginning on the road back to the minors.

For such former big leaguers as Stan Palys, Jim Greengrass, Walt Craddock and Ray Herbert the moves came as good news, even if they have to wait until next spring to cash in on them.

For former Cardinal Nippy Jones, Corky Valentine, Red Murff, Al Alber and Bob Kennedy it meant the end of the trail as major leaguers with little hope of returning.

Jones, 32, whose celebrated "shoe shine" led to Milwaukee's 7-5 victory over the Yankees in the fourth game of this year's World Series, was sent to Wichita of the American Association by the Braves, who called up Infielder Joe Morgan from Atlanta of the Southern Association. Jones batted .266 in 79 at-bats with the Braves.

Palys, who led the Southern Association with a .359 batting mark last season, was purchased by the Cincinnati Redlegs, who gave up Shortstop Bobby Durnbaugh and Pitchers John Oldham and Jim Brechin to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League in exchange for the outfielder-first baseman. Palys broke into the majors with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1954 but failed to stick because of weak hitting.

Greengrass to Tigers.

Greengrass, who formerly played for the Redlegs and Phillies, was purchased from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League by the Detroit Tigers. Greengrass, 30, batted .283 with the Solons this past season and hit 20 home runs.

Craddock and Herbert, both with Buffalo of the International League, were purchased by the parent Kansas City Athletics, who gave up on both in previous trials. Craddock compiled an 18-6 won-lost record with the Bisons, while Herbert, who saw previous service with the Detroit Tigers, had a 13-8 record.

The Athletics sent Catcher Bill Shantz, left-hander Gene Host and the right-hander Aber, 30, also a former Tiger, to Buffalo and Second Baseman Curt Roberts to Denver of the American Association as part of last summer's big deal with the New York Yankees.

Valentine, 27, and Murff, 35, both of whom saw little action with the Braves, were sent to Wichita and their places on the roster were taken by Ray Rippelmeyer, right-handed pitcher, and Vic Rehm, a left-hander. Ripplemeyer had a 2-3 record with Wichita while Rehm won eight of 15 decisions with the same club.

Outright Release.

Kennedy, 37, was given his outright release by the Los Angeles-bound Dodgers, who purchased Second Baseman George Anderson from their P.C.L. farm club and three others from St. Paul in other moves. Kennedy appeared in only 19 games last season and wound up with a .129 batting average. He broke into the majors with the Chicago White Sox in 1939 and played with three other American League teams before coming to the Dodgers.

Called up from St. Paul by the Dodgers were pitchers Stan Williams (19-7) and Ron Negray (11-7) and First Baseman Norm Larker, who hit .323 and whalloped 12 homers. Anderson hit .260 with the Angels.

In other moves, the Cleveland Indians sent pitchers John Gray and Bob Alexander, who started the season with San Diego and finished it with the Indians, to the Padres in exchange for Catcher Allen Jones, Pitcher Pete Mesa and Outfielder Dave Mann; and the Chicago Cubs purchased Catcher Morris Thacker from the New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association on a "30-day look" basis. Thacker, 23, batted .242 in 135 games.

The Cincinnati Redlegs acquired four members of the Savannah, Ga., team of the South Atlantic League. They are pitchers Ken Hommel and John Ivory Smith, Outfielder Buddy Gilbert and Catcher Haven Schmidt. Smith, a right-hander, led the Sally League in strikeouts with 196 last season and compiled an 11-9 won-lost record.

Waivers on Brubaker.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 (UP) — The Chicago Cardinals have put Quarterback Ted Marchibroda on the active player list and asked waivers on End Dick Brubaker.

Big WALT KOWALCZYK, Michigan State right halfback, has been designated "back of the week" by the Associated Press. Kowalczyk was outstanding in the Spartans' 35-6 triumph over Michigan last Saturday.

Tammes Meet Pattersons in Night Soccer

Herman Valli will replace veteran Frank Borghi as goalkeeper as the Patterson soccer team opposes the Mike Tammes in the first Khoury League game of the season for each team, tonight at Carondelet Park. The kickoff will be at 7:30.

Borghi, many-times a member of the United States team in international competition, does not plan to compete regularly this season. He suffered knee injuries last season and found it difficult to bounce back from the hurts that a goalie must expect.

There will be other lineup changes as Manager Joe Numi rebuilds the team that won two national titles. The Mikes, new to the Khoury League, won two championships in the County League.

Goals by Rich Mueth and Fr. Forrest Bretcher gave St. Agatha a 2-1 victory over St. Mary Magdalen in a C.Y.C. league match at Carondelet Park last night.

Remember? 5...15...25 YEARS AGO

1932 — Capt. Joe Todd of McKendree galloped 89 yards for the decisive touchdown in a 13-6 victory over Washington U. at Francis Field. . . . Kansas State's Ralph Graham scored three touchdowns as Bo McMillin's team trimmed Missouri U., 25-0.

Pitt Quarterback Ready.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 16 (UP) —First-string Quarterback Bill Kaliden will be back at the helm Saturday when the University of Pittsburgh meets Army at West Point. He missed last week's game with Nebraska because of a bruised thigh.

Moore Ready to Sign for Title Defense Against Spieser

January Match in Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 16 (UP)—Light-Heavyweight Champion Archie Moore and Chuck Spieser are scheduled to sign Oct. 23 for their January title fight in Detroit.

Negotiations got beyond the talking stage yesterday when Spieser's backers posted $10,000 with the Michigan Boxing Commission as the down payment on their $100,000 guarantee to Moore.

Charley Johnston, Moore's manager of record, telephoned the commission yesterday to say the terms were agreeable to Moore and him and followed up with a telegram to the same effect.

The remaining $90,000 of the $100,000 guarantee is slated to be put up by Spieser's backers next Wednesday when Moore comes to Detroit to sign for the fight.

Julius Piazza, independent Detroit promoter, was named to promote the fight at the state fairgrounds coliseum.

Joe Spieser, Chuck's brother manager, said the house will be scaled between $150,000 and $200,000 and arrangements will be made to seat about 14,000 persons.

The managerial-half of the Spieser team said he planned to go to Chicago today to meet with persons who have expressed interest in sponsoring the fight on television. Spieser said there was a "good chance" that the bout would be televised nationally with a blackout of the Detroit area.

A Moore-Spieser fight was in the making last spring when Spieser was the No. 1 ranked contender. But Spieser took a fight first with Tony Anthony and the New Yorker belted him out in three rounds. The January bout would be Spieser's first since losing to Anthony, who was kayoed by Moore last month.

Jack (Doc) Kearns, Moore's co-manager and advance man, has been in Detroit this week negotiating with the Spieser brothers. They had proposed a December date for the fight but it was dropped at Kearns's suggestion.

"Why buck Santa Claus and football?" Kearns said.

Buds Oppose H.-B., Surprise Masters Team

Ray Haefner's surprising H. & B. team, holding down third place in the Masters League and trailing the runner-up Falstaffs by only one game, will meet the Buds in the feature of the Masters Bowling League program tonight at Floriss Lanes.

H. & B. won 14 games and lost 10 during the first round plus the position round and did this although never going over the 1000-pin-per-game team average. The H. & B. mark at the moment is 995, ranking fifth in the standings and far behind the 1083 by the Buds, the 1061 by the Falstaffs and 1032 by Pulaski.

The Birds are holding a comfortable six-game lead as second round action begins. They have a 21-3 record, losing two games to Falstaff and one to Lindenbusch during the first eight weeks of play.

The Sam Mike Memorial trophy will be presented to the league tonight. Sam Mike, a charter member of the Masters League, was killed when struck by lightning while playing golf with Don Carter last summer. The Sam Mike trophy will go to the Masters League member with the highest individual average at the end of the season. To win permanent possession of the trophy, a bowler must lead the league for two seasons.

Dick Weber of the Buds is the current high average leader with a 230 mark while his teammate Tom Hennessey is second with 226. Ray Bluth of the Buds had the best average last season and Don Carter the season before.

Irish Get Day Off.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 16 (UP)—Notre Dame's come-back Irish took the day off yesterday due to an open date on their schedule next Saturday. Coach Terry Brennan held an inter-squad game among the freshmen.

Bob Gaydos suffered a sprained ankle in the Army game and will be out of action for two weeks.

Webb Favored Over LaBua in Fight on TV

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 16 (UP)—Middleweight contender Spider Webb of Chicago is favored at 1 to 3 to beat Jackie LaBua of New York tonight in their TV 10-rounder at the Exposition Center. (On KTVI, 9 o'clock).

Webb is fighting as a late-notice substitute for Ralph (Tiger) Jones, sidelined last Saturday by a hip ailment. But the Spider is favored, nevertheless, because of his combined boxer-puncher ability.

Brawny, brown-haired LaBua is a clever, upright boxer who has an excellent left jab, good hooking combinations and defensive skill. But he is a comparatively light puncher.

Sumner Leads In Public High Rushing Race

By Harold Tuthill

Sumner's 304 yards by rushing against O'Fallon last week vaulted James Anderson's Bulldogs into first place in the offense derby of the Public High League. Sumner now has 717 yards on the ground, considerably better than the won-lost leaders, Southwest and Central, which run 2 and 3, respectively.

Central, third with 537, has the best defense, having given up just 77 yards by rushing as Max Carlisle's Redwings maintained their top perch tie with Southwest, each with 3-0. Jim Kenny's Longhorns, second in rushing with 652, are fifth in defense, behind Sumner and ahead of McKinley.

Cleveland still has gained the most yards by passing, 278, while Soldan, in two games, has the best defense, having given no yards as six passes thrown against the Tigers failed of completion.

Top team in the Catholic Athletic Conference is Du Bourg with 209 yards on the ground and none through the air. Mercy has the best passing offense, 146 yards on seven completions in 16 attempts, and the best defense, 77 yards against Bill Houston's Bulldogs in their opener with De Andreis.

Jack Burns Re-elected By Eastern Mo. P.G.A.

Jack Burns of Creve Coeur was re-elected president of the Eastern Missouri P.G.A., when the pro golf group held its annual dinner meeting and election of officers last night at Glen Echo.

Other officers elected were Don Clarkson of Glen Echo, vice president; Walter Ambo of Ambo's Tee, secretary; and Frank Fogertey of Greenbriar, treasurer. Chuck Kelly, amateur golfer from Sunset, was appointed to the sectional's advisory board.

Clarkson and Milon Marusic, Algonquin professional, were named delegates to the National P.G.A. convention to be held at Long Beach, Calif., next month.

Harris, Bears And Billikens Open Baskets

College basketball practice became a common thing locally yesterday, with first-day workouts at Harris Teachers College, St. Louis University, and Washington University.

The letterman, or veteran player, count was good at Harris and at St. Louis, and small at Washington. Harris has nine members of last season's squad returning, the Billikens have eight lettermen returned, and Washington is to operate with only three lettermen.

Last season the Billikens won the Missouri Valley Conference title, and had a 19-and-9 record. Washington, playing as an independent, had a 12-9 record. Harris was 12-13. The Billikens open this season at home on Dec. 7 against New Mexico A. and M. Washington opens at home Dec. 3 against Missouri Mines, Harris Teachers opens its season in the Greenville, Ill., College Tournament Nov. 22-23.

Lettermen returning to Billiken Coach Ed Hickey are Cal Burnett, Bob Ferry, Ron Flood, Don Hake, Jack Mimlitz, Steve Redshaw, Tom Smith and Rich Rogers. At Washington, Blair Gullion's three returnee lettermen are Harvey Maack, Stan Smith and Don Garrett, all guards. Gullion's major hopes include Bob Schaulat, a transfer student from Michigan State, and Lou Vessely, a transfer student from Idaho.

At Harris, Coach Billy Key began practice with Rick Lessman, Bill Funkhauser, Bob Lehr, Gene Wallace, Larry Adams, Jim Owens, Jack Phillips, Bob Fuller and Bill Bagot returned from last season's team.

Then Joined 'Em.

Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State football coach, twice played against the Spartans when he was playing football at Syracuse in 1938 and 1939.

Neal Ball Dies; First To Make Unassisted Triple Play in Majors

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 16 (AP)—Neal Ball, the first major league baseball player ever to make an unassisted triple play, died yesterday at his home here. He was 76.

He made that famous play on July 19, 1909, against Boston while playing shortstop for Cleveland during his second season in the majors.

Ball played five more years in the majors, then spent nearly a decade in the minor leagues as player and manager on six teams.

After that he sold hats and later managed a bowling alley. He had been ill for several years.

Joseph Alsop

launched the Korean attack was no lover of wild gambles. Then too, he was the absolute and unchallenged tyrant of the Soviet empire, with no need to worry about the stability of his own power. But unlike Joseph Stalin, Nikita Khrushchev is certainly a wild gambler and has many reasons to worry about the stability of his own power. In fact he has enough troubles at home to make a gamble for glory abroad more than usually attractive.

Critical Region.

The region where Khrushchev is thinking of having a gamble is already pretty clearly marked out. For a few months after Suez, he was warned off the Middle East by the Eisenhower Doctrine. It is now known that one of the main speeches of the famous Central Committee meeting in Moscow in June was an attack on Khrushchev by Dmitri Shepilov, because of the alleged timidity of Khrushchev's Middle Eastern policy.

But this momentary caution has now passed, as was too clearly proved by the great forward move in Syria. When the time is ripe, moreover, other Soviet forward moves can be looked for. Indeed, they are already very nervously expected by the American Secretary of State himself. For this reason, Dulles made the Middle East the main theme of his three-hour interview with his Soviet colleague, Andrei Gromyko.

Dulles and Gromyko.

According to authoritative reports, Dulles was solemn in his warning to Gromyko about how America would react to further Soviet intrusion into the Arab lands. In the same fashion, during the London visit of Khrushchev and Marshal Bulganin two years ago, solemn warnings were sounded by Sir Anthony Eden. Again, according to authoritative report, Gromyko's response to Dulles was just about as satisfactory as the response of Khrushchev and Bulganin, who literally laughed in Eden's face.

For all this there is only one root-cause, the weakness of the West. Even a show of stern intention to remedy the West's weakness with all speed and at all costs might yet be enough to sober the masters of the Kremlin. But they must find the statements currently coming out of Washington even more headily intoxicating than their native vodka.

know in which type missiles we are ahead?

A.—The question asked is a directly quoted statement made by the President in one of his press conferences. I have no knowledge of what he meant, nor do I know what sources of intelligence not available to me were available to him. However, I think the evidence is quite conclusive that the only missiles that can deliver H-bombs are long-range ballistic missiles and the Russians appear to be clearly ahead of us."

Military Significance.

Q. What military significance do you see in the Russian launching of a space satellite?

A. The Russian satellite's 5600-mile altitude and 184-pound weight imply quite an advanced stage of propulsion development. The fact that the satellite could be placed so high above the earth and could continue for so long in a predictable route means fairly far advanced computer and guidance technology. The ability of the satellite to disentangle itself from its rocket carrier means rather sophisticated telemetering technology.

The fact that the satellite is able to send out signals after having its sensitive equipment severely shaken up by both the rocket motors and the successive lurches as the rocket stages dropped off means the Russians are pretty well advanced in radio transmitter technology.

This information, coupled with the Aug. 26 statement of the Soviets that they had successfully launched an intercontinental ballistic missile, clearly indicates a very high probability that they are well ahead of us in the development of this weapon.

New Management Needed.

Q. Would a Manhattan Project on missiles help to overcome the Russian lead and get us operational missiles more surely and quickly than our present programs?

A. I believe it is too late to take the time to disentangle the missile projects from the supervision of the various military services and organize them into a formal "Manhattan Project" type of organization. However, the sense of urgency which existed during the Manhattan project can be recreated if the President is willing to assign suitable overriding priority to this project. This will necessarily mean that a new Pentagon top level management entity must be created with full authority to expend funds expeditiously, take large technical risks, eliminate interference and finally to resolve interservice rivalries now interfering with the program.

Q.—You were greatly interested in developing the I.R.B.M. Has interservice rivalry between Army and Air Force delayed our achievement of an I.R.B.M.?

A.—Yes, interservice rivalry has diverted the attention of the top managers and administrators of the Air Force and Army programs, has caused interference in launching schedules, and has created competition for essentially, identical pieces of hardware.

Q.—How could such rivalry have been halted?

A.—Such rivalry could have been halted in the first instance by not permitting it to have started two and a half years ago. The decision to permit the rivalry to begin was the responsibility of Secretary Quarles, Deputy Secretary of Defense Reuben Robertson and Defense Secretary Wilson. The rivalry could be halted at any moment by a clean-cut executive decision by the Secretary of Defense.

Believes Reds Have I.C.B.M.

1. Do you think the Russians have an I.C.B.M. in development or production?

A. I believe the Russians have successfully developed an I.C.B.M. The Sputnik does not convey to us any intelligence concerning their mastery of the re-entry problem through the earth's heavy atmosphere, nor does it convey to us any final intelligence about their progress with the accuracy of such a weapon. Additionally it does not convey any information concerning the size and efficiency of the warhead which they plan to employ. Offsetting this, their recent high altitude H-bomb tests which followed on the heels of Sputnik's launching might tend to imply that this was a test of a thermonuclear missile warhead.

Because of the Russian's consistent record of accurately and conservatively announcing their technological progress and break-throughs, it would be a needless gamble for us to presume that these unresolved areas have not been resolved by the Russians. In the development of jet engines and jet aircraft of extremely advanced design, the Russians have quickly followed development prototypes with production quantities, in which the lead time between development and production appeared to have been approximately half of that which we have been able to achieve with our own aircraft and missile developments.

For this reason, I think it is unsafe to feel at all secure in the fact that the Russians may not have operational quantities of these missiles ready for use in the not too distant future.

tions included. Yugoslavia yesterday joined in urging some such plan, in a speech by the Yugoslav Foreign Minister Koca Popovic which in general steered closer to the Russian position than to the American, though dispassionate in tone.

There may also be some significance in the fact that the "open skies" proposal for aerial inspection against surprise attack has been less emphasized by American diplomats of late.

There is some thinking going on within the American delegation, it is known, to the effect that the "open skies" plan may not be as necessary a pre-condition to any disarmament progress as had been thought at one time.

What the United States does consider of utmost importance, however, is that a cessation in the production of more fissionable materials for weapons purposes—and an inspection system to make sure that this is done—accompany any agreement to cease testing nuclear weapons. The further step of dismantling weapons already in existence is secondary to the production stoppage, in the American view.

The United States regards efforts to eliminate all existing stockpiles of nuclear weapons as a futile hope. There is, it is said, no way to detect such weapons, hence any agreement on the subject would be without force.

Behind this view is an American determination never to agree to the elimination of the "nuclear deterrent" to Russian aggression. Weakness, it is stated, does not lead to peace.

"Never," is of course a long time, and although the word is used in official circles, it also is pointed out that the American position on any issue in world politics depends on the time and circumstances.

Whether at this time and in these circumstances real progress in disarmament negotiations is possible remains to be seen. No one seriously thinks that progress is likely to be made merely by the process of public debate now going on in the open sessions of the United Nations. Even in the much more restricted—and supposedly secret—sessions of the subcommittee in London few real advances were made. Such progress as was made came about for the most part in informal meetings between the Russians and the Americans on which other members of the subcommittee were informed later.

One such informal meeting between Harold Stassen, assistant to President Eisenhower for Disarmament, and Gromyko, took place last night at a party given by Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon at the home of the Indian U.N. delegate, Arthur Lall. Also present were delegates from Egypt, Poland and Mexico, and a number of small-group, informal discussions were held. Concrete results, if any, probably will not be known for some days. Meanwhile the public discussions continue.

It was Russian action which threw the disarmament issue into the open U.N. meetings, American diplomats say. The Russians did this precisely by remaining adamant in the subcommittee meetings, it is said, and their purpose was to test the whole status of disarmament discussions against world public opinion.

In the process it is thought the Russians hope to stigmatize the United States and its allies as being unwilling to give up the terrible nuclear weapons which all the world fears. It is admitted that the United States faces a nice dilemma as the Soviet Union seeks to achieve at least a partial isolation of America among the nations of the world.

Our allies—notably Britain—are more rigid than we on even partial nuclear disarmament and on stopping nuclear weapons tests. If we move too rapidly, and especially if we agree to discussions "at the summit" alone with the Russians, we are believed to be in danger of being isolated from our allies. If we move too slowly we are thought to be in real danger of being isolated from much of the rest of the world.

Meanwhile, all the responsible diplomats here realize that the political problems involved in nuclear disarmament will become more difficult as time goes on—and new "nuclear powers" appear on the horizon. Sweden is reported to be very close to achieving the production of nuclear weapons, and France is hopefully approaching that goal. One hears repeatedly the view that West Germany with its burgeoning industrial might, may well become another nuclear power in the not too distant future.

Gen. Phillips

before the shape of the world. It is known that the world is depressed at the poles, but its exact shape cannot be precisely calculated by any measurements on the ground.

By other astronomical measurements, with the help of the satellite, it is possible to calculate locations over the world with greater accuracy than has been possible in the past.

The satellite also, as it loses altitude, will give information about the density of the air and the force of gravity.

There are large variations in the force of gravity around the world and these can be ascertained to some degree by precise observation of the orbit of the satellite.

As a part of the scientific effort of the International Geophysical Year, both the Soviet Union and the United States have ships determining the variations in the force of gravity over the oceans.

Most of the information that will be obtained from the satellite is vital to accurate firing of the international ballistic missile. Variations in gravity will change the calculations of the trajectory required to hit the target.

Knowledge of the density of the upper air—a knowledge we do not now have—will also affect the calculations. Precise location of different points on the earth will make more accurate aiming of long-range missiles possible as will precise information of the shape of the earth.

Information on temperatures 500 miles in the sky, the intensity of cosmic rays and ultraviolet rays and the frequency of meteorites is vital if a manned satellite is ever to be projected.

Unquestionably, the Soviet scientists will shortly put up several more satellites with more instrumentation. Prof. Sedov, who had predicted in August 1955 that the Soviet satellite would be launched in 18 months, said in Barcelona recently, that he hopes the Soviet scientists will reach the moon with rockets "very soon." This would be another stupendous victory for Soviet science and technology. It must be admitted that the United States is far from having such a capability now.

Such is the information that can be obtained from the Soviet satellite and the implications of what former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson called a "scientific trick." If the Russians have a manned space platform years before the United States, scientists say it will be because of the lack of imagination of our officials and because we have starved the research goose that lays the golden eggs until she became infertile.

ers and babies and the large numbers of doctors being trained.

This year 26,000 doctors will be graduated in the Soviet Union while we in the United States, I believe, will graduate 6500. The Soviets now try to train doctors in the areas in which they live so they will not have to be sent out of their home areas for their three years work for the state.

Visits to Factories.

While in Russia I visited two factories—a candy factory and a textile plant.

The textile mill, I thought, had fairly good health conditions. It had a nursery, kindergarten, facilities for educational work and physical exercise as well as an extensive medical setup, including a hospital.

The thing that impresses any visitor to one of these factories is the effort made to raise production. I was told that as yet the Russian factory worker does not produce as rapidly as those in the United States, but Nikita S. Khrushchev told me that in 15 years they certainly will have caught up with us.

I tried to find out if this difference in productivity was a matter of initiative, of not having as good machinery and tools, or of not being accustomed to using these tools. I think all three factors may have a bearing on this problem.

In entering a factory, and often in its rooms, I saw pictures of individual workers bearing their names in honor of their achievements in meeting production quotas or making suggestions for faster output. Divisions in the same factory compete with each other for increased production. The factory manager who makes a good showing also receives recognition.

The candy factory I visited was making excellent candy and packaging it attractively. The manager there, a woman, seemed to know most of her workers personally and had won recognition for her factory's production.

Everywhere in the factories there were signs which read, "Be grateful," which, I suppose, are to remind the workers of the "blessings" of socialism.

On the whole, I think the factory conditions, as far as I saw them, were rather good.

ONLY MOTOROLA HAS IT!

NEW TUBE SENTRY TRIPLES TV LIFE EXPECTANCY

First TV engineered to eliminate 3 out of 4 service calls exclusive Tube Sentry ends warm-up power surge... the main cause of TV failure

At last, TV that stays young. New '58 Motorola TV features an exclusive Tube Sentry that cushions "warm-up power surge"—the main cause of TV failure.

Now for the first time Motorola brings to TV sets the same "warm-up" principle that is used to protect the most expensive radio and TV transmitting equipment.

Motorola's Tube Sentry is engineered to eliminate 3 out of 4 service calls... triple the life expectancy of tubes and other parts as well.

Only new '58 Motorola gives you this dependability. Plus new Thin Line styling—cabinetry in rich-grained hand-rubbed finishes. Plus a whole team of hi-fi speakers in many consoles. Plus Insta-Matic Tuning that brings in picture and sound automatically fine-tuned... either at the set or from across the room, with Motorola's amazing Golden Satellite Remote Control.

Outstanding Value in Console TV. The fine furniture look of Thin Line styling plus top performance features. Power M chassis. Touchbutton on-off. 4-wafer Cascode-Tuner. Model 21K72. 21" over-all diagonal picture tube with 263 sq. in. viewing area.

Ford Foundation to Tackle Educational, Social Problems

By the New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—The Ford Foundation, richest philanthropic organization in the world with net assets of more than two billion dollars, is planning to support six new projects which it hopes will help solve the problems of American education and society.

Monday at the foundation's New York headquarters, Dr. Henry T. Heald outlined the areas which will be emphasized in the fiscal year beginning this October. The projects:

1. A new program in scientific and engineering education. Dr. Heald, himself an engineer, emphasized that the grants "will be given to institutions for educational and not research purposes. In this field, it is the quality of education rather than its quantity which is vital. The brilliant few are so important."

2. Grants to teacher education. "This is one of our major interests," said Dr. Heald. "We're going to be amenable to consideration of expreiments which schools of education want to carry out, in curriculum experimentation and a variety of approaches. There's never been very much money in this field, but there is a good deal of argument, and we can stimulate it."

3. Support to study the metropolitan problem. "This will be in terms of the metropolis everywhere to stimulate a community-wide approach to metropolitan problems," Dr. Heald said.

4. Youth development. "We want to study youth's problems in relation to juvenile delinquency," Dr. Heald explained. "We can do something only in terms of pilot projects to try to find solutions. We have made a very few grants in this area, notably to the National Probation and Parole Association for work with juvenile offenders. But we hope to do much more."

5. The problems of the aging. "These are problems which affect both individuals and society," Dr. Heald said.

6. The new program in humanities and the creative arts, which was announced Oct. 13. Dr. Heald pointed out that "these grants totalling $760,000 mark our first venture in the creative arts, and there will be more."

HER EARS WEREN'T WRONG

HOBBS, N. M., Oct. 16 (AP) "I've been hearing a very peculiar noise out here," a woman caller told police, "and I wish you would come out and find out what's making it."

Police sped to the eastern edge of the city where the noise was reported. The woman had indeed been hearing a strange noise. Police found a cageful of lions belonging to a circus. They were asking for their evening meal in the only way lions can express themselves—by roaring.

COUPLE ORDERS HOUSE BY MAIL FOR RETIREMENT

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 16 (INS) — Many persons dream of living on an island but a Texas couple forsook the dream on Aruba island and started building a home in Austin—by mail.

The unusual "mail-order" arrangement was started three years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gordon, who wanted a home ready for them in Texas when they retired to their native state.

When the Gordons got the idea, they were living on Aruba island in the Atlantic ocean off the coast of Venezuela, where Gordon had been a warehouseman for a large oil refinery for 20 years. The Gordons had definite plans for their home, which they mailed to the Calcasieu Lumber Co. at Austin.

The lumber company entered into the spirit shown by the visionary couple and after six changes in plans for the home the deal was clinched by mail—including the purchase of a lot overlooking Lake Austin.

Tokyo's Transit Facilities About to Come Apart at Seams

TOKYO, Oct. 16 (INS) — Imagine every person from the state of California jamming the busses, trains and trolleys of a single city in a single day, and you have a picture of Tokyo's transit problem.

For the world's biggest city squeezes more than 12,000,000 pessengers into its overtaxed transportation facilities every day.

Vehicles are so packed that a local wag says pickpockets can no longer make a living on trolleys and busses.

For Tokyo's city fathers, however, the problem is no joke. Facilities are taxed three or four times beyond capacity, particularly at peak traffic hours.

Biggest headache is surface transport. More than 1000 trolleys and 3000 busses toil along Tokyo's teeming, serpentine streets carrying a staggering 4,000,000 persons daily.

They follow routes no wider than alleyways or main avenues clogged with weaving taxicabs, bicycles and three-wheeled trucks.

Also above ground are 11 electric lines that haul 7,000,000 passengers a day. During rush hour, some lines have trains running every 110 seconds.

Shinjuku station, a major connection for several surface lines, sees 650,000 persons pass through it in a single day. Tokyo station in the heart of the city's business district handles 500,000 passengers every 24 hours.

Underground, two subway lines running 13.5 miles under major shopping and business areas carry more than one million customers a day.

On the city's 21.5-mile electric train "loop" line that circles central Tokyo, it often takes ten minutes to get from the fare box to the platform in the 7-to-10 morning scramble and the 4-to-6 evening scrimmage.

On the platform, the passenger generally watches two or three bulging eight-car trains pass while he jockeys up to an entrance. Once at the door, he crouches like a tackle and hurls himself into a car that already has too many passengers.

Chivalry is not only dead at these times but also foolhardy. Women rate no priority and ask no quarter.

In fact, two loop line conductors recently complained in a letter to a Tokyo newspaper that young birls were getting too rough in the race for seats. They noted, with some distaste, that on many rush-hour cars there actually were more ladies seated than men.

The only bright feature is the price. You can go from one end of sprawling Tokyo to the other for 5.5 cents and, about the most expensive route in town cost 15 cents.

COUNTY POLICE GET A DEMOCRATIC OK

Ralph Devereaux, chairman of the St. Louis County Democratic Committee, said today he would fight any effort to make the county police department "part of any political machine."

His statement was directed at criticism made of the department's operations at a recent meeting of the St. Louis County Tax Reduction and Self-Government League at which petitions seeking an election to abolish the department were circulated.

A number of county politicians, including Sheriff Orion J. Litzinger (Rep.) and Albert J. Dauster, Republican committeeman from Creve Coeur township, attended the gathering. Sheriff Litzinger has criticized cost of operating the police department, but denied that he wants to abolish it.

"The recent moves to abolish the St. Louis county police department, spearheaded by a group of Republican politicians, are a matter of grave concern," Devereaux stated.

"Playing politics with the public safety is a dangerous business any time, and it must not succeed here. I hope that every citizen in St. Louis county will react so strongly to this stupid move that no one will dare try it again."

MORE FIRMS REPORT UNITED FUND GIFTS

Completion of United Fund solicitation at additional firms was announced today by Hugh A. Logan, general campaign chairman.

Among firms and organizations reporting 100 per cent pledging were:

Alton and Southern Railroad Co. executives and employes, $28.56 per person; Missouri State Medical Association staff, $28 per person; employes of Building Products Supply Co., $11.43 per person; Airport Lumber Co. personnel, $14.83 per person; Lumberyard Supply Co., $14.58 per person, and Nahlik Lumber Co. Inc., total pledge of $132 from employes and executives.

Eighty per cent of personnel at Laclede Insurance Agency contributed, for an average pledge of $20.92. At the Missouri-Illinois Tractor and Equipment Co., 93 per cent of the executives and employes contributed $747, for an average gift of $14.65. A $469 contribution was made by 75 per cent of John Fabick Tractor Co. employes.

Royal Bond Inc. made a corporate gift of $550, a 10 per cent increase over last year, and its employes gave 240 per cent above last year. Maryland Casualty Co. employes pledged 166 per cent more than last year and personnel of Massachusetss Bonding Insurance Co. 60 per cent more than in 1956. Rub-R Engraving Co. employes pledged 41 per cent more than last year.

TRUMAN CALLS ON F.F.A. TO HELP U.S. STAY GREAT, FREE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 16 (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman urged about 10,000 delegates to the national convention of the Future Farmers of America yesterday to prepare themselves to "keep this country the greatest and most free in the world."

Truman told the capacity crowd in Municipal Auditorium to study the Constitution, particularly the first 10 amendments which are the "greatest part because they guarantee the liberties under which we live."

This era is the greatest in history, and the present generation has the best opportunity of any, he said.

"I'm sorry I can't live another 50 or 60 years to see the progress which will be made.

"However, I wouldn't like to stay if I couldn't keep my friends with me.

"Farm production has increased at a remarkable rate in recent years," Truman said. "You grow two blades of grass now to one blade in my time on the farm."

U.S. ADMITS CONSIDERING TAXES OF COSTELLO PANEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (UP)—Chief Assistant United States Attorney Arthur H. Christy admitted in United States district court today that the government had classified prospective jurors on the basis of their own income tax returns for the 1954 tax evasion trial of gambler Frank Costello.

Christy, called as a witness by Costello's attorney in an attempt to overturn Costello's conviction and five-year sentence, said the classification was made so that government attorneys could properly exercise their challenges during jury selection.

The prosecutor is defending the conviction in the hearing before Judge John F. X. McGohey. McGohey said yesterday that if Costello can prove the examination of prospective jurors tax records was made to gain a "convicting jury", he was denied a fair trial.

63 DEAD AND 50 MISSING IN FLOOD IN VALENCIA, SPAIN

VALENCIA, Spain, Oct. 16 (AP)—In the first sunshine in nearly a week, rescue workers today searched for additional victims of floods that killed at least 63 persons. More than 50 persons were missing.

Thousands were left homeless by the worst floods in modern Spanish history, over a 150-mile-long stretch of fertile Mediterranean coastline.

Churches, schools, hospitals and public buildings in Valencia were pressed into service for emergency shelters.

Drinking water still had to be purified but quick aid from Madrid, Barcelona and other Spanish cities restored the food supply to normal. About 180 tons of American food stocks were expected from Madrid. Seven helicopters from the United States aircraft carrier Lake Champlain helped evacuate people to higher ground.

LOAN FOR SORENTO, ILL.

A loan of $200,000 has been approved by the Community Facilities Administration for a waterworks system to serve Sorento, Ill., it was announced today in Washington.

Sorento, in Bond county, has a population of about 800. The water system will consist of a reservoir, water treatment plant, supply line, distribution system, elevated tank and meters.

ZONING CHANGE SOUGHT FOR NEW CHRYSLER PLANT

A petition to change the zoning of about 250 acres in southwest St. Louis county on which Chrysler Corp. plans a $50,000,000 plant was filed today with the county's Planning Commission.

Hearing on the petition was scheduled for Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. The tract is now zoned for single-family occupancy on one-acre plots, with a relatively small section reserved for commercial and resort area use.

The petition asks that the entire area be zoned for light and heavy industrial purposes. Chrysler Corp. plans to construct a new assembly plant for Plymouth automobiles on the tract, which is south of Valley Park. It includes Meramec Airport and adjacent land.

Amazing New Discovery for Rough, Red, Hurt Hands!

Protects and Heals As No Cosmetic Lotion Can!

Seals out Harsh Detergents! Seals in Healing Medication!

Every woman who has ever washed a dish will welcome the news from the Revlon Pharmacal Division of a medical discovery that protects hands from harsh detergents, and heals hands already made rough and red by exposure to hot water and soapy cleansers.

The new lotion, called Silicare, has special protective and medicated ingredients that perform the seemingly impossible task of preventing skin-damaging substances from coming in contact with hands. It forms a water-repellent film that seals out many harmful agents such as detergents; and at the same time Silicare seals in healing medication that gets deep down to painful cracks and cuts. In cold or dry weather, it protects hands, face, lips, legs, heels—all exposed skin.

Silicare protects and heals your hands as no cosmetic lotions can . . . actually takes the place of cosmetic lotions and creams. It is not sticky or greasy. Revlon's new medicated Silicare is available at all Walgreen Drug Stores.

PROTECTS AND HEALS, says Nurse—"In my work as a nurse with hands in strong soap, detergents and antiseptics, I developed a bad detergent burn on my hands. After spending many dollars, I found relief only when I began using medicated Silicare. I recommend it highly." Maude M. Glass, R.N., Paradise, Calif.

Now! Get hot water 24 hours a day with fast-recovery electric water heater

Union Electric offers uninterrupted 24-hour water-heating service with the installation of the new 40-gallon, fast-recovery electric water heater. Especially designed to meet the family's ever-increasing needs for hot water, it costs less to buy, less to install. These efficient, compact Fast 40 electric water heaters are made by America's largest, best-known manufacturers.

FAST RECOVERY

Instead of only one heating element at the bottom of the tank, the new Fast 40 recovery heater has two elements which divide the tank. Even if all the hot water has been used, the top quarter can be heated quickly to 150°. The lower unit then turns on automatically, promptly heats the rest of the tank. You don't have to heat the entire tank before getting hot water.

LOWER OPERATING COSTS

Because of the favorable operating features of the Fast 40 electric water heater, Union Electric offers a special allowance for its use on regular electric service bills eight months of the year, November through June.

LOW INSTALLATION COST

For as little as $5.00 a month you can install a Fast 40 heater in your home. It can be installed anywhere; kitchen, laundry, bath, near the point of greatest hot-water use.

Present Users of Electric Water Heaters Can Change to the New Fast-Recovery Service

If you have an electric water heater in your home and wish to convert to fast-recovery service, call your nearest Union Electric office. We'll be happy to answer any other questions you may have about this new service.

SOVIET READYING SURPRISES FOR 40TH ANNIVERSARY

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (AP) — The Soviet Union, preparing to uncover a big showcase of surprises on the 40th anniversary of the Communist revolution Nov. 7, today called parliament to meet in a jubilee session Nov. 6.

Decrees published in newspapers indicated the session of the Supreme Soviet, or parliament, will be ceremonial. But with members assembled from all over the Soviet Union, it can be used as the kick-off for the big day.

Rehearsals for the Nov. 7 show have been going on for days. Military units are sharpening their marching. Jet warplanes swoop over the capital in practice passes.

The Soviet government has not hinted what it has up its sleeve in the way of military surprises.

Guesses range from an atomic cannon and massive rocket launchers to new type jet fighters and bombers.

In the parade rehearsals, there have been repeated appearances of long, canvas-covered vehicles, leading to the belief the military is about to show off some new weapon.

NAMED TO FREIGHT POST

Vaughn H. Livingston, assistant general freight agent for Missouri Pacific Railroad, has been appointed general freight agent, it was announced today.

Livingston, 8731 Fox Park drive, Crestwood, has been with Missouri Pacific since 1927, when he started as a mail clerk in the traffic department. He is 49 years old.

GRANITE CITY STEEL CO. SUES OVER 'VEEDER' PATENT

A suit alleging patent infringement was filed in United States District Court at Pittsburgh, Pa., today by Granite City Steel Co.

The petition charged that Elwin G. Smith & Co., a Pittsburgh sheet metal fabricating firm, had infringed the "Veeder" patent for forming unannealed galvanized steel sheets. The suit requested an injunction and an accounting.

FLU SPREADING IN U.S., BLAMED FOR 24 DEATHS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (UP)—Health authorities today blamed flu for 24 deaths in the United States.

At least eight deaths in Pennsylvania in the last 48 hours were attributed to influenza. Utah reported six deaths due to flu or other respiratory illnesses, Indiana three, New Jersey and Ohio each two, and Wisconsin, Utah and Michigan each one.

A flu epidemic struck the Pennhurst State Training School for the mentally retarded near Philadelphia. Six children died, and one was in serious condition.

The disease hit 838 of the school's 3149 children and 56 of its 400 employes. Tests were begun to determine whether the flu was of the Asian variety.

Four of the dead children, who ranged in age from 6 to 16 years, were admitted recently. Dr. Leopold Potkonski, school superintendent said none of the victims had been "in too good physical shape." None of the children in the institution had received Asian flu inoculations.

Another flu outbreak caught up with a speeding North Western train, forcing it to make an emergency stop at Elroy, Wis., yesterday so doctors could treat 14 stricken children.

The youths, members of a St. Margaret's High School, Chicago, class returning from a student tour to the Black Hills, S.D., came down with nausea and high fever. The train was delayed 37 minutes while the students were treated.

In Chicago, the flu forced Italian soprano Renata Tebaldi to cancel an appearance.

An outbreak believed to be of the Asian variety kept 40 per cent of the 3385 high school students home in the Chicago suburb of New Trier. The University of Illinois set up an emergency ward when the campus hospital was filled to capacity with 165 flu patients.

CENTREVILLE CITY BOOSTER SLATE HAS NO OPPOSITION

The slate of the Centreville City Booster party for 18 city offices was unopposed as the deadline for filing for nominations passed yesterday The city of 12,500, which voted for incorporation Sept. 23, will have its first election Nov. 4.

The Booster party candidates for mayor and other offices and the board of aldermen agreed to serve without pay for 18 months, until time for another election, and to try to raise funds for a police department.

They said also they would work for a city manager form of government.

DR. HENRY S. KAPLAN

DANGER IN TOO MUCH MEDICAL RADIATION

Medical radiation dosages can be kept to safe levels, but the danger of getting too much must be kept firmly in mind, Dr. Henry S. Kaplan of Stanford University told the St. Louis Medical Society last night.

Dr. Kaplan, professor of radiology at the Stanford School of Medicine, said it was important that the public understand the vast difference between the massive radiation delivered by an atomic bomb and the small amounts received by the body in properly-handled treatment and diagnostic X-ray.

The blood disorder known as leukemia, Dr. Kaplan said, is a common hazard of exposure to excessive radiation.

"There is no reason to doubt," Dr. Kaplan said, "that radiation can produce leukemia in man and animals. The incidence of the disease was high among the Japanese who survived the atomic bombings at Nagasaki and Hiroshima.

"It is important to keep in mind, however, that these persons received massive, whole body doses. In medical treatment, only a limited part of the body is exposed to radiation in small doses."

He said a recent study of 13,000 patients in England who received X-ray treatment for a type of spinal disorder showed a definite higher rate of leukemia, but he pointed out that in England the general level of treatments and the radiation doses were larger than those used in this country.

"Tests in this country can validly be interpreted to indicate that if radiation does are kept below prescribed levels, there is no appreciable hazard," he said.

He recommended that radiological treatment be resorted to only when other methods would not suffice.

Turning to the effect of radiation on heredity, Dr. Kaplan said radiologists should accept conclusions indicated by genetic studies with fruit flies. He said radiation causes a higher rate of mutations, and that these are harmful in the long run.

"Geneticists have established," he said, "that the mutation rate in a human being would double as the result of a radiation dose of from 30 to 80 roentgens.

"From this scale, figuring conservatively, they divided the number 30 by three and have determined that man should not receive more than 10 roentgens in his first 30 years."

Dr. Kaplan delivered the annual Carman lecture sponsored by the Greater St. Louis Society of Radiologists. He is a member of the National Academy of Sicence's panel on pathological effects of radiation, and the protection study section of the National Institutes of Health.

The Carman lecture is given in memory of the late Dr. Russell D. Carman, pioneer in the field of radiology and professor of radiology at St. Louis University in the early 1900s.

SHOOTINGS WON'T WEAKEN U.S.-KOREA TIES, RHEE SAYS

SEOUL, Oct. 16 (UP)—President Syngman Rhee said today that recent shooting incidents involving American soldiers and Korean civilians would not develop into a situation serious enough to harm Korean-United States relations.

"All these (incidents) have been purely accidents concerning individuals, and in my opinion . . . have not been so serious as to harm the cordial relations between our two countries," Rhee told a press conference. "Our two governments are now making efforts to prevent the recurrence of such unfortunate accidents."

Bitter comment in the Korean press has resulted from the shooting incidents.

MISSING PLANE SOUGHT IN SALEM (MO.) VICINITY

Search for a plane missing since Monday on a flight from Morris, Ill., to Russellville, Ark., was concentrated today around Salem, Mo., following reports that a low-flying plane was seen and heard in the vicinity Monday.

The Civil Air Patrol is using 20 to 25 planes in an intensive search for the twin-engine Cessna, piloted by George Burkhart of Morris.

Burkhart's last radio contact was with St. Louis Monday morning. En route to Russellville with a load of chickens, he had stopped at Jacksonville, Ill., to refuel.

Lament for Beavers.

CORINNA, Me. (UP)—Orlie L. Sprague, a member of the Maine Legislature, was moved by nostalgia when he learned there wasn't a beard in the new legislature. He recalled that in the Maine House 50 years ago "121 members wore mustaches or full beards and only 30 were smooth shaven."

TEACHER PROBLEM: LACK OF CLASS TIME

Lack of sufficient time for teaching duties is the greatest single problem affecting the morale of teachers in primary and secondary schools today, J. Lloyd Trump, head of the administrative placement service at the University of Illinois, said here yesterday.

Surveys in the last few years on teacher morale have shown an overload of administrative and clerical duties on teachers, with a consequent reduction in time devoted to actual classroom preparation and teaching, he said.

Trump addressed a luncheon meeting of the American Association of Examiners and Administrators of Educational Personnel at Hotel Statler. About 100 persons, representing teacher selection and placement departments in the school systems of 36 states, attended the luncheon, part of the annual four-day conference.

Stressing the importance of time, Trump outlined several programs designed to relieve teachers of duties not directly related to the classroom, or to provide them with teaching assistance.

Such devices as closed-circuit television, employment of student assistants and qualified professional assistants for management of field trips and laboratory sessions have proved quite successful, he said.

Trump also pointed to the advantages of tape recorders, films and slides as teaching aids. No one of the suggested programs or devices will solve the problem of teacher shortage; however, a co-ordinated approach involving a number of these suggestions would make a tremendous impact on teacher morale, Trump said.

Earlier in the day, the group heard a panel of teachers and educators discuss problems involved in recruitment of teacher trainees. Emphasis was placed on the parents' role in making the teaching profession attractive to students, as was the desirability of finding prospective teachers early enough to provide them with special training in secondary schools.

NEW SCHOOL SITE ACQUIRED BY UNIVERSITY CITY BOARD

Purchase of a site and preparation of preliminary plans for a new primary school were announced today by the Board of Education of University City.

The new school will be located on a seven and a half acre tract on the north side of Old Bonhomme road, about 400 feet west of McKnight road.

School officials said the new structure will relieve overcrowding at the Blackberry Lane elementary school and anticipated overcrowding at the McKnight elementary school. The new school will have six classrooms, a kindergarten room and a combination cafeteria-auditorium-playroom. The school will be for children in kindergarten, first, second and third grades. At fourth grade level, students will transfer to Blackberry Lane or McKnight school.

NORTH EUROPE NATO NAVAL COMMAND MOVED TO BALTIC

COLOGNE, Germany, Oct. 16 (AP)—The NATO naval command headquarters for northern Europe was transferred from Cologne on the Rhine to Kiel on the Baltic seacoast yesterday. The transfer points up the West's concern about increasing Soviet submarine might.

NATO's northern partners—Denmark, Norway and West Germany—play a major role in plans to bottle up Russian submarines in the Baltic in the event of war.

The NATO command is a skeleton force of some 20 persons under the direction of R. Adm. Keith Campbell-Walter, a Briton.

Queen Part American, Blood Relative of Washington, Lee

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Buckingham Palace confirmed today that Queen Elizabeth II is a blood relative of two great Americans, George Washington and Robert E. Lee.

"Yes, it seems to be true," said a palace official. "The College of Arms says so and that's good enough authority."

Emphasizing that the relationship is a distant one, the official added: "You know, we are all related to Adam, too."

More definite, however, was Patrick Montague-Smith, assistant editor of Debrett, the authoritative guide to royalty, the peerage, and other folks of quality. The man responsible for the discovery that the Queen is part American was Dr. Anthony Wagner of Britain's College of Arms, the repository of all information on heraldry and ancestry.

In studying all the lines of descent of the Queen Mother, Wagner dug up the fact that the young monarch is Washington's second cousin, seven times removed.

Elizabeth is nine generations in descent from Washington's Great Aunt Mary, the wife of John Smith, of Gloucester county, Virginia. She is also the fifth cousin, five times removed, of Robert E. Lee, commander of Confederate forces in the Civil War.

The relationship between the Queen, Washington and Lee, goes back to a Col. Augustine Warner, a wealthy Virginia planter who died in 1674, Wagner said.

Warner had lots of granddaughters. One was Mary Washington, the first President's grandmother. Another of the colonel's granddaughters was Mary Smith, mother of a Mrs. Porteus, who lived near Williamsburg, Va. The Porteus line leads directly to the Queen.

Robert, one of the numerous Porteuses, went to England, was graduated from Cambridge, and became a minister in Bedfordshire.

His great, great granddaughter, Frances Dora Smith, married Claude Bowes-Lyon, thirteenth Earl of Strathmore. She was Queen Elizabeth II's great grandmother, for the Queen Mother was Lady Elizabeth Angela Marguerite Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the fourteenth Earl of Strathmore.

PANELISTS DISCUSS GOAL OF SCHOOLS

The primary and basic responsibility of our schools is to teach children how to think and it is a very difficult responsibility to discharge, William Kottmeyer, assistant superintendent in charge of special education for the St. Louis public schools, said last night.

Kottmeyer was one of three panelists on the subject: "What Should We Expect from Our Schools?" Panel members spoke at a meeting of the Clayton Association for the Public Schools at Clayton Community Center, 2 Mark Twain Circle.

After noting that any answer to the question must include a decision on how much money is going to be spent, Kottmeyer went on to say: "I want my child to learn to read, do numbers, learn to get along with his fellow students. But the primary goal is to acquire the ability to absorb the thought from printed pages. If this acquisition has to be a little unpleasant, let it be unpleasant."

Kottmeyer said the responsibility of the schools is to do for children what their parents and other agencies are not competent to do. He said it was not the primary responsibility of the schools to develop the child physically, train him to drive an automobile or educate him in first aid or home care, although all of these are worthwhile activities after the primary goal of teaching him to think has been achieved.

Miss Jennie Wahlert, former teacher and principal in the St. Louis elementary schols and now in charge of nursery education at Washington University, said teaching must encompass the whole child as a physical, social, emotional and intellectual being.

"You never saw such bright, wide-awake children as we have today," she said. "But I think adolescents are growing too fast. I want to see them grow fast intellectually but their physical development is important, too. I want them to learn to live with other people and to avoid becoming tense physical and emotional wrecks."

Raymond Callahan, of the Washington University department of education, the third panelist, said teachers are expected to do too much for too many pupils today and that a more careful selection of subjects is needed.

Introduction of the "miserable" credit system in colleges about 1910 has resulted in a factory-like system that has left real wastelands in education, he said.

YOUTH, 18, GETS 15 DAYS FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Emil Benkowich, 18 years old, was sentenced to serve 15 days in the Workhouse today after he was found guilty of driving when intoxicated. He also received a 10-day sentence for careless driving, the terms to run concurrently.

Police testified that an automobile driven at high speed by Benkowich crashed into the rear of another automobile at Hodiamont and Wells avenues last night. Benkowich fled on foot and was arrested later at his home, 6114A Ella avenue, the officers testified.

Benkowich, who said he is unemployed, admitted to Provisional Judge Richard Daly that he had consumed a pint of wine and had driven at 85 miles an hour, but he denied being drunk.

ST. LOUIS BAR OK'S SURVEY'S JUVENILE COURT PROPOSALS

Findings of the National Probation and Parole Association in its survey of detection and treatment of delinquency and child neglect here, which relate to the juvenile court have been approved by the Bar Association of St. Louis, John A. Arnold, president, announced today.

Recommendations in the survey report were referred to the judges of the circuit court, if desired, to assist in the drafting of any changes in the rules of the court or state statutes needed to implement the report.

ANOTHER CRITIC OF ROYAL FAMILY BARRED BY BBC

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Lord Altrincham, the nobelman whose criticism set off the current controversy over Britain's royal family, said today he also has been barred by the British Broadcasting Corp.

The reported blacklisting of the 33-year-old critic of Queen Elizabeth II followed cancellation Monday of a BBC television appearance by journalist Malcolm Muggeridge, author of an article in a current United States magazine in which he called the monarchy "a kind of royal soap opera."

Altrincham, who criticized the Queen and her court circle in a British magazine last August, had been scheduled to appear on a TV panel Nov. 1. He said a BBC official telephoned him and "pointed out that as they had prevented Muggeridge from appearing, they would have to extend the ban to me." Altrincham said the action was "damn silly" because "after all these things must be discussed."

The pro-labor Daily Mirror expressed the suspicion that Prime Minister Macmillan personally intervened to bar the critics from the state-supported BBC.

ARGENTINE UNIONS CALL 48-HOUR GENERAL STRIKE

By New York Times News Service

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16—Leaders of 62 Argentina's largest trade unions voted yesterday to call a 48-hour nationwide general strike next week.

The defiant step was taken after the provisional government headed by Maj. Gen. Pedro Eugenio Aramburu rejected demands for large across-the-board wage increases. The President also refused to consider demands by labor leaders that he dismiss three of his cabinet ministers.

The strike call was decided at a stormy six-hour meeting of the union chiefs after 10 representatives had reported the results of their two conferences with Aramburu last week. The walkout is scheduled for midnight Monday.

FTC DISMISSES CHARGE AGAINST REYNOLDS METALS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today dismissed its charges that Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, Va., has misrepresented in its advertising the advantages of cooking with Reynolds' "lifetime stainless steelware."

The commission affirmed a preliminary decision made Aug. 26 by hearing examiner Abner E. Lipscomb, who had ordered the year-old complaint dropped on grounds Reynolds has sold its utensils business.

Lipscomb said Reynolds sold the entire enterprise, including trademark and goodwill, to Westbend Aluminum Co., Westbend, Wis., and has no intention of re-entering the steel cookingware business.

SCHOOL CHIEF SAYS RUSSIA HAS ENOUGH SPECIALISTS

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Soviet minister of higher education, V. P. Elyutin, said yesterday Russia has enough trained technical specialists to "meet fully the requirements of our country."

In the last five years the Soviet Union produced 2,700,000 fully trained specialists, he said. In 1957, he added, Soviet institutions of higher education turned out 265,000 specialists of which 80,000 were engineers.

The Russian definition of specialist covers all students who are given technical training. For example, Elyutin listed as specialists 770,000 graduates of both higher institutions and middle (high) schools.

OKLAHOMA BANK ROBBED OF $17,000 BY TWO MEN

MAUD, Okla., Oct. 16 (AP)—Two armed men robbed the First National Bank today of more than $17,000. They fled in an automobile.

Bank president B. G. Green made the loss estimate and said the men forced five employes and one customer to lie on the floor. The robbers, he said, then forced him to clean out the vault.

"After I gave them the money," Green said, "they herded us all into the vault and closed the door. They did not lock it."

He said the men did not try to conceal their faces, although one wore colored glasses.

SPUTNIK NO BASIS FOR 'STAMPEDE,' SAYS C. OF C. HEAD

CINCINNATI, Oct. 16 (AP)—Philip M. Talbott, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said today Russia's Sputnik is not sufficient reason "to tampede the Defense Department into reviving . . . every one of its pet projects that has been shelved."

Talbott, a Washington business man, added: "Certain persons in high positions in Washington, including a number of members of Congress and unofficial spokesmen for the armed services, would have you believe that the economy drive in the past session of Congress has virtually scuttled our guided missile program.

"That, of course, is not true."

In a speech prepared for the National Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association, Talbott said the major issue is not lack of funds.

Talbott said nearly three billion dollars in being spent on guided missiles in the current fiscal year. That, he added, amounts to a 1200 per cent increase over the $250,000,000 spent for the same purpose two years ago.

Drive-in to Pay Fines.

MILWAUKEE, (AP)—Parking law violators will find it's going to be much easier to pay up. Allan G. Wallsworth, city architect, announced that a drive-in window for paying parking fines will be a feature of a new district police headquarters now under construction.

133 DRIVERS STRIKE AGAINST BUS FIRM

Operations of Mid-West Bus Lines, formerly the Missouri Pacific Transportation Co., were interrupted today by a strike of 133 union drivers in a wage dispute.

The company, which has a depot at 706 North Broadway, operates 5300 miles of routes in nine states. There are 18 daily runs in and out of St. Louis.

Allen A. Marten, local union representative, said wage negotiations broke down when the company suggested a one-half cent reduction in the drivers' mileage rate. The union sought an increase of 1 cent, to 8½ cents, in the rate. Fourteen drivers operate out of St. Louis, to Kansas City and to Houston, Texas, Marten said.

Sale of the Missouri Pacific Transportation Co., bus subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, to Dallas (Tex.) interests was announced late last year. Union employes retained their membership in the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

ASSERTS RUSSIA TESTED ROCKET ENGINES IN '30s

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 (UP)—A leading Soviet scientist said today the Russians tested the first rocket engines in the early 1930's, long before such engines were built in the West.

A. V. Topchiyev, a member of the Academy of Sciences, reviewed the achievements of Soviet science in the 40-year period since the Communists took over in Russia.

He wrote in Pravada that Russian scientists started their research on jet engines in 1939 Such work, he said, was classed as "basic research of importance to the state."

The first ground tests of jet engines were made in the laboratories around 1931 and 1932, he said, while the first rocket was launched in 1933.

Topchiyev said Soviet scientists plan to build a nuclear reactor which operates on heavy hydrogen instead of uranium. Topichev called this a "cardinal task of modern science," and said that Soviet specialists are coming "closer" to solving it.

He said another project was the construction of a 50-billion electron-volt atom smasher.

APPEARANCE BY SATCHMO CANCELED BY ARKANSAS U.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 16 (AP)—The University of Arkansas Student Senate decided last night to cancel a scheduled appearance of Louis Armstrong and his band on the campus next March because of statements made by Armstrong and his manager on the Little Rock integration crisis.

Jack Davis, president of the Associated Students of the University, said the Senate had instructed him to notify the Negro trumpeter that the engagement was canceled.

"The unfortunate remarks which he (Armstrong) has made in this matter have brought about a situation which could well be detrimental to the progress our university has experienced during the past 10 years," Davis said.

TEXAS EX-LEGISLATOR GETS TWO YEARS IN BRIBE CASE

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 16 (AP)—Former State Representative James E. Cox was convicted yesterday of consenting to accept a $5000 bribe and given a two-year prison sentence.

Cox and his wife showed no emotion as a district court jury announced its verdict after deliberating only 40 minutes. His chief counsel, John Coffer, said the case would be appealed.

Cox, a Democrat from Conroe, Tex., was convicted of agreeing to accept a $5000 bribe from Dr. Howard Harmon, former president of the Texas Naturopathic Physicians Association, in return for withdrawing a bill he introduced in the Texas Legislature. The bill would have had the effect of outlawing naturopaths in Texas.

BURNED AS GASOLINE USED TO CLEAN HEATER IGNITES

Miss Billie Jean Harrell, 424 Elm street, East St. Louis, was burned on the arms, legs and body last night when gasoline being used to clean an oil heater was ignited accidentally. Miss Harrell, 23 years old, was taken to Christian Welfare Hospital.

Police were told that her stepfather, Grady Shelly, and another man were cleaning the heater and spilled some oil on the floor. As Miss Harrell brought a rag to clean it up she slipped and knocked over a pan of gasoline. It flowed to a water heater and was ignited by the pilot light.

Firemen estimated the fire damage at $1300.

TEEN-AGERS FIND STOLEN TOMBSTONE OF WYATT EARP

SAN BRUNO, Calif., Oct. 16 (AP) — Two teen-agers found the stolen tombstone of frontier marshal Wyatt Earp in a roadside clump of bushes here early today.

Robert Johnson of San Bruno and Ron Dill of south San Francisco noticed the marker when they stopped their car to check a tire.

The tombstone vanished from a Colma cemetery in July. Both Colma and San Bruno are near San Francisco.

The thief, in an effort to get the urn containing Earp's ashes, dug two feet down after taking the 300-pound granite marker from the grave.

FIRM ASKS FCC TO HELP IT KEEP TELEGRAPH TICKER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Sports Monitor Inc., of St. Louis, which describes itself as a firm dispensing sports information by telephone, asked the Federal Communications Commission yesterday to bar the Western Union Telegraph Co. from removing a telegraph ticker from its office.

In a complaint to the FCC, the firm, at 7211 Oakland avenue, said Western Union leased a sports telegraph ticker to Sports Monitor in September 1955 and informed the company last month that the ticker would be removed. The firm obtained a temporary injunction from Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh on Oct. 3, preventing removal of the ticker.

Judge Walsh stipulated that Sports Monitor must, within 10 days, apply to the Missouri Public Service Commission or the FCC, or both, for a ruling on the merits of its dispute with Western Union. The complaint to the FCC was signed by George F. McKay, president of Sports Monitor.

STUDENT KIDNAPS, ASSAULTS TEACHERS

DOWAGIAC, Mich., Oct. 16 (UP) — An 18-year-old Dowagiac youth kidnaped two young school teachers, one of whom had flunked him in English, and forced them to drive to a wooded area last night where he raped and beat them.

The youth, Robert Leroy Ball, was arrested at his home about 3 a.m. today. He admitted abducting and criminally assaulting Judith Snyder, 24, and Rita Murray, 22, both teachers at the Dowagiac High School.

Sheriff Kenneth McLeod said the women were kidnaped when they left the school after teaching adult education classes last night. The two teachers left the school together and Miss Snyder offered to drive Miss Murray home.

The sheriff said Ball left home shortly before 10 p.m. and saw Miss Snyder's car in the school parking lot. The youth returned home, got rope, wire and a knife and then went back to the parking lot and climbed into the back seat.

Miss Snyder had flunked Ball in English last year, McLeod said. He said the youth had also tried to date her on several occasions.

Ball forced Miss Snyder to drive to a wooded area four miles southwest of Dowagiac and ordered the teachers to undress. He bound both of them and then raped them.

Ball then pulled the teachers out of the car, propped them up against the auto and beat them with his fists.

The youth shoved the teachers into the trunk of the car and drove around the area for a short time. He found an abandoned barn several miles from the scene of the attack and left the bound Miss Snyder in a horse stall.

Then he drove to a partly constructed cement block house and left Miss Murray there.

Miss Snyder managed to work free from her bonds and ran to a farm house to report the attack.

Ball drove back to Dowagiac after leaving the teachers, parked and locked Miss Snyder's car and went home.

Dowagiac Police Chief William Wray was to confer with Cass County Prosecutor Jerry O'Connor today to decide what charges will be made against Ball.

ONE-FAMILY HOME BUILDING IN CITY, COUNTY DECLINES

Single family residential construction in St. Louis and St. Louis county has declined steadily since 1955, with approximately 5000 "starts" in 1957, figures compiled by the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis showed today.

In 1954 and 1955 building permits for single family dwellings totaled 11,000 in each year. In 1956 fewer than 8000 homes were started. The total this year is an estimate based on permits issued to date. Home Builders' officers cited no specific reasons for the decline.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics at Washington reported yesterday that approximately 990,000 private dwellings will have been started this year in the United States, compared with 1,093,900 last year. Starts in the first nine months this year were the lowest in eight years, the bureau said.

TOWN COUNCIL COUNTED EGGS BEFORE THEY HATCHED

MADILL, Okla., Oct. 16 (AP) —Madill's city commission has a problem which it hopes a recount will solve.

Residents here voted yesterday on a $15,000 bond issue to finance a new fire engine which the council has already purchased. The vote was tied at 293 for and 293 against. A simple majority was needed for the issue to pass.

A proposed $85,000 bond issue to buy equipment for the city hall was defeated by one vote, 294 to 293.

Crackdown in Jordan.

AMMAN, Oct. 16 (UP)—The government of Jordan said today that persons found carrying explosives would be subject to the death penalty and that persons possessing unlicensed firearms would be liable to 15 years to life in prison. The order was part of a crackdown on subversives.

LIFE FOR MAN FOUND GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Ray Leo Baugh, a truck driver, was found guilty of statutory rape by a jury in the court of Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson yesterday. The verdict was under the habitual criminal statute, making a life sentence mandatory.

A 14-year-old girl now living in southeast Missouri testified Baugh attacked her last June at his home in the 1200 block of Lami street, where she had been employed as a baby sitter and was staying for a few days.

Under cross-examination she said she had not mentioned the incident to Mrs. Baugh and that she told no one about it until three days later. She said Baugh told her she had "better not say anything about it."

Mrs. Baugh testified she and her husband slept in a room adjoining that of the girl and that she was certain the attack did not occur. Baugh, who is 46 years old, did not take the stand.

In asking for the conviction under the habitual criminal statute, Assistant Circuit Attorney Walter Brady told the jury Baugh had served a sentence in Illinois several years ago on a rape charge.

JORDAN PREMIER SUPPORTED

AMMAN, Oct. 16 (UP)—The Jordanian parliament today gave overwhelming indorsement to the policies of King Hussein's anti-Communist government. The vote was 30 to 2.

The government of Premier Hashem, appointed in April following an attempted leftist coup, would have been forced to resign if it had failed to win approval from 13 of the 32 deputies.

BRITAIN'S SURPLUS ABOVE EXPECTATION

© New York Times News Service

LONDON, Oct. 16 — Britain earned a surplus of £211,000,000 ($590,800,000) in its dealings with the rest of the world in the year ended last June 30.

"This represents a considerably better result than had earlier been expected, in view of the disturbance to trade and shipping brought about by the Middle East," the Treasury said yesterday in its balance of payments white paper.

The balance of payments surplus covered not only trade but also the so-called invisibles, such as tourism, income from shipping, insurance and other services.

In the first six months of this year, Britain had a surplus of £117,000,000 ($327,600,000) with the rest of the sterling area and of £8,000,000 ($22,400,000) with the non-sterling world.

There was a deficit with the dollar area but this was more than offset by surpluses with West European countries and other non-sterling areas.

The surplus with the sterling area was £63,000,000 ($176,400,000) below that earned in the last six months of 1956. The surplus with the non-sterling world followed a deficit of £90,000,000 in the last half of 1956.

The gold and dollar reserves held by Britain as banker for the sterling area rose by $246,400,000 in the first half of this year. This was due partly to a return to the reserves of $103,600,000 which had been set aside for interest payments on United States and Canadian loans and because transfers from other Sterling countries to Britain were unusually high.

In the last six months of 1956, the reserves had declined by $252,000,000.

MISSILE INERTIA GUIDANCE PLANT IS OPENED IN FLORIDA

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Oct. 16 (AP)—An inertial guidance center, a $4,500,000 missile equipment factory went into operation here this week.

After a series of receptions and a formal opening ceremony yesterday, the plant started engineering and pilot production on contracts totaling almost $3,000,000, most of them secret missile projects for the Air Force and Navy.

The plant is operated by the aeronautical division of the Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator Co.

Inertial guidance is a recently developed navigation concept which makes it possible for an airplane or missile with the special equipment to fly a pre-set course automatically without guidance from the ground or from a human pilot.

FAR-TERM TREASURY BOND LIST WEAKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—Corporate bonds eased in slow trading late today. Rails, utilities and investment quality issues turned lower while industrials clung to a slight advance.

United States Government bonds developed a slight weakness in long-range issues. Over-the-counter dealers quoted the 30-year 3¼s down 4-32 while the 40-year 3s were off 6-32. Intermediate Treasury issues were mixed.

South American and Central European dollar bonds advanced fractions in a sluggish foreign list.

SEE 6,000,000-CAR NORMAL MARKET

DETROIT, Oct. 16 (AP).

THE NATION'S auto makers will build nearly 350,000 passenger cars this month—barring work stoppages or materials shortages.

This month's output, of course, will be entirely of 1958 model cars. But it will be only a sampling of what the industry is expected to do during November and December. Some sources say output of the year's final two months combined should exceed 1,100,000 units.

That would put the 12-months' total for 1957 above 6,000,000 units. Something above 6,000,000 is the most common guess among the car makers as they get under way with 1958-model output.

Month's Output Compared.

A 350,000-car output this month would compare with last month's 284,265 assemblies, undoubtedly the lowest monthly total the industry is likely to experience for many months to come.

Industry analysts, attempting to foresee production and sales totals for the year ahead are speculating upon what the upsurge in car sales during the outgoing model cleanup may do to demand for the incoming models. Last year, after a fairly strong early demand for the new models sales fell off sharply. The traditional spring upsurge failed to appear. Industry experts said the sales pressure of the 1956 cleanup period borrowed something from the 1957 market.

Whether or not that accurately appraises the car market of 1957 this year's sales total well could again exceed factory output. That happened in 1956 because the year started with heavy inventories. The dealers started this year with more than half a million cars in stock.

Some factory sales executives insist there presently is a normal market for six million car sales annually. However, it has taken hard selling at the retail level and a lot of price slashing to achieve the indicated six million total for this year just as it did last year.

High Sales Effort.

Beyond sales effort and price cutting car retailers have had to take in and dispose of a great number of used cars to achieve high new car sales volume. Most new car sales now involve trade-ins. Offsetting that is the growing number of cars moving to the scrap pile. This year's total should approximate four million units.

The car market, of course, is not static. Under normal conditions it must expand. Nevertheless a sales total of six million cars annually means active selling and much trading and price cutting.

If the forthcoming new model year follows the traditional pattern the new cars will get a reception that will influence some dealers to ask for close to list prices at the start of the new model period. But it is at least debatable whether the higher prices will be maintained far into the new model year.

WHOLESALE FOOD INDEX LOWEST SINCE MAY 28

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—Wholesale food prices, as measured by the Dun & Bradstreet food index, inched lower this week.

At $6.11 the index compared with $6.12 a week ago and was 1.7 per cent higher than $6.01 in the similar week last year. This week's figure is the lowest since May 28 when it was the same.

The index represents the total cost at wholesale of one pound each of 31 foods in general use.

STOCK LIST DECLINES, RECOVERY CUT SHORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—The stock market declined today, cutting short its two-day recovery after last week's big break.

Late weakening brought losses on a wide assortment of key stocks to around 2 points or so. There was a scattering of gainers.

The market was generally lower from the outset as profits were taken on the swing to the upside of Monday and Tuesday. A few aircrafts and missiles had small initial gains but these melted.

The Syrian crisis left the aircrafts and other defense stocks barely changed. Their failure to rise on this news was said to be discouraging in Wall Street. Cuts in the price of copper and other news provided little incentive to traders.

Dow-Jones of 30 industrials was 443.93 down 3.97 points at the close, the 20 rails 117.67 off 1.79 and the 15 utilities 65.78 up 41.

Standard & Poor's average of 500 stocks lost .34 of a point, finishing the session at 41.33; the 425 industrials were 44.47, down .40; the 25 rails 25.09, off .37, and the 50 utilities 30.71, up .04.

Of 1159 issues traded, declines totaled 634 and advances 283. There were 76 new lows for the year and no new highs.

Sales were ,050,000 shares, compared with 2,620,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $1 to $161 with the industrials down $2.20, the rails down $1.30 and the utilities up 30 cents.

Based on the fall in the average, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange fell an estimated $1,245,000,000.

BUILDING CONFIDENCE

Lofty version of basketball is under way as part of training course at the Army's Southeastern Signal Corps School at Fort Gordon, Ga. Men are being trained as communications linemen and the game, on 30-foot poles, is used to build confidence in their ability to work high off the ground.

FAMILY AFFAIR

Vice President Nixon is busy exchanging greetings with friends but daughters Julie (left) and Patricia have private affairs to be settled before getting on with welcoming ceremonies at San Francisco yesterday. Posing for photographers as they emerged from airliner, they were asked to move close together. Julie obliged so vigorously she bumped her sister, earning a dark frown.

NEW AID FOR PILOTS

Mounted in front cockpit of Navy T2V-1 jet trainer is thin television screen designed to give pilot a picture—simulated by electronic instruments—of outside world when normal vision is obscured. Rear cockpit has installation generally found in such planes. When not in use, the screen is transparent. A product of Army-Navy research, it was made available to commercial aviation yesterday.

Wholesome Idol Of the Teen Set

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.

PAT BOONE, the handsome, open-faced, thoroughly wholesome idol of the teen set, now has his own show sponsored by Chevrolet, which is crazy about singers, having already discovered and built a very hot TV property in Miss Dinah Shore.

PAT BOONE . . . WEAKNESS FOR WHITE SHOES.

Boone is well brushed, his hair is cut in a reasonable fashion and his own idiosyncrasy is a weakness for white shoes and a distressing tendency to snap his fingers when he sings. Otherwise though, the show is thoroughly respectable but, also, I'm afraid, awfully dull and even a little idiotic. "Hi y'all. Hi, y'all," said Boone at one point. "I had the Asiatic flu. Boy, I wish you don't get it." Well, it's nice of him but that is hardly dialogue to write home about.

In place of intelligent dialogue, the producers substitute sheer pep, dancers hopping around violently while the singers sing. This has been a great year for stools. Perry Como practically uses no other article of furniture and Rex Harrison sat on half a dozen different ones in "Crescendo." Not to be outdone, Boone also dragged out a couple of stools on which he and a girl singer, Shirley Jones, sang a duet.

BUT SINCE WE HAVE to listen to singers, and this year we certainly do or turn the set off, I would like to hear some good songs. On the Pat Boone show the other night, Boone sang a song, "Honeycomb," which is not as dreadful as some of the song hits of the day, but it is not much of a song, nevertheless. Boone's brother, Nick Todd, sang a song called "Plaything" which I consider both in lyrics and music just awful. Then Boone sang "Ain't That a Shame," another song which has neither melody nor lyrics worth mentioning.

Now Rosemary Clooney, who is just about my favorite singer of all, has herself a show on which songs are sung that are songs. She sang "It's a Most Unusual Day," a wonderful song, "I Won't Dance" (which contains one of my favorite rhymes "But heaven rest us, I'm not asbestos") and "Hush-a-bye." Somebody else sang "Jubilation T. Cornpone," which has the saving grace of being funny. Her guest for the evening was Edward Everett Horton, a man who can make me laugh even when he hasn't anything much funny to say. (And as a matter of fact, he didn't have much that night.)

THE CLOONEY SHOW is in what NBC fondly calls living color, which won't mean a thing to most of you but does add a touch of class to the show. I also watched a couple of the World Series games in living color and I was not at all happy with it. I imagine I'm not alone in that regard either. Color just doesn't seem to work very well outside, partly because of the changes in the intensity of the light which throws a color camera into conniptions and partly (I suspect) because of the distances. The closer you get a color camera to the object it is televising the better it is and conversely the farther away you get the dimmer it gets.

The ball games from Milwaukee in black and white were much better and clearer pictures and you could follow the ball much more closely.

LITTLE BY LITTLE all the files are being looted for TV. The latest files to come under scrutiny are those of the O. S. S. (ABC-TV 8:30 p.m. St. Louis time Thursdays) which I had thought were supposed to be big deep secrets. This is fairly ordinary chiller-diller stuff with touches of elephantine humor. The other week, the story was about a couple of intrepid O. S. S. men who are dispatched to blow up a bridge in occupied France. They do it, too, and they never stop wisecracking. It's a filmed show and the film quality, I must admit, is quite good.

Woolens Take the Fashion Limelight

By Sylvia Stiles

THE vogue of color that is such an important phase of the current fashion trend, and the light weight of the newest fabrics have brought woolens into the limelight for dresses for many occasions. Not only casual and tailored styles but modes for afternoon and evening are being made of handsome woolens. Plaids and novelty checks share attention with the plaid shades, and there is an abundance of types from which to choose. Illustrated are a few of the dresses available now in the St. Louis stores.

1—The supple quality of woolens is shown by this dress which has an interesting draped silhouette. The skirt is caught at the front with a fabric bow placed slightly to the left of the center front, and bodice folds also are becomingly arranged as part of the drapery. The bodice has an unadorned, round neckline suggesting the use of costume jewelry. Shoulders are rounded, and sleeves are bracelet length. Dress may be obtained in the striking royal blue shade or black.

2—The popularity of woolknit is seen in the material of this dress which has a tweed-like pattern in tones of gray or mink brown. Bodice has a yoke treatment below which the front is cut to suggest a double-breasted fastening. Skirt is wrapped to the side, in front section which is loose at the hemline being lined with satin to match the buttons and the wide belt.

3—The two-piece theme is suggested in the design of this dress which has overblouse peplum at the front but a plain back. Blouse section has a triangular shaped yoke at the front. This yoke is of gray mat jersey in contrast to the gray wool jersey of the dress. Yoke is draped to form a cowl neckline and is edged with gray velvet. Dress which is of a sheer weight is lined to the hipline.

4—A flattering dress for the woman who wears size 18 or 20 as well as being becoming to the more slender figure is made of a black and brown plaid woolen. The asymetrical line is emphasized by folds of the fabric arranged at an angle and fastened at the side front. This type of designing adds to the decorative quality of the plaid woolen. Big bone buttons are used as fake fastenings. Armholes are quite deep and shoulders are rounded.

5—Here is another flattering dress suitable for important occasions as well as being sufficiently tailored for most daytime needs. Sheer wool jersey is combined with satin. Model sketched is of a rich blue tone although other shades may be obtained. There is a draped cowl neckline of satin to match the midriff section. Cut of the dress suggests a bolero at the sides and back. This dress also is lined to the hips with a sheer material.

6—The woman who is looking for a practical as well as unusual daytime dress will find this one worth considering. It is made of a two-toned ribbed woolen combining bright blue, red or brown with black. Collar is tailored. The bodice has gathers at the back to accentuate the bloused silhouette above the wide, fitted midriff. Midriff section is of black wool knit.

The fashions illustrated here are available in St. Louis Shops. Patterns are not obtainable. For information call MAin 1-1111, Station 385, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., Monday through Friday, or mail self-addressed stamped envelope to Fashions Illustrated, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

Delayed Breakfast

By Christopher Billopp

A DELAYED breakfast is one where a brief time elapses between a man's getting downstairs and the announcement that his coffee, eggs, toast, cereal and orange juice are ready. It will not be more than 15 minutes.

But in that 15 minutes the man will have decided that the day is going to be miserable and he will not do his best work. He will reflect on the shortcomings of his boss and the incompetence of his fellow workers. He will scold the children. He will make sarcastic remarks at the expense of his wife. A glance at the headlines of the newspaper will convince him the country is going to the dogs. He will be aware of a new ache that is different from his numerous other aches and set him to wondering what it could be. He will conclude that it is a warning of something really serious.

AS TIME PASSES he will ask what is holding up so simple a meal. He will want to know why it takes so long for the coffee to perk. He will express the hope that it will be stronger than what he has been getting lately and will have more flavor. He will ask if that is toast he smells burning. He will say to himself that the delay traces back to the fact that he is much too easygoing and puts up with annoyances and discomforts that other men would not tolerate. He will see the necessity for turning over a new leaf and asserting himself and making his displeasure known.

In so doing he will soon have his wife answering him defiantly and will reduce the children to tears.

By that time the coffee will have perked and a cup of it will have been poured. A couple of swallows and there will be profound apologies, hugs and kisses all around and the conclusion that the world is not so bad after all.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A TRIO of hunters had failed to catch even a sight of a deer all day, and two admitted they had had it. The third insisted on continuing his search. Suddenly he came head on to two enormous bears. He threw down his gun and hotfooted it back to camp with the bears in hot pursuit. He dove through the entrance of the tent and yelled to his companions, "You boys skin these two, and I'll go back to try to find some more."

H. ALLEN SMITH tells about a suburbanite who returned home to discover this note from her 8-year-old son: "Hi, mom. When you were gone our cat came all apart in the garidge. Love, Harold." She rushed to the "garidge" to find the cat had given birth to a litter of kittens.

Self-Expression

By Fulton J. Sheen

DURING the last war there was much talk of austerity particularly in England, when Churchill appealed for "blood, sweat and tears." That word has been practically forgotten in peace times until Pope Pius XII used it in an address to the representatives of 33,000 Jesuits gathered throughout the world. He told them to deprive themselves of "not a few comforts that laymen may legitimately demand," and among them mentioned "smoking and pleasure trips passed outside of their own houses."

Fulton J. Sheen

Little comfort is left for those who think that this plea for austerity refers only to Jesuits. In the same address he made, it refers to all religious orders who "should preach not only with words but also by example that love of penitence without which there is no hope of eternal salvation." Scant, too, is the comfort left for the clergy and the laity for he urged them in a previous encyclical to "take from vanity something that can be given to the poor in mercy."

THESE APPEALS are addressed to the faithful under Pius XII. They point up a lesson sorely needed in our modern world. Our present philosophy is geared to self-satisfaction, and the pleasure of the ego. A taxi driver expressed it bluntly. He was told by a passenger to drive into a free space alongside the curb which was exactly in front of the address given. Instead he remained in the middle of the street blocking several cars saying, "Why should I drive in there; they never did anything for me." The philosophy behind this and other forms of inconsiderateness is self-expression which is always presumed to be right.

A drunk is self-expressive when he beats his wife; a coward is self-expressive when he deserts the battle and runs for safety.

On the other hand, a Dutch banker is self-expressive when he gives all his property away and serves the lepers in the Cameroons; a mother is self-expressive when she sits up all night with a neighbor's sick child in order that the mother may have rest; the couple who saved $2500 for an ocean voyage and then sent the money to me for the poor in Africa and Asia were self-expressive.

SELF-EXPRESSION, therefore, is not a simple matter; it always implies self-depression, not in the psychic sense, but in the sense of self-denial.

If I depress by egotism I express tolerance and a spirit of fraternity; if I express my desire to say a biting word even of one who has injured me, I depress envy and bigotry. When love comes up, hate goes down; when jealousy goes down, charity comes up.

That brings one to the reason for self-denial or austerity even in the natural order and quite apart from religious grounds. Some form of self-denial is necessary to preserve our personal freedom. A man ceases to be his own when he is owned. This can happen when he is controlled, dominated, and tyrannized by forces or things external to himself.

That is what is meant by the saying that a person is "the slave of drink." He is not self-determined; he is alcohol-determined. He is not the master of his own house. Peter the Great of Russia once struck his gardener who being a man of great sensibility took to his bed and died in a few days. Peter hearing of this exclaimed with tears in his eyes "Alas, I have civilized my own subjects; I have conquered other nations; yet I have not been able to conquer myself."

Tiny, little insignificant things often so completely dominate a person, that they are not free in the face of them, e.g., a pet peeve, or talking about oneself when the first opportunity presents itself. Many a man says he is free to smoke when he wants, but how few are free not to smoke. It is not that smoking is wrong; it is only a question of how much one is free from external compulsions.

WHEN one gets down to the bottom of the subject of freedom, it becomes clear that we are less free than free-able. We may increase or decrease our inner freedom as we live. The more one gives way to externals, the less he is in control of himself and therefore free. That is why all religions, all profound philosophers have recommended austerity as regards the lower self in order to ennoble and perfect the higher self.

The best government in the world is self-government. In vain do we cry out against Communism for subjugating 42 out of every 100 people in the world to their tyranny, when an equal proportion tyrannize themselves. The Devine command to pluck out an eye or to cut off a hand or foot are all for the sake of entering into the fullness of life. The unhappy people are the over-privileged not the under privileged. And the happiest of all are those who by taming errant instincts and selfishness can proclaim themselves free in the great and sovereign state of self.

WANT THINGS? WATCH THE WANT ADS

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

CURTAIN TIME: The aisle-seated sputniks, who go 'round the theatrical world, flashed happy notices for the Phoenix Theater's production of "Mary Stuart." Brooks Atkinson, the N.Y. Times spaceman, exclaimed: "Triumphantly theatrical!" . . . The reviewers' beeps-beeps were generally exciting for Emlyn Williams's reading of Dylan Thomas's yarns, "A Boy Growing Up." The World-Telegram's Mr. Aston hailed it as "a good show," while the Journal-American's Mr. McClain quibbled: "I do not believe the kind of evening Emlyn Williams offers belongs in a conventional theater." . . . Another newcomer titled "The Egghead" failed to impress most of the Egg-heads of the Press. Although aisleman Chapman groaned that "it bored him," the Herald-Trib's Mr. Kerr contended: "You will certainly find it interesting and possibly stimulating." . . . The week's windup was provided by "Romanoff and Juliet" at the Plymouth, where one member of the minority voted it "A deft, funny, delightful fable."

THE CINEMAGICIANS: "Until They Sail" is a frequently poignant sea-and-she saga. Jean Simmons, Joan Fontaine and Piper Laurie are ship-shapely. . . . "My Gun Is Quick" is slow on the script. . . . "Sins of Casanova" offers an entertaining recapture of the Eighteenth Century Marlon Brando. . . . "My Man Godfrey" unreels a love-looney romantic confection. David Niven and June Allyson make everything tooty-frooty. . . . A superior Frenchie called "Deadlier Than the Male" co-stars Mister Bird and Miss Bee. . . . "The Mystery of Picasso" demonstrates how the painter turns out his classic doodles. An interesting documentary. . . . "An Alligator Named Daisy," a daffy Britisher, is a dilly in spots. . . . "Hidden Fear" deals with such major crimes as counterfeiting, murder and mediocrity.

STAGE ENTRANCE: The season is officially on. "The West Side Story" composer called drama critic Kerr "an intellectual snob in reverse." . . . Sinatra's music firm rejected a ditty named "Lauren." . . . Keely Smith's "I Wish You Love" is a tender torchant. . . . Betty George will be featured in a Hollywood musical miniature. Her first Coast chance. . . . Jack Paar gave his critics a good one right in the head with: "I don't mind being called a Square so long as I make Oblong money." . . . Sheree North's do-or-diet: Six raw eggs plus two tomatoes. (Ugh). . . . Peter Ustinov, author and star of "Romanoff and Juliet," declared: "I believe it is practically impossible for an author to say why he wrote a play." . . . Well, Noel Coward once offered a convincing one-word explanation: Money. . . . The Boston critics embraced Gretchen Wyler, the famous understudy, in her first starring role. The musical is named "Rumple." . . . Variety's agent there said: "But it is Gretchen as a man-eating tigress who sets the stage on fire." . . . Before the season started 19 musicals were announced. Thirteen got stage fright.

CAST OF CHARACTERS: Karl Malden, starring in "The Egghead," had good reason to change his name. He was born Mladen Sekulovich. . . . Little known fact: Jimmy Durante's middle name is Fwancis. . . . Mitzi Gaynor's husband taught her how to cook. . . . Natalie Wood's peculiar hobby: Collects toy tigers. . . . Frank Sinatra's aversion: Carrying soiled money. . . . Kirk Douglas's logic: "The only real security for a movie actor: Having a little talent, a lot of luck." . . . Movie star Joanne Woodward's proud pater is Wade Woodward, veep at Scribner's.

Swedish Pen Pal Is Now a Neighbor

Collinsville Girl's Letters Lead to Minister and Family Coming to Live Next Door

By Clarissa Start

WHEN Karen Schlonat of Collinsville, Ill., was a 10-year-old in sixth grade, she decided she'd like to collect stamps. Her mother suggested that it might be more interesting if she acquired a pen pal in each country who would send her letters as well as stamps. Karen is not a girl who does things half way. Now 15 and a high school junior, she has 27 pen pals around the world.

The second pen pal she acquired was Runa Hemingstam, daughter of a Swedish minister, and, as foreign correspondents usually do, the girls always ended their letters with a polite, "I wish you could come and visit me some day." Several years ago, the Rev. Tage Hemingstam toured the United States with a choral group, met the Al Schlonats and the family friendship grew. Now the Hemingstams and the Schlonats are next-door neighbors on O'Farrell street in Collinsville, and the Swedish family — father, mother, two daughters and a son—are happily becoming acclimated to a two-year stay in this country.

"Yes," says the Rev. Mr. Hemingstam rather shyly and slowly in his precise English, "we have thought about this for a long time. For about two years we discussed it and then decided to come. And we are very happy that we did."

Schlonat, a contractor, had built his own home and was building a new one next door. The house was not finished when the Hemingstams arrived, but the Schlonats moved into the unfinished house and are fixing it up by degrees. Mrs. Schlonat sees nothing unusual in giving up her home to the visiting family.

"It's really selfish on our part," she says. "We're enjoying it and hope they're enjoying it, too. We're both learning a lot about each other's countries, customs, food habits. One night soon after they arrived we brought the Hemingstams a watermelon because they like them so much and we decided to try these Holland rusks they'd been talking about. So here they were in their house eating watermelon while we were in ours, eating rusks."

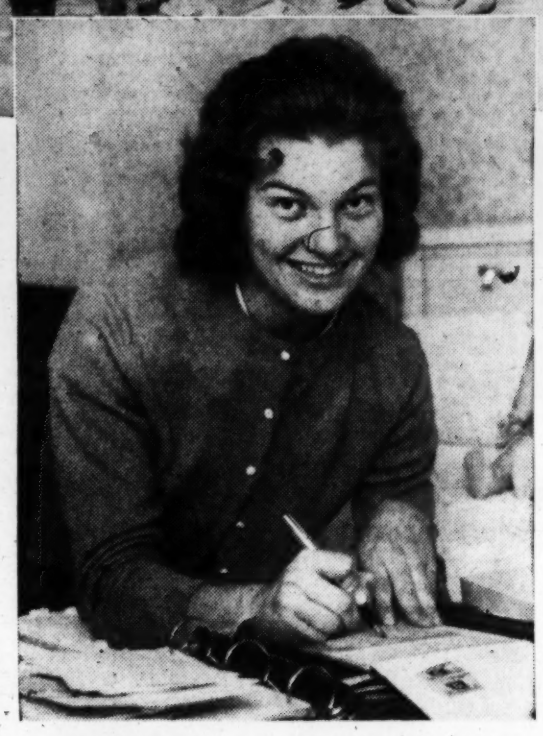
The Rev. Mr. Hemingstam has spent most of his time since arrival in trying to get a job. Pastor of an Evangelical Covenant church in Stockholm, he was also youth counselor for an agency similar to the Y.M.C.A. here. He finds his clerical calling a drawback in getting more menial jobs and his lack of fluent English a drawback in the better kind, but is hoping that something in between may show up.

Mrs. Hemingstam, a portrait photographer in Sweden, speaks very little English and hopes to improve her mastery of the language before doing any work. Meanwhile she is writing about American cooking and fashions for a Swedish women's magazine, Ica-kuriren. The Rev. Mr. Hemingstam is a correspondent for the Swedish newspaper, Morgonbladet.

The youngsters have made more rapid progress in speaking English. Gun, the 16-year-old, who is pretty enough to be a model, got a job right away as a waitress in a St. Louis 10-cent store and has had no trouble.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MRS. AL SCHLONAT OF COLLINSVILLE, ILL., LEFT, SERVES CAKE, COFFEE AND SOFT DRINKS FOR HER NEW NEIGHBORS, THE HEMINGSTAM FAMILY FROM SWEDEN. AROUND THE TABLE ARE RUNA, LARS, THE REV. TAGE HEMINGSTAM, MRS. HEMINGSTAM, AND GUN.



KAREN SCHLONAT . . . HER PEN PAL LETTERS TO RUNA HEMINGSTAM FINALLY BROUGHT THE FAMILIES TOGETHER.

"They were dubious as to whether she could manage the cash register," Mrs. Schlonat says, "but said they would try her out. Karen and I went away for a while and came back and there was Gun operating the cash register like a veteran."

Gun loves everything American and finds the food wonderful. ("Today I had spaghetti and meatballs," she said, as raptly as if she were speaking of pheasant under glass.) The rest of the family do not share this uncritical opinion all the way. They find most food too salty and the bread too soft, but enjoy many things new to them, especially ice cream. Lars, tow-haired and bright-eyed, is quick to tell you what he likes best about America.

Lars, who is in the fifth grade of Jefferson school, was supposed to go to school half a day and be tutored in English the other half but after two weeks, his tutor declared that he didn't need her any more and Lars now takes a full day of school, with some tutoring in sports by classmates in his spare time.

Runa, who is a sophomore at Collinsville High School, is studying art, gym, chorus, English and family living, and finds the course light in comparison to the 14 subjects she studied in Sweden. Swedish school children must learn English, German and French, go to school six days a week, Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. In general, the Hemingstams think Swedish students a little advanced beyond American standards; Lars, for instance, would have been studying biology this year in school at home.

The Rev. Mr. Hemingstam lists as his first big impressions "the many cars, TV in the homes, and so much machinery for the kitchens."

"I have a special interest in the church," he adds, "and the churches here have so many people at their services every Sunday. This impresses us very much. It is not that way in Sweden or in any other European country."

The Hemingstams hope to remain in Collinsville for a year and then go to Chicago for a year to visit good friends there. Runa and Gun hope to attend North Park College, an Evangelical school, in Chicago.

Having them here has been an education for the Schlonats, too. Not only have they learned to say, "Jag ar glad att mota dig" ("I'm glad to meet you") but they've learned many things about Sweden. Her correspondence courses have taught Karen, an ambitious artist and writer, a great deal.

"I have pen pals now in Turkey, Japan, Jamaica, Australia, New Zealand, England, Wales, France, Germany, Scotland, Switzerland, Holland, the Bahamas, Venezuela and Denmark," she says, and adds with a laugh, "I hope to visit them all."

WHILE her interest in stamp collecting has waned she has collected souvenirs from all over—dolls from Japan, reindeer fur slippers from Lapland, newsy letters from all over.

Her most faithful correspondent is Pauline Towsey-Smith, daughter of a post office official in England. The girls write each other regularly each Sunday and their parents also exchange letters frequently. And lately they've taken to ending their letters, "We wish you could come and visit us some day."

Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

ALMOST remarkable hand on which both sides could make a slam is submitted by John R. Howell, of Fortune magazine, from a recent rubber bridge game. East and West can made six diamonds and North and South can make a grand slam at either black suit. The final contract was seven spades, doubled.

North-South vulnerable.

	♠K109876 ♥— ♦— ♣AKJ8752
♠42 ♥AQ972 ♦A82 ♣1093	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠— ♥K64 ♦KQJ10 97643 ♣6
	♠AQJ53 ♥J10853 ♦5 ♣Q4

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♥	2♥	5♦	5♠
6♦	6♠	7♦	Pass
Pass	7♠	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

North made an immediate overcall of two hearts on West's opening bid and then when East tried to outbid him at seven diamonds, North tried for the grand slam at spades rather than settle for a small set against the diamond bid.

At seven spades, doubled, declarer trumped the diamond opening lead, drew trumps and claimed the rest of the tricks with good spades and clubs. North-South scored 2670 points on this deal; 1500 for the vulnerable grand slam, 700 for the rubber, 420 trick score and 50 for making the doubled contract.

If East is permitted to buy the contract at seven diamonds, he will go down one if South opens a club. With any other opening lead, East makes seven-odd. He draws South's lone trump and lays down the king of hearts, finding North void. He leads a heart, taking South's 10 with dummy's queen, re-enters his hand with a diamond and finesses West's nine of hearts. Now he discards his losing club on the ace of hearts, taking all the tricks.

Deep-Fat Thermometer

Use a deep-fat thermometer when you are frying doughnuts or fritters. If the temperature is too high these good foods will brown before they are cooked through; if the temperature is too low they may soak up grease. A thermometer will enable you to keep the fat at a temperature of 365 to 375 degrees.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

SUMMER fun and friends are wonderful—until vacation ends. Then what? Do you feel blue and lonely, remembering vacation fun, or do you plan how to keep your new summer pals as year-round friends? You can, if you try:

"Dear Elinor: I am 14 and very puzzled. During the summer, I met a girl and we were very close friends. Now we write to each other. We had also met two boys and had dates with them. One of the boys, my date, lives a short distance away and we also plan to write. We're both going back to the same place, next summer. But a year is a long time without seeing each other. When I think of him and my girl friend, I start crying. Can you help me?"

ANSWER: Turn off the tears and be glad, instead, that you had this vacation fun. Do everything you can to keep these new friendships alive, so you can have more fun together next year. Keep on writing regularly to your girl friend and send casual, friendly, chatty letters (not too affectionate) to the boy, if he agreed to write, too.

Send greeting cards at holiday-times and an occasional "Remember me?" or "I'd like to hear from you" friendship card to them as little reminders that you remember them and hope they haven't forgotten you.

Since this boy lives only "a short distance away," perhaps you two can get together on weekends or holidays sometimes . . . if you can invite him to your home when there's a school dance, a party or doings that he would enjoy. He might be able to drive there or perhaps a relative could bring him to spend Sunday with you . . . or to stay over Saturday night at your house if your parents agree.

How to Be Unpopular With Teeners

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

SINCE her daughter is now old enough to belong to a girls' group, Mrs. L. has taken the job as leader, but she's not as happy in it as she expected to be.

"For some reason, the girls don't seem to like me," writes Mrs. L. "I try to be friendly with them—but they just don't respond!"

I'd need to know a great deal more about the circumstances before I can give any specific suggestions, Mrs. L., but I can pass on some tips to the older generation on how to deal with teens. They are provided by psychologist George Lawton, author of many books including one addressed to teen-agers, "How to Be Happy Though Young." In an appendix he lists 20 phrases to which young people are particularly allergic.

ARRANGED here in order of age at which first heard, they are:

My, what a big boy (big girl) you've become! (With an attempted pat on a head out of reach.)

Do it for Mother's sake!

Not another word out of you!

You're still just a child!

DR. PAUL POPENOE

(With a forgiving smile.)

You're too young to know your own mind.

I don't have to tell you why! Just obey!

You're too old to do that any more!

You simply aren't old enough to understand!

Come, tell Mother everything.

I don't know what's happening to young people today.

You'll never amount to anything, if you continue to . . . (do this, or that, or go around with X or Y, etc.)

I never had the opportunities that I am giving you!

It's only puppy love.

After all we've sacrificed for you!

I'm nothing but a servant in my home. (To be avoided by girls when they become mothers.)

I'm nothing but a meal ticket for my children. (To be avoided by boys when they become fathers.)

I suppose you've reached the difficult age!

I guess you must take after Mother's (Father's) side.

When I was your age (I was making X dollars a week, had finished college, had a child, ran my own home, etc.)

Everyone takes us for sisters.

If you utter any of these, Mrs. L., don't. That'll be an excellent start toward increasing your popularity with the younger generation.

Supper Suggestion

When you are having company for supper and you don't want to serve a salad, have a bowl of water crest, carrot curls or strips and black olives instead.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: My husband and I moved to this community about six months ago and we are planning to hold open house some time in the near future. We will invite many of our old friends as well as some of our new neighbors with whom we have become friendly. There are other people in town with whom we have a nodding acquaintance through mutual friends and whom we feel we would like to know better. Would it be proper to invite them to the open house? We do not want to seem "pushing" but we would like to broaden our circle of friends in our new home town and there are several families with whom we feel we could be congenial if we knew them better.

Answer: To be strictly correct you should not invite any of the community until they have called on you and you have returned their call or been invited to their houses. You will have to decide for yourself, perhaps with the advice of the neighbors who are already your friends, who would probably like to be invited and who might think you "pushing" if you invite them.

DEAR MRS. POST: We have no servants and I do all my own work. When we have guests in for dinner, my husband insists upon getting up and helping me take the plates off the table after each course. I appreciate his wanting to help but I think it is wrong for both of us to leave the table and that it is the duty of the host to remain with the guests.

Answer: I agree with you that your husband should remain at the table with the guests.

Group of St. Louisans Hear Chicago Opera

By Peggy Johnson

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS CHARLES COLEMAN of Evanston, Ill., entertained several St. Louisans for the Friday night opening of the Lyric Opera in Chicago. The seven-week season commenced with Verdi's "Otello."

—Jules Pierlow Photograph.
MRS. COLEMAN . . . TO ENTERTAIN ST. LOUISANS.

The Colemans (she was Miss Elizabeth Gentry of St. Louis) booked a block of front row seats for their guests who included Miss Isabella Roberts and her fiance, Jacques P. G. Veeger. Others were Mrs. Leslie Chabay, whose husband, an artist-in-residence at Washington University, sang the role of Cassio; the Chabays' son, Elan Chabay, and Miss Patricia Krebs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Krebs, of Webster Groves. After the opera, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman entertained the St. Louis group at a supper party in honor of Mr. Chabay. Mr. Coleman has been a student of Mr. Chabay both in Aspen, Colo., and in St. Louis.

The night before the opera opening the Colemans gave a dinner in honor of Mr. Chabay. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Langsdorf Jr. (Martyl Schweig), former St. Louisans, Dr. and Mrs. John Ohl and Dr. and Mrs. John Firebaugh. Both Dr. Ohl and Dr. Firebaugh are on the faculty of Northwestern University and Mrs. Coleman is writing her thesis under Dr. Ohl, who is head of the Music Department.

The Colemans are expecting house guests during the entire opera season. On Nov. 2 Miss Mary Helen Barnidge of St. Louis will be their guest to see "Andrea Chenier," and will also attend the opening of the Picasso Exhibition at the Art Institute of Chicago. The weekend of Nov. 23, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Drescher Jr. (Katherine White) will visit the Colemans and will hear Mr. Chabay sing in "Lucia di Lammermoor." A visitor for the last performance of the season will be Miss Katherine Lemoine Stark, who will be in Chicago for Verdi's "Don Carlo."

The Colemans will live in Evanston until she receives her master's degree in music. They plan to move to St. Louis to live next fall. Meanwhile they are in St. Louis on alternate weekends visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Gentry Jr.

Mrs. Lammert to Attend Smith College Meeting.

MRS. WARREN B. LAMMERT, 6440 Cecil avenue, will attend the annual meeting of the counselors of Smith College, a group of 25 men and women who advise the college in various fields. The meetings will be held on the campus in Northampton, Mass., tomorrow and Friday, in conjunction with the fall session of the college's board of trustees. Mrs. Lammert is a Smith College graduate.

Tomorrow the counselors will hear a report on the efforts of Smith and three Connecticut Valley colleges, Amherst, Mount Holyoke and the University of Massachusetts, to make joint appointments and share facilities where this is practical in a program designed to meet the shortage of teachers and the expected doubling of the college population in the next few years.

Friday the counselors will visit classes, hear reports from Smith seniors who spent their junior year studying in Paris and Geneva under the Smith Junior Year Abroad Program, hold business sessions, and attend a dinner at the home of President and Mrs. Benjamin F. Wright.

Open House After Football Game.

AN open house for students, parents, faculty and friends of both schools will be held at John Burroughs, 755 South Price road, Saturday afternoon after the Burroughs-Country Day football game, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, on the Burroughs Field. The informal reception, in accordance with a custom established two years ago when the game was played at Burroughs, will be given by Friends of John Burroughs School. Country Day School carried on the custom last year when the teams met there.

Fifteen hundred guests are expected at the affair, for which Mrs. Cicardi A. Bruce is chairman. The young people will be served in the dining room and adults in the assembly gymnasium. Mrs. Howard Hess will be hostess in the dining room, assisted by Mrs. John H. Lashly, Mrs. John E. Dube, Mrs. Richard W. Horner, Mrs. Walter A. Baumgarten Jr., Mrs. Frank G. Myers, Mrs. Ben Roth, Mrs. Frederic W. Horner, Mrs. Delevan Calkins, Mrs. Charles W. Knight and Mrs. Louis J. Schaefer.

Hostesses in the gymnasium will be Mrs. Eugene M. Bricker, Mrs. Leathe C. Kline, Mrs. L. Douglas LeResche, Mrs. McVeigh Goodson, Mrs. Heinz Haffner, Mrs. W. C. Lindsley, Mrs. S. Richard Silverman, Mrs. H. J. Leschen Jr., Mrs. Sander B. Zwick and Mrs. Guerdan Hardy.

A welcoming committee at the door will include Richard W. Horner, president of the Friends; Mrs. Franklin J. Cornwell, president of the Mothers' Council at Burroughs; Mrs. G. Kenneth Robins, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. William Rench and Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Jordan.

Both rooms will be decorated with autumn leaves, gourds, corn shucks, Indian corn and russet and yellow chrysanthemums arranged on tables along two walls. In the gymnasium coffee urns and punch bowls will alternate between flower arrangements and yellow pompons tied with blue ribbon (Burroughs colors) will adorn each tray of cookies and candies. Each mother on the hospitality committee will have her name printed on a small paper football in the center of a blue ribbon-tied blossom corsage.

Miss Sharon Downen Is Married at Church

MISS SHARON LEE DOWNEN and Theodore Clifton Salveter Jr. were married recently at Webster Groves Baptist Church. The Rev. Gerald Young performed the ceremony in a setting of white flowers and candlelight. Afterward the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gerald Downen, gave a reception at their home, 930 Twining place, Webster Groves.

The bride wore a white silk gown designed with long sleeves and a scoop neckline finished with Venice lace. The bouffant skirt, held wide by hoops, ended in a short train.

—Gomez Grant Photograph.
MRS. THEODORE C. SALVETER JR.

The bride chose a fingertip illusion veil held to a crown of seed pearls and carried white Fuji chrysanthemums and pale yellow sweetheart roses.

Miss Arlene Delores Yadon, Kansas City, Mo., was maid of honor, Miss Mary Ellen Downen, sister of the bride, and Miss Barbara Dee Boulware were bridesmaids.

Mr. Salveter, son of Mrs. Nelda Salveter, 584 Summit avenue, Webster Groves, had James Singer as best man. His brother, Charles Robert Salveter, and Ralph Dickenson, Kansas City, were ushers.

The bride, a graduate of Webster Groves High School, attended Drury College and became a member of Kappa Delta sorority. Mr. Salveter, a graduate of The Principia, also attended Drury College where his fraternity was Sigma Phi Epsilon. After a short wedding trip he and his bride will live in Webster Groves. He will enter St. Louis University School of Law this fall.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

I HAVE one of the most wonderful mothers in the world. All my wife does is ridicule her to me. Her mother can visit our home but not mine. My mother is strong and understanding and is satisfied to stay away so we can get along. She has never raised her voice to us boys. She treats everyone grand. Never were we without clean clothes and our meals were always ready. It hurts me to try to get along with my wife. Just a little word from me about it and she gets a brainstorm. What do you think of my situation? I work and make a good salary. We have been married four years and have a lovely baby.

J. W.

Let her go ahead and have her brainstorm. From what you say, your mother is an exceptional woman and has no desire to interfere with your marriage; in fact, she appears ready to sacrifice her own natural desire to be with you and her grandchild in order to keep harmony in the household. So you, in turn, should be ready to sacrifice a little of that uneasy peace in loyalty to her. Unless she has gone out of her way to hurt or offend your wife—which she obviously has not done—she certainly should not be victimized by your wife's sharp tongue and petty exclusion of her in-laws. Before this goes on any further, and you become afraid even to mention your mother's name, get the matter straightened out. Tell your wife that you must insist on the same courtesy to your mother as she shows to her family. If she's fair, she'll discuss it with you and bring out into the open any real or imagined grievances. Then, if you find your mother is at fault, be loyal enough to your wife to try to see her side of it.

Dear Martha:

A FEW WORDS of counsel for Desperate, whose husband has been guilty of infidelity and drunkenness: Remember: only he can change himself. You must learn to make your own decisions for your own life. Don't indulge in self-pity or hysterics. Don't for one moment consider divorce. Make yourself as physically presentable as possible. Keep your home in order even if you don't feel like it. Get a job. You can! Call the Vocational Counseling Service for guidance; make application for employment at the Missouri State Employment Service. Call Alcoholics Anonymous to learn what relatives can do to help both themselves and the alcoholic. Go to church every Sunday, but keep your own counsel. Don't criticize your husband to outsiders regardless of how much he may deserve it. For that time at home: get a library card and read. Start a new dress, paint a picture; keep busy. Live a regular schedule yourself and let your husband fit into this schedule if he wants to. Be kind to him and ignore anything he might say or do which hurts your feelings. These are just a few suggestions to get you started. Soon you'll have good ideas to offer others. You'll make it. I know you will. Let's hear from you again, but this time sign it "Not Desperate."

A FRIEND.

I'm sorry that space wouldn't permit my running your excellent letter in full, but I have tried to pick up the main suggestions. Thank you for your contribution. I know it will help not only Desperate but others in the same situation.

Dear Martha:

I VERY MUCH DISAGREE with your recent answer to Tom G., who spanks his wife. I also spank my wife (age 27) occasionally, because she sometimes acts very childishly. She admits this herself in rare moments, as does her mother, who thinks I am right in spanking her. Not all should be spanked, but those who behave like spoiled children deserve to be spanked. Please print this, and let your readers, both men and fair-minded women judge for themselves whether this practice is as "diabolical" as you claim.

SPANKING GOOD HUSBAND.

Two questions: Do you classify only those women who agree with you as "fair-minded?" What should be done to punish the men who "behave like spoiled children?" P.S. Or are there any?

Martha Carr's free leaflet, "Guide for the Bride," will answer many of your questions on planning a wedding ceremony. Pease inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

In the Shadow

By Angelo Patri

USUALLY when there are three or four children in a family there is one bright and shining light who puts another child, or children, in his shadow. He is smiled upon, given extra attention and praise. When the visitors come, it is he who is brought forward. His report cards are mentioned, his talents displayed while the other children are given second thought. And they know it.

Sometimes one of the shadowed children shows his resentment by bad behavior in school or at home or both. Nobody seems to know why he shoves his playmates around, scowls at the teacher, sits glowering in the classroom like a thunder cloud and upsets the family calm at home.

SOMETIMES THIS CHILD indicates his unhappiness by retreating, hiding behind the furniture or the people in the room. At school he lags behind during game time thinking he is not good enough for the game or that he is not wanted.

This is something that teachers and parents must consider lest great harm be done these children. The teacher who understands this never says, "Your brother, or your sister, always got A. Is this the best you can do? Going to let him get ahead of you like that?" Such remarks only deepen the shadow that is depressing this child.

NOW THERE IS NO HIDING the truth that one child is superior to the others in one way or another. That is to be accepted but it need not be accented to the degree that the other children feel disgraced and unliked. The wise teacher never mentions that superior brother or sister but makes the best of the strengths the child in question has, and he always has some. Wise parents take thought of the lesser lights in their group and go out of their way to make them feel adequate, loved and cherished. If this is not done and done well, there is bound to be a problem child in the family.

Try to give each child a family, a classroom, responsibility for something that really matters to the group and accent his skill and usefulness. "If it weren't for Simmie these plants and fish would not last a week. She does marvelously with them." "This family owes thanks to Don for the care he gives the car. Always shining, always ready; all I have to do is get behind the wheel and away we go." Such little speeches go a great way toward the spirit of the child, or children, who must take second place. Do think about them and give them an extra good word and a smile.

This Week's Star Pattern

A REFRESHING note for your winter-into-spring wardrobe . . . and as welcome as a compliment.

Princess-lined every occasion dress that is immensely slenderizing and so young in manner. You'll like the new squared yoke, full sleeves gathered into a cuff and the crisp button tab.

And why not plan on a sleeveless version for a southern trip now, summertime, later on?

No. 349 is in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14, 34 bust, full sleeve, four and three-quarter yards of 35-inch.

For a Star Pattern send 50 cents in coin to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, care of Star Pattern, 367 W. Adams street, Chicago 6, Ill. Please include pattern number.

'Take It Easy' May Not Be Good Advice

By Ruth Millett

"NOW, Dad, you've worked hard all your life and you've got enough saved that you and Mother can live comfortably. Why don't you quit work and take it easy?"

That's the way a lot of well-meaning sons and daughters talk to their fathers.

To their mothers, they say: "Mother, why don't you get rid of this big house and get an apartment? It would be so much easier to take care of and you wouldn't have any yard to worry about."

They think they are giving good advice, but it could be harmful.

Dr. Ewald W. Busse, director of a Duke University research project on aging, says: "A person seems to live longer if he has to solve a reasonable number of problems and encounter a reasonable amount of trouble."

So the older man whose work has been his life and who still takes pride in his job may be better off pushing himself a little to get to the office each day than he would be facing day after day of puttering and idleness.

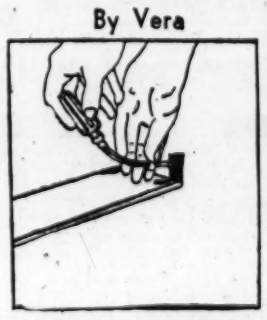
The older woman, who may occasionally complain that the house in which she reared her family is hard to take care of and that the weeds are outgrowing the flowers in her garden, may still be much happier maintaining the home than cramped up in a tiny apartment with little housework to do each day . . . and no yard.

Apparently "taking it easy" is not the way to an extended or happy old age. The oldsters who stay young, active and vigorous live up to their energy instead of sitting back and hoarding it.

Most older people seem to know this instinctively and want to "hold on" as long as possible. It is usually their well-meaning children who are sure that since they have "earned a rest," they ought to take it—for the rest of their lives.

It's an Idea

By Vera



No tool box should be without one of these—a flexible screwdriver that bends around corners. Made of steel with a shock-proof amber handle, you can turn and twist it to get into really tight spots.

Brain Game

AMERICAN history provides today's subject. Six answers correct is excellent.

1. Can you name the Secretary of War whose removal led to impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson?
2. "The Cross of Gold" speech made whom famous?
3. Who invented the reaper?
4. Was Horace Mann or Henry Barnard the first United States Commissioner of Education?
5. Can you name the United States Surgeon General who wiped out yellow fever in the Panama Canal area?
6. By what name was the Alaska Highway originally known?
7. The first atomic bomb exploded in warfare was dropped on what city?
8. Who was the Democratic candidate for Vice-President in 1952?

Answers

1. Edwin M. Stanton. 2. William Jennings Bryan. 2. Cyrus McCormick. 4. Henry Barnard. 5. Dr. William C. Gorgas. 6. Alcan Highway. 7. Hiroshima. 8. United States Senator John J. Sparkman.

Broken China

A PIECE of china dropped and broken causes great mental anguish, on the part of the person who drops it.

It was one of a set. Very likely it had been handed down through generations of the family that were so skillful with their hands they never broke china. The breaking of the china therefore raises the question whether the family is deteriorating.

Even though the china may have been of recent date no doubt the pattern will have been discontinued so that the broken piece cannot be replaced. Or, it can be replaced only at great expense.

Very likely the breaking of the piece of china is only one in a succession of breakings. Consequently it suggests that the person who did the breaking is losing control of his muscles. It may very well be that he is going to pieces like the china. Perhaps he should see a doctor and get a thorough checkup.

The breaking of the china destroys a person's self-confidence. It makes him ask himself whether, since he broke this piece of china, he can ever be trusted to handle another piece of china. Does it mean that hereafter he will not be allowed to help with the dishes?

Dropping the china is humiliating. A person who drops it will compare himself with friends in the same age group and ask whether they, too, drop and break china. His conclusion will be that they would not since all of them are clever with their hands.

In short nothing is so calculated to make a man miserable, ashamed, remorseful and penitent as dropping and breaking a piece of china. Nobody is so much in need of sympathy.

Why is it then that those who are nearest and dearest and to whom he would naturally go for comfort, look at him accusingly and ask "Oh, why did you do it?"

CHRISTOPHER BILLOPP.

Coupon good for free can of New Dishwashing Liquid – for women with Sensitive Skin

Nothing to buy—Just ask your beauty operator for your coupon—

How this New Dishwashing Formula was Inspired by a Professional Beauty Operator

"More and more women are coming to me with rough, red, sore hands," a professional beauty technician told us.

"Isn't it possible," she asked, "to make a dishwashing product that doesn't dry and irritate women's hands?"

We asked our laboratory—and they went to work.

The result?

You will love it...

New... wonderful new... LIQUID SHINA DISH... the first dishwashing liquid made especially for women with sensitive skin. It is different from any dishwashing product you have ever tried. For new Liquid Shina Dish contains... no alcohol to dry your skin ... no ammonia to irritate your skin... and no alkali to burn your skin.

It is gentle... gentle... gentle... yet gets dishes sparkling clean with oodles and oodles of rich, billowy suds.

And now, beauty operators everywhere are telling their customers about it. Your beauty operator doesn't sell Liquid Shina Dish... but she has a FREE COUPON for you, good at your grocers', for a full size can. Nothing to buy, just drop in at your favorite beauty shop and ask for it. But hurry, for she has only a limited number of these valuable coupons.

Sold by all leading grocers

Get $10.00 worth of beauty care

FREE!

For women in St. Louis area only!

Get a can of new Liquid Shina Dish from your grocer. Write and tell us how you like it. For each of the 50 best letters received from this area, we will send our check for $10.00 worth of beauty care at your favorite beauty shop. Send the code numbers from the bottom of the Liquid Shina Dish can ... the name of your favorite beauty shop ... together with your letter, to BEAUTY, c/o Liquid Shina Dish, Tidy House Products Company, Shenandoah, Iowa. Your letter must be postmarked no later than midnight, December 1, 1957. The decision of the judges will be final. All letters will become the property of Tidy House and none will be returned.

VISIT YOUR BEAUTY SHOP REGULARLY
You owe it to yourself

Now you can stop "Laundering" your hands when you wash dishes...

Everytime you wash your dishes with harsh, laundry-type detergents, you are actually "laundering" your hands! No wonder they get red, sore!

Keep them soft, smooth with new Liquid-Shina Dish.

Use it for washing your dainties, too.

Actually a beauty treatment for fine fabrics!

FM Programs

Frequency modulation programs are broadcast in St. Louis as follows: On station KSLH-FM, 91.5 meg., 9:10 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:10 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.; KCFM, 93.7 meg., 8:30 a.m. to 12 midnight; KFUO-FM, 99.1 meg.: 7:15 a.m. to 7:15 p.m.

KSD Weather Reports

At 6:45, 7:05, 7:45 and 8:30 a.m. and 12:10 p.m.; also 5:30, 6:10, 10:00, 11:00 and 11:30 p.m.

Millinery Modes

The collapsible draped turban is one of the most versatile and flattering of the autumn millinery modes. Available at a variety of prices, there are turbans made of velvet, wool jersey, satin and fur. Because they pack easily these hats are especially popular for travel needs. A change of decorations gives the turban a different appearance. A brilliant pin, for example, adds a festive note while a gold colored metal clip to hold the folds in place has a more tailored emphasis.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

WHILE he was in France at the age of 26, Robert Louis Stevenson met an American woman, Mrs. Fanny Osbourne. This meeting led to a warm regard between the two, but Mrs. Osbourne returned to her home in California.

Three years later the young author crossed the Atlantic, then traveled to San Francisco. Soon after reaching the city of the Golden Gate, he married Mrs. Osbourne.

The couple moved to Scotland, taking with them Lloyd Osbourne, Stevenson's young stepson. The marriage proved to be a happy one.

SEVERAL YEARS LATER, in search of a healthful place to live, Stevenson traveled to the Pacific ocean with his family. After visiting various places, he went to one of the islands of the Samoan group.

The Samoan natives became fond of Stevenson, and gave him the name of Tusitala, meaning "teller of tales." While on the island, he wrote "Ebb Tide" and other stories about South Sea life.

Stevenson with Samoan native and child.

If you ever visit Upolu, which was favored by Stevenson among the Samoan Islands, you may find a pathway which the natives cut through a forest many years ago. It is called by a name meaning "Road of the Loving Heart," and was made for Robert Louis Stevenson.

STEVENSON was an industrious writer. During his life, which lasted only 44 years, he composed material which later appeared in a set of 28 volumes. Among his books are "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," "Kidnapped," "Prince Otto" and "Treasure Island."

In the same year that the 28-volume edition of his works appeared, Stevenson died. On his tomb, at the top of a Samoan mountain, a poem is engraved, including these lines:

"Dig the grave and let me lie,
"Glad did I live and gladly die . . ."

FM Programs

Frequency medulation programs are broadcast in St. Louis as follows: On station KSLH-FM, 91.5 meg., 9:10 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:10 p.m. to 6:15 p.m.; KCFM, 93.7 meg., 8:30 a.m. to 12 midnight; KFUO-FM, 99.1 meg.; 7:15 a.m. to 7:15 p.m.

KSD Weather Reports

At 6:45, 7:05, 7:45 and 8:30 a.m. and 12:10 p.m., also 5:30, 6:10, 10:00, 11:00 and 11:30 p.m.

Millinery Modes

The collapsible draped turban is one of the most versatile and flattering of the autumn millinery modes. Available at a variety of prices, there are turbans made of velvet, wool jersey, satin and fur. Because they pack easily these hats are especially popular for travel needs. A change of decorations gives the turban a different appearance. A brilliant pin, for example, adds a festive note while a gold colored metal clip to hold the folds in place has a more tailored emphasis.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

WHILE he was in France at the age of 26, Robert Louis Stevenson met an American woman, Mrs. Fanny Osbourne. This meeting led to a warm regard between the two, but Mrs. Osbourne returned to her home in California.

Three years later the young author crossed the Atlantic, then traveled to San Francisco. Soon after reaching the city of the Golden Gate, he married Mrs. Osbourne.

The couple moved to Scotland, taking with them Lloyd Osbourne, Stevenson's young stepson. The marriage proved to be a happy one.

SEVERAL YEARS LATER, in search of a healthful place to live, Stevenson traveled to the Pacific ocean with his family. After visiting various places, he went to one of the islands of the Samoan group.

The Samoan natives became fond of Stevenson, and gave him the name of Tusitala, meaning "teller of tales." While on the island, he wrote "Ebb Tide" and other stories about South Sea life.

Stevenson with Samoan native and child.

If you ever visit Upolu, which was favored by Stevenson among the Samoan Islands, you may find a pathway which the natives cut through a forest many years ago. It is called by a name meaning "Road of the Loving Heart," and was made for Robert Louis Stevenson.

STEVENSON was an industrious writer. During his life, which lasted only 44 years, he composed material which later appeared in a set of 28 volumes. Among his books are "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," "Kidnapped," "Prince Otto" and "Treasure Island."

In the same year that the 28-volume edition of his works appeared, Stevenson died. On his tomb, at the top of a Samoan mountain, a poem is engraved, including these lines:

"Dig the grave and let me lie,
"Glad did I live and gladly die . . ."
